TOPTOAD ON LONG HIKE

Leaps Record to Minneapolis

Wondrous Homing Instinct of Amphibian Tested in New York Experiment

Hopeful Positive Will Make Trip by October 1, Barring Accidents

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Somewhere along the New York Central right of way, between New York and Albany, there is a hoptoad named Mickey. Provided he hasn't had a contact with the Twentieth Century Limited, or been mashed beneath the rubber heel of a fellow-traveler, or met with some other of the perils besetting hoptoads of the road, Mickey has a good chance to become the champion hoptoad in the world. He is hopping, hopping, hopping, by leaping, hopping, hopping, hops of a hop, hopping night and day, pausing between hops for a fly and a drink at passing pools or mayhap to make love to one or two at the bullfrog, because hopping on. And he's not only hopping, but hoping. It is the hope of Mickey, the crowning hope of his life, that he may succeed in hop to Minneapolis by hop.

THE PROGRESS THIS

Which, you must agree, would be some glorious progress for a toad.

However, it was learned today, Mickey started on his journey from New York to Minneapolis early this morning by his friend and sponsor, P. E. Sidney, a naturalist of Wakefield, Mass., who has made a considerable part of his life studying the ways and diet of hoptoads. It isn't a new thing to Mr. Sidney, but a scientific experiment by which hoptoads are to advance the hoptoad cause and to prevent lonely status to occupy first place in the scheme of things, but let him tell it.

"Mickey," he said today, "is one of the most intelligent and companionable of reptiles. I have had him at my place in Wakefield, Mass., where I've been studying for years, I know.

"In one of the discoveries I made in my toad research was that they have an unerring homing instinct. In this they're fully the equal of carrier pigeons. I have, for instance, a hoptoad named Mickey which I've taken to New York three times and liberated there. Each time he has come back to Wakefield. And it isn't because he has any partiality for Yale, either.

THE EXPERIMENTATION

"I began with Tody induced him a year ago, to attempt the experiment. So, selected Mickey, my brainiest toad, presented him to a friend in New York. In a short time Mickey grew to love Minneapolis so much that last week I had my friend take him to New York. He was put in a Pullman window sill for the trip so he could remain undisturbed. Here I put a band on his left hind foot with my name on it and early

Full Trainload of Flowers for Bier of Harding

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—A full sized trainload of flowers were sent to Warren G. Harding between the time of his death in San Francisco and his funeral here. Every State in the Union, a dozen foreign countries and hundreds of organizations were represented in the floral offerings, most of which never reached the Marion cemetery, his final resting place.

Between San Francisco and Washington three baggage carloads of flowers were picked up. By the time Washington was reached they had wilted and had to be discarded. The floral offerings at the state funeral were so numerous that four carloads had to be left behind, two cars being brought here on the funeral train.

These were transferred to the cemetery last night by army trucks, but the pieces received today filled six more of the great army trucks which rushed them to the receiving vault between the ending of the home services and the arrival at the cemetery of the slow-moving funeral procession.

MASTER MIND IN VILLA DEATH PLOT CONFESSES

Mexican Deputy Arrested After He Bares Details in Letter, Telling How He Led Slayers

BY JACK STARR-HUNT
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 10.—Jesus Salas, a member of the Chamber of Deputies from Durango, has confessed he was the mastermind in the assassination of Pancho Villa, and was arrested last night at Monterey by order of President Obregon as "intellectually and actively responsible" for the death conspiracy.. The War Department this morning confirmed the report of the arrest.

The confession, contained in a letter sent on the 5th inst. to Gen. Abraham Carmona, states that Villa was assassinated to avenge thousands, both living and dead, whom he had wronged, and outlines full details of the conspiracy. The letter was forwarded to President Obregon, who turned it over to the Attorney-General with instructions that Salas be arrested.

The letter makes a spirited attack on Villa, and outlines the reasons for his death. Salas avers that a long series of bloody crimes made Villa an object of general hatred throughout North America as a "human hyena." He included in the list of his outrages, says Salas, destruction of the Durango electric plant, valued at 500,000 pesos, in which Salas was interested, and by this act caused misery to a thousand families.

NOTED MEN SET OUT ON FROLIC TRIP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—A wandering caravan composed of men high in the nation's ranks of scientists and manufacturers, left Marion tonight for a destination unknown even to its members.

In the party were Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and S. Firestone. They are off for their annual frolic in quest of recreation. They came to Marion to bury one of their partners in frolics of former years, the late President Harding.

Before leaving Mr. Ford said he did not believe Mr. Harding's death would have any effect on business or policies of the government, "as the administration at Washington is practically the same as when Mr. Harding was President."

Mr. Ford, who is acting as host this year, said the first stop will be at Milan in Northern Ohio, the birthplace of Mr. Edison. From there the party will go to Mr. Ford's country home near Detroit, from where it will meander through Northern Michigan and Wisconsin.

There is no definite itinerary, however, and according to Mr. Ford the party will "just wander aimlessly for the next two weeks."

They will camp along the way, but where they will stop and how long they will remain before breaking camp is entirely up to Mr. Edison, who has been designated "commander-in-chief."

The men are traveling in their own automobiles, their camping equipment being carried in huge motor lorries. The equipment includes a complete camp kitchen, large army tents for each member of the party and all the convenience known to present-day camping.

CUNO'S FALL IMPENDING

Stresemann Will Succeed Him

Socialists Join Communists in Demand for New Berlin Regime

Strike of Pressmen Brings New Crisis in Money Situation

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The early retirement of Chancellor Cuno and his ministry seems foreshadowed in consequence of the decision of the United Socialists to support the "no confidence" motion introduced by the Communists, which will come up for a vote in the Reichstag on Monday.

Although the United Socialists originally concluded that they would abstain from voting when the issue came up, the internal situation is fast drifting to a point where the Socialists face the necessity of saving their political prestige with the workers in order to prevent the workers from deserting to the Communists.

The Socialist leaders tonight are conferring with Chancellor Cuno in an effort to induce him to resign. In the event he acquiesces, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, leader of the German People's party, would be asked by President Ebert to reconstruct the government on the basis of a big coalition, which would include the United Socialists.

REICHSTAG PANICKY

The panicky feeling which has marked Germany's internal situation the past few days and which is being converted into political capital by the Communists, late tonight seized the Reichstag, where symptoms of a Cuno crisis developed because of the decision of the Socialists to retire from their position of "benevolent neutrality" toward the present nonpartisan, or business men's Cabinet.

Despite the new tax and financial program promised by Chancellor Cuno the United Socialist leader on the party's moderate wing have been unable to stand off their radical comrades who are clamoring for the Chancellor's retirement. The Communists craftily turned the party discussion to their purpose by introducing the "no confidence" motion in the Reichstag late this afternoon. This was so worded that the Socialists either had to accept it in view of moderate phrasing, or go before their followink as having given the bourgeoisie government their approval.

STORM UNEXPECTED

The motion simply stated that the Chancellor's policies do not represent the Reichstag's views.

The parliamentary storm came unexpectedly tonight while the House was still voting the government's tax bills. The United Socialists now have alienated themselves to such an extent from the Cuno Cabinet's program that the ministry's retirement appears inevitable.

The strike movement, which is bringing about a tremendous discrepancy between increasing food prices and the wages of workmen, threatens to become exceedingly serious. However, the strike at the state printing works, ended by agreement today, and the presses again are turning out billions of paper marks.

This strike, which tied up the Reichsbank, was in violation of the decision of the Ministry of Labor which awarded a wage of approximately 6,500,000 paper

NEW YORK BOWS IN GRIEF

Great Metropolis Stilled as Hour of President's Burial is Tolled Over Nation

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Hushed with a reverent stillness unparalleled in her history as a metropolis, New York today paid sorrowful tribute to the memory of Warren G. Harding. Her great banks, her brokerages, her stores, her harbor deserted, the city turned to her myriad churches where the sad ceremonies at Marion, O., were being echoed.

It was more than a Sunday hush that fell.

Sunday, to New York's millions, is a day as much for relaxation as for worship. It is a day for the beaches, the parks and the country; a day for motoring car rides and golf.

Today it was almost as if there was a funeral in every home. Broad thoroughfares were stripped of their traffic. Subway and elevated trains, running on reduced schedules, were sparsely occupied. Trains to the shore resorts were almost empty. The resorts themselves were as quiet as if in winter.

NOON BRINGS SILENCE

The apex of the day of mourning came at noon when, with millions assembled in the city's churches to do sorrowful homage to the dead President, with the guns of the surrounding forts and military posts booming the Presidential salute, and with hundreds of church bells tolling, the city's transit lines ground to a halt and her connections with the outside world were temporarily stopped.

Subway, elevated and railroad trains, trolley cars and automobiles stood motionless for two minutes. Telegraph and cable instruments dio ceased. Telephone operators sat motionless at their switchboards. All thoughts turned toward Marion.

Another climax came a few minutes after 5 o'clock, when the wires of the Associated Press connecting the nation with Marion flashed "taps," then subsided for two minutes into an unaccustomed silence. A vast hush filled the city. Crews of ships and tugs in the harbor stood at attention. Foreign vessels dipped their colors.

SHIPS PAUSE AT SEA

Far away at sea this moment many vessels halted in their course for two to five minutes. Others slowed down to funeral speed. On all the crews stood at attention.

Even after the President's body had been consigned to its tomb the mourning continued. Legitimate theaters and vaudeville houses were closed. Broadway was almost dark. A few of the motion-picture houses—all closed during the day—opened this evening, but their crowds were small. Some gave a touch of mourning to their programs by displaying the late President's features on the screen while organs whispered his favo-

TOMB CLOSES SILENTLY OVER WARREN HARDING

Loved Ones and Friends of Nation's Dead Leader Surrender Him to Eternal Sleep

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—Harding, of Ohio, is home tonight; sleeping time away near the mother at whose knee his first childish dream of greatness was prattled.

TERRIER PUP BRIGHT SPOT AT FUNERAL

Friendly Dog Keeps Vigil at Tomb; Affords Comfort to Mrs. Harding

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ON BOARD SPECIAL TRAIN WITH MRS. HARDING, MANSFIELD (O.) Aug. 10.—When the iron gates had closed today on the vault where Warren Harding slept, a friendly fox terrier pup lay down before them undisturbed by the guardsmen who kept vigil around the tomb. The little dog had come uninvited to the great man's funeral perhaps called by the love for animals this kindly man had always shown. In and out among the Cabinet officers, generals and admirals, standing reverently by the bier, he twisted his way, and wandered close to the casket as though he recognized the presence there of a friend.

Finally in sleepy contentment he laid down just inside the open doors of the tomb to watch with drowsy eyes as the funeral rites were concluded. And, because Warren Harding loved dogs those who loved Warren Harding best were glad to see him there, no hands were raised to drive him away. Even the sorrowful widow had noted him. His presence sent a little gleam of happiness through her gloom, for she knew the dead President would have welcomed this little wanderer.

The time came when the casket must be carried into the vault and the little dog blocked the way. There was a motion to push him to one side, but Mrs. Harding would not have it so. At her wishes, Secretary Christian called softly to the guards to coax, not to drive him.

After all but the soldier guard had left the tomb, Capt. Andrews, the dead President's aide, went back to see that all was well there before Mrs. Harding left for Washington. He went at Mrs. Harding's request, and he brought back to her word that he found the terrier sitting at the door of the tomb, still faithful to the dead friend sleeping there.

To Mrs. Harding it was a bright spot in a dark hour of her life. Speeding toward Washington tonight, she thus described it to her friends on the train, telling how she had watched the little visitor stray among the feet of those gathered about the casket and had drawn comfort even in that moment from his coming.

Before his tomb, as the chiming voices of the choir sang softly among the trees "Near, My God, To Thee," another tender, brave woman stood with aching heart, her veiled face lifted to the sky. A moment later she stepped a meagre moment into the dim vault where the dead husband's journey of life had ended. Then she turned away, brave to the last, to face the lonely years ahead. She waited not to see the iron gates close softly upon her dead.

Harding is home forever from life's high places, where the restless heady wings of ambition blow; home beneath Ohio soil, for above him the vaulted roof is mantled with grass-grown sod; home among the friends and neighbors of his youth, the kindly people of a kindly town. Time is ended for him, and the shouting and clamour that surround the great are done.

END IS SIMPLE

It was a long road to that silent vault about which there closed tonight a guard of the citizen soldiery of his own State. There was endless ceremony of the nation's and the people's making to mark the way. But it ended simply, calmly, as the dead would have had it end.

Aside from the multitude that walked the long way from his father's home to the vault and those others, close-packed to make a living setting for the funeral rites, there was not much to mark it as the burial of one who had held the highest power in his grasp. There were the tanned men of his guard from the sister services of the nation, the admirals and the generals who formed his honor escort, the friend and comrade who is now its President in his stead, the colleagues of his grief-stricken Cabinet. That was all, except at the last, distant gunfire as he came to his tomb and the soft tones of a bugle sounding a soldier requiem as the gates were closed.

ALL OHIO PRESENT

Otherwise the funeral service was that of a simple and much loved citizen of Ohio. For all Ohio seemed to have come today to bid him farewell. Throngs whose number will never be known passed beside his casket and looked their last upon the dead face before the time for the last journey came.

From his father's home he went out again carried by the steadfast men who have stood constantly to guard a dead commander. No solemn music of bands or military pageant marked his going save the great flag of the President drooping in mourning and carried before him to the gates of the tomb as he went.

In cars behind the simple hearse that carried now this honored leader, came President Coolidge and the Cabinet and the friends and close kin. There, too, came Chief Justice Taft and General Pershing. Last to leave the memorized house was Mrs. Harding, in black and with veil drawn close, and just ahead of her walked the old father, his face plainly showing the agony of his grief.

VAULT IS IVY-COVERED

Through the silent, face-walled street the cortege passed and around the corner to the quiet cemetery. As it came toward the gates the guns spoke afar in honor.

The vault stands ivy-wrapped and set back into the gentle hill with little space before it. So the funeral train was halted at a distance and the casket lifted down to be carried to a resting place before the open entrance to the tomb. Already a group of Senators who knew this dead President under the Capitol dome before he passed to the White House, were waiting in line across the roadway that runs before the entrance. With them stood the comrades of camp-

MEMORIAL CONDUCTED ON LIMITED

Passengers and Crew Bow Heads as Minister Dwells on Harding's Life Work

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FORT MADISON (Iowa) Aug. 10.—A unique and touching memorial service for the late President Harding was held this afternoon aboard Santa Fe train No. 22, close to Medill, Mo., from Los Angeles to Chicago, known as the Missionary, John F. Foster, conductor.

Promptly at 2 p.m. the train came to a halt. Passengers and the train crew crowded outside the observation car, while Rev. Martin Luther Thomas, a Presbyterian minister of Deerfield, Ill., conducted the service. Passengers and the Pullman conductor formed a quartet and sang "Nearer My God to Thee." The minister dwelt upon the life and lasting work of the late President, closing with an appeal for personal spiritual preparedness, even as the President was prepared for life's great journey. The train crew, with danger signals in upraised hands, joined the passengers in singing "Rock of Ages." With bowed heads and sad hearts passengers and crew mingled their tears together for him whom the nation had so earnestly learned to love.

After the conclusion of the brief service members of the crew climbed back into their places and the passengers returned to their cars. The train then resumed its journey.

BOYHOOD FRIEND AT MEMORIAL SERVICE

Mr. Allen was a team-mate of President Harding on a baseball team in Ohio. The President in his younger days was an amateur first baseman while Mr. Allen went to the big leagues as a famous shortstop of years ago. The two men always kept up their

COOLIDGE IS IN HARNESS

Speeds on Way to Capital

Formalities Attendant on Death Now Over, Work Will be Taken Up

Break With Hughes Rumored Over Questions of Our Foreign Policy

BY ROBERT B. SMITH
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ON BOARD PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S TRAIN, Aug. 10.—After attending the last rites for Warren G. Harding, President Coolidge is on his way back to Washington to take up the duties of the Presidency in earnest. He is free now to proceed unhampered by the proprieties which existed before the burial of the late President. One of his first acts upon his return to the national capital will be to call the Cabinet to meet, probably Monday or Tuesday, to deal with many problems facing the new administration.

It appears to be fairly well settled that there will no immediate changes in the Cabinet, although predictions are being made that one or two resignations will be accepted in due time. The report continues to circulate that Atty.-Gen. Daugherty will give up his post because of ill health. Some observers also believe that there is a possibility of a break between the President and Secretary of State Hughes over questions of foreign policy.

STRIKE LOOMS

The biggest problem likely to engage the attention of the new President is the threatened anthracite strike. No section of the country is so dependent on the anthracite industry for its fuel supply as New England and as a New Englander, Mr. Coolidge is strongly impressed with the necessity for steps to prevent a strike. It is expected that he will confer with the leaders of both sides in the anthracite controversy within the next few days. His recent in the Boston policemen's strike gives rise to the belief that he will stand ready to make use of every means at the government's command to insure an uninterrupted supply of fuel during the winter.

The train which took the President to Marion from Washington made few stops, although everywhere along the route crowds were out to get a view of the new Chief Executive. Mr. Coolidge did not show himself much, feeling that it would not be quite proper on such an occasion. When the train pulled into Akron a crowd of several thousand was gathered at the station. The train purposely stopped a short distance from the station to avoid the crowd. Mr. Coolidge finally appeared on the rear platform for a moment to shake hands with the Mayor, who headed a delegation which called to pay the city's respects. The crowds, while manifesting eagerness to see Mr. Coolidge, did not make any demonstrations.

MANY NOTABLES

Mrs. Coolidge accompanied the President on the trip to Marion. The train carried a large number of notables. Among those on board were Chief Justice Taft, Gen. Pershing, Senator Warren, Republican, Wyoming; Senator Phipps, Republican, Colorado; Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey; Senator Wadsworth, Republican, New York; Senator Ernst, Republican, Kentucky; Senator Hale, Republican, Maine; Senator Spencer, Republican, Missouri; Senator Cameron, Republican, Arizona; Senator Shipstead, Farmer, Minnesota; Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee; Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania; William F. Butler, Republican National Committeeman from Massachu-

CITY IS HUSHED IN TRIBUTE

Wheels of Industry Silenced While Thousands Bow in Silent Respect to Passing of Great Leader

For five minutes the silence lasted. Then again the city's roar. Los Angeles had paid its tribute to the memory of the dead President. Warren G. Harding.

More eloquent perhaps than anything else said or done yesterday, was a city hushed. At the stroke of one, the noisy wheels of the street cars ceased to turn, the horns of the motor cars stopped their honking, and a silence of the prairies fell over Los Angeles. A Chief Executive of the nation, fallen in line of duty, had taken his place among the immortals.

With the sounding of The Times siren promptly at 1 o'clock, a bugler stepped to the tower of the building and blew taps. There followed the quiet of grief and respect. Thousands assembled in Pershing Square and along the sidewalks of the downtown streets bowed their heads, while police officers on duty stood rigidly at attention.

TOLLING OF BELLS

The only sounds were the measured tollings of church bells, and the chimes which played "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Onward Christian Soldiers." A strange urban silence. A fitting tribute to the memory of a leader of the nation.

At the end of the five minutes, the whistle of a traffic policeman sounded. The memorial exercises in Pershing Square proceeded. Mayor Cryer briefly told of the preparations which had been made here for the contemplated visit of them with the memorial ceremonies of the day. "Man proposes, God disposes," was the theme of his short tribute.

His brief remarks were preceded with the singing of "Lead Kindly Light," and there followed the address of Dr. James A. Francis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The ceremonies were closed by the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," and a short prayer by Dr. Francis.

PROGRESSIVE LEADER

"Warren G. Harding will go down in history as the man who took the lead in the two most important steps in world progress for peace," Dr. Francis declared, in his eulogy to the late President.

These steps, stated Mr. Francis, were the calling of the world conference for the limitation of armaments and the advocacy for the entry of the United States into a World Court for the settling of international disputes.

Dr. Francis stated that in his opinion the best proof of the soundness of a democratic form of government is the fact that during the 150 years of existence of the government of the United States, this nation has had at its head the highest standard of manhood.

"No man," the speaker declared, "can become a great man, without first being a good man, and

Marion Sorrowfully Plays Host to Crowds of Nation's Mourners

THOUSANDS PAY TRIBUTE AT BIER OF DEAD CHIEF

Throngs Stand Through Night Without Single Hope of Viewing Face, Yet Patience Rules Day

BY DONALD EWING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—Two hundred thousand of the nation's mourners today crowded their way into this town of 30,000 to help in the final ceremony of returning the country boy who became President to the soil from which he came.

Tonight 75,000 of them wearily are returning home, disappointed, downcast, for they had no part in the last honors. They saw nothing of Warren Harding's funeral. They heard the strains of church organs playing hymns during the morning—but that was all. They couldn't even get close to the bier, the funeral procession or the cemetery, for the 125,000 who got here first had blocked the way and the town which produced a President wasn't physically big enough to care for those who wanted to help bury him.

TOWN FILLED

They banked the streets five to twenty deep. They parked their automobiles on immaculate front lawns. They filled the windows, sluttered the housetops and fainted in the stifling heat. They stood for hours on crutches, against trees, sitting on cement curbings, walking through the streets where pedestrian traffic was so crowded it took twenty minutes at 10 a.m. to go from the Marion Club to the Marion Hotel—two blocks—and automobile traffic was barred.

All of this with three possibilities in view—a one-second glance at the corpse of Warren Harding as it lay in a wooden box in his father's living room, a one-minute glance at the cemetery receiving vault before the box was placed there in the afternoon, a glance at a hearse of bluish gray as it preceded a string of funeral cars along State street. Despite the snail pace it took only two minutes and fifty seconds for the main group to pass a given point and less than five minutes for the entire entourage, including motion-picture men and such.

NO CHOICE

And with these three scenes of seconds duration existing, the multitude found that there was no choice and that 75,000 must omit all three. As early as daylight the throng realized that it couldn't see all three. It split. A line eight abreast and a mile and a half long grew from the George T. Harding home down across the Pennsylvania and Erie tracks. A line of soldiers kept it in formation, jammed onto the north side of Center street.

At the home it formed into two streams, passing on either side of the coffin in the living-room at the rate of forty a minute. Faster than they filed out, additions came at the other end. Twenty-four thousand went through last night. Fifteen thousand more went through today. A hundred thousand wanted to. When the doors were closed the line was still a mile long. Much of it, realizing the futility of the effort, had deserted to seek one of the other possibilities.

At 8 o'clock this morning a single line extended on either side of the two miles between the Harding home and the cemetery. At 10 o'clock the four-block section on Center street was eight deep. At noon thousands are lying on the ground in the cemetery and State street was banked ten deep on either side.

BANKED FOR BLOCK

At the intersections they banked back a block. By 1 o'clock, two hours before the funeral, there was not a bit of space left on State street, the road half a mile past the cemetery was crowded, every front porch was filled, some trees were occupied and the parallel streets one and one-half blocks away were getting their share.

Main street, which parallels State street a block west, had groups on every front porch. High and Cortland streets to the east were the same. The people couldn't see a thing, but they sat patiently for the funeral procession to pass them—a block or two away and out of sight.

Army ambulances patrolled the city, giving aid to women and children who fainted, but refused to leave after being revived. Cripples fanned themselves with newspapers and prayed that they would not fall. Soldiers stood guard to keep back a multitude that was willing to stay back thought it had braved every trial to go forward. But all were quiet, polite and courteous. No surging, no pushing. If there wasn't room they stayed back. They came for but a glance and quietly resigned themselves to missing it.

FOOD IS SHORT

Throughout the lines on State street—the road to the cemetery, were many who had waited for ten and twelve hours for the first minutes when the hearse and its following would pass. Occasionally a woman muttered: "I'd give anything for a glass of water," or a man said: "My God! If I just had a sandwich." But it was two miles to food—and perhaps none if the journey were made, for Marion's restaurants sold out early.

For five miles out on every highway cars were parked. Space for 50,000 machines had been provided near the city, but the traffic jam became so great that many could not reach them. Those who got into the city early by automobile found great restricted areas which they could not enter, guarded by the 4000 National Guardsmen on duty.

They parked along the edges of side streets and soon filled them. Others came in and found no place to park and no way to get back. They drove onto the front lawns, upon the sidewalks and none seemed inclined to tell them to move on.

EVERY TYPE

Alongside the highways thousands walked in from near-by towns. Girls in knickerbockers, men in overalls, aged fellows with canes, a few on crutches.

They found every village in mourning. Blooming Grove, Harding's birthplace, was a mass of black.

Fifty special trains brought countless thousands in. They dumped their loads at the station and rolled quickly into sidings all around the city, waiting to take them back home tonight.

It was more than an orderly multitude. There was not one instance of disorder or trouble. Through the day the majestic silence became appalling for conversation was in low tones, broken only by the occasional purr of an official car engine. Like yesterday, it was a neighborly crowd—men in shirt-sleeves, boys in rompers, women in calico. Some carried chairs and shared them with others. Groups gathered under single umbrellas.

Late tonight the streets still were clogged as they tried to get home. Out-of-towners filled the highways. A freight train crossed a highway and the delay formed a line of more than 500 cars.

Silent sentries watched the vault as thousands, determined not to be disappointed in all of the things they came to see, passed by under a cloud-covered sky that made the solemnity of a graveyard even more intense.

setts; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Stearns of Boston; Admirals Eberle, Rodman, Wilson, Stitt and Potter.

The President is said to be considering the advisability of going to Swampscott, Mass., to spend several weeks at the home of his personal friend, F. W. Stearns. He had planned to do this before he became President and he is being urged to carry out his original plans. His decision probably will be guided largely by developments within the next few days.

Mr. Coolidge's stay in Marion was very brief. His train arrived at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. He did not leave the train until a few minutes before the funeral services began. The train left for Washington at 6 o'clock.

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID BY SENATOR WATSON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The reverence of the "unnumbered millions" who stood along the route of the Harding funeral train was pointed to today by Senator Watson of Indiana, intimate friend of the late President, as "assurance that our institutions will stand strong, everlastingly grounded in the affections of a people who form them."

Senator Watson, speaking at memorial services conducted here by the American Legion, declared the public had not only paid reverence and respect to Mr. Harding but to the Presidency, "the hope of the government."

"In the thirty-five years I have known Mr. Harding," said Senator Watson, "he was always kindly disposed, of a generous character, of magnificent chivalry and beautiful charity. He always gave to those with whom he disagreed the credit of honest motives and pure intention and, after all, that is one of the mighty things in this man's character."

STONE OFFERED FOR HARDING MAUSOLEUM

PROFERRED GIFT OF GRANITE TO BE DISCUSSED BY MARION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—Granite to erect a suitable mausoleum for the body of the late President Harding was offered tonight free to the city of Marion by Guy M. Walker of New York City. The only cost to the city will be that of getting the granite out.

Mr. Walker made his offer in a telegram to E. B. Durfee, owner of Indian Mound, lying just east of the Marion Cemetery where Mr. Harding's body is entombed, and which has been suggested as a suitable site for the erection of a proper memorial for the late Chief Executive.

The granite used in the erection of the McKinley memorial at Canton, O., and the Perry memorial at Put-in-Bay, O., was obtained from the same quarry, Mr. Walker said.

The offer will be discussed by the Marion Civic Association, but definite action on the proposal was not expected for several days, it was said tonight.

FEDERAL PRISONERS STAND IN TRIBUTE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LEAVENWORTH (Kan.) Aug. 10.—Prisoners in the Federal penitentiary here, numbering 2744, paid a five-minute tribute to the memory of the late President Harding at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The men stood at attention while the band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and other hymns. A hush prevailed throughout the institution. After the demonstration the prisoners marched silently into their cells.

Great and Humble Gather at Doors of Vault

ing days, Ford, Edison and Firestone.

WIDOW AND FATHER

Then came Dr. Harding with the snows of his eighty years showing on his bared head, and then the brave widow walking to her place at the right of the casket with Secretary Christian and the members of the grief-bowed family.

Within the shadow of the doorway of the vault, the churchmen took their place and from the shrubbery that screened them the choir sang, "Lead, Kindly Light." The last service for Warren Harding had begun.

Prayers followed, spoken by old friends of the dead President, and Scriptural passages that hearten men in sorrow were read, and again the choir sang. The last hymn of this simple, reverent service was "Nearer My God to Thee," and as the softly blending voices came to the last chords, Mrs. Harding slowly raised her veiled face and stood, as though in prayer to him above that the dead husband who in a moment would be shut away from her forever might know that peace beyond understanding which God's mercy holds out to humanity at the last.

BENEDICTION SPOKEN

The voices died away, and with lifted hand, Bishop Anderson of the Methodist Episcopal Church pronounced the benediction:

"Now unto Him that is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the presence of His glory, with exceeding joy, to the only wise God, our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and forevermore. Amen."

The funeral party and the hundreds who ringed them about stood motionless and silent a moment. Then the soldiers and sailors and marines who have kept the honor watch all the way from San Francisco and who alone have carried this casket, stepped forward. Facing the tomb, they lifted it slowly and slowly bore it in through the shadowy doorway. And at that moment the nation stood silent in sorrow.

Back to the dim depths of the crypt of stone and earth the bearers went with their burden, then turned to file out again and stand stiffly at attention in double line forming a corridor of honor.

Mrs. Harding raised her veil slightly and swept the moisture from her brow and lips. It was still and hot where the light breeze was shut off by the crowding, sorrowful people about her, but it did not seem that even now it was tears she wiped away.

As the bearers came out, she leaned to whisper to Secretary Christian. Then she stepped forward on his arm to pass just within the ivy-grown doorway beyond which lay the flag-draped casket, hardly visible in the dim vault. She haulted but a moment in this final farewell, then turned to walk slowly down the roadway to the waiting motorcar that rolled her swiftly away.

She had gone. President Coolidge with Mrs. Coolidge stepped to her place within the doorway, they too standing but a moment. As they turned to pass out, the great iron barrier was swung softly shut and Warren Harding was at home forever in the town he loved.

Down beyond where a green lawn stretched under the trees, the khaki tents of the guardsmen gleamed. As the sorrowing company before the vault moved away to the waiting cars, the guardsmen again took their places before the vault flaming with the beauty of the flowers that banked it about. And the hundreds who had stood to watch the simple ceremony that committed a simple American to the keeping of his God drifted slowly away to leave him alone when dark fell for the sleep that will never end.

FUNERAL PRAYER

The Rev. Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth M. E. Church of which Mrs. Harding is a member, delivered the following prayer at the funeral services at the cemetery:

"Almighty God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, giver of every good and every perfect gift, the Father of the lights, in whom there is no variableness or shadow of turning, we come with confidence to Thee even in such a time as this because we know that Thou art not only a God of greatness and of power, but also a God of mercy and of love.

"We thank Thee for our land and nation and for Thy guiding hand upon us from its inception until this hour. We thank Thee for what this man, our friend and brother, has meant in the progress and development of our nation. We feel that he in imitation of Him whom he called Master and Lord has laid down his life in the service of his country, and we believe that he has received Thy 'Well done'.

BLESSINGS INVOKED

"May Thy blessing rest upon him who assumes the vast responsibility of taking the helm and guiding the future of this land of ours.

"May Thy blessing rest upon our nation and its people and upon our city in this time of great bereavement. Give Thy blessing to the aged father, who offered his own life in the service of his country and now has given this noble son. Sustain and support him in this great trial and sorrow and guide his feet in the paths of peace until his way shall end in the land beyond the grave where he can meet again the dear ones whom he has loved long since and lost a while.

"Bless the other members of the family and may they feel him near. May Thy special blessing rest upon Mrs. Harding, the wife of our beloved dead, who lives to mourn the loss of this devoted companion who journeyed with her up the steps of life until they reached the heights together. May she now hear Thee say 'Fear thou not, for I am with thee, be not dismayed, for I am thy God, I will strengthen thee, yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right arm of My righteousness.' May she know that The Eternal God is her refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms.'

"When these solemn rites are over and she goes back to walk the way of life alone, may she realise that she is not alone, for Thou hast said to all Thy children: 'I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee,' and may her noble example of confidence and trust in God be an inspiration to all those who are called to walk with her the 'Via Dolorosa.'

"May the peace of God descend upon all hearts and may we all learn to live, not for ourselves, but for each other and for the good that we may do as this noble man and woman."

SYDNEY JOINS WITH SORROWING NATIONS

SYDNEY, Aug. 10.—A memorial service for President Harding was conducted today at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney. Those attending included Lord Forster, the Governor-General; Sir Walter Davidson, Governor of New South Wales; State ministers, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Sir Henry Braddon, Lord Mayor; representatives of the Milandaval forces, members of the foreign consulates, and representatives of the principal public institutions. The American Society and the English Speaking Union organized a service, at which all the leading Americans here were present, including Consul-General Lawton and Vice-Consul Moseley. Archbishop Wright preached the funeral oration at the public service.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) Aug. 10.—Spokane is to be among the first cities in the country to have a tangible memorial of President Harding. The route over which he drove through the residential districts of the South hill will be named President Harding Drive, highway officials announced today.

HARDING TOMB TO BE GUARDED FOR SIX MONTHS BY REGULARS FROM UNITED STATES ARMY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—For six months the vault in which Warren G. Harding is sleeping his last sleep will be guarded by a detail of thirty United States Army Regulars from Fort Hayes, Columbus. The regulars will take up the death watch next Monday. Until then the tomb will be guarded by Ohio National Guard troops.

A mighty hush fell over the throngs that packed the streets as the funeral procession slowly wended its way from the Harding home to the cemetery. The only noise was the quiet chug of the automobile engines in the procession.

The funeral procession passed by the office of the Marion Star, published for years by Mr. Harding. Not an employee of the Star was in the building, the front windows of which had been darkened. The employees marched as a body in the procession, the only gathering given this permission.

Estimates by secret service men were that between 50,000 and 75,000 persons passed in the line yesterday and today for a last look at the face all knew so well.

Mrs. Harding rode to the cemetery in the fifth automobile behind the hearse. In the car with her were George Christian, her husband's private secretary and for years their next door neighbor in Marion, and Brig.-Gen. C. E. Sawyer, who was President Harding's personal physician and intimate friend. Dr. Harding, the father, rode in another car.

As the body of the late President was placed in the vault an Army bugler sounded "taps." For a moment there was silence and then the crowd began its sorrowful journey back to the center of the city.

Although the food supply ran short in Marion today the restaurants did not boost their prices. The regular prices prevailed as long as the food lasted. Hundreds of people who could not crowd into the restaurants at noon had to go without lunch. Similar conditions prevailed at supper.

A large crowd gathered at the station to see President Coolidge and his party off. President and Mrs. Coolidge were the first to board the special. They were followed by Chief Justice Taft and many other notable Washington officials.

When Gen Pershing entered his car a mild cheer went up from those standing behind the roped enclosure. Gen. Pershing did not acknowledge it. He later descended from his car and walked up and down the platform until the train started.

PEOPLE OF AMERICA UNITE IN MANY CITIES TO RENDER HARDING REVERENT TRIBUTE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ALTOONA (Pa.) Aug. 10.—Charles M. Schwab speaking at a memorial service here today in honor of President Harding said:

"Fate has placed within my good fortune to know many world's great men, but of all the one who has made the deepest impression upon me was he who has passed from us. President Harding was not a great military leader, nor super-educated above the rest of us. He was a sincere, honest, patriotic gentleman, whose chief duty was service to fellow-men."

PRISONERS WEEP

OSSINING (N. Y.) Aug. 10.—Tears welled into the eyes of many scowl-softened Sing Sing inmates who crowded into the prison chapel today to participate in memorial services for the late President Harding. The Rev. Father William B. Cassin eulogized the life and accomplishments of the late President, the prison band played a funeral dirge and the convicts, chorused in sincere devotion the hymns that Mr. Harding loved best.

HARDING NAMED MARTYR

CINCINNATI—President Harding was a martyr to the nation as much so as any soldier who ever fell in battle inasmuch as he died in the line of duty while carrying his message to the people, United States Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, declared in a memorial address here today.

COLUMBUS MOURNS

COLUMBUS—Ohio's capital where the late President Harding spent much of his time previous to going to Washington as United States Senator, paid homage to the dead Chief Executive without ostentation today. All business in the afternoon and the State House and City Hall were deserted all day.

CROWDS AT DETROIT

DETROIT—Detroit's reverent tribute to Warren Harding today was crystallized in a great open-air memorial service that filled Cadillac Square where the city's busiest thoroughfares converge with a crowd of 150,000. Simple ceremonies marked the service. Business places were closed during the afternoon.

MOBILE IN MOURNING

MOBILE—All Mobile, as Americans, gathered this afternoon in Bienville Square and paid a last tribute to the late President Harding. From homes, churches and business the thousands came to revere the passing of the Chief Executive with eulogy and prayer.

MEET AT CHAUTAUQUA

FRIEND OF SOUTH

NEW ORLEANS—"Harding was a real friend of the South. He was one of the kindest men I have ever known. It must be a comfort to Mrs. Harding to know how deeply he is mourned by the people from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico and from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

This was the tribute of Gov. John M. Parker at memorial services held at Elks Places today in memory of the dead President.

CHRISTIAN QUITS AS COOLIDGE SECRETARY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—George B. Christian, secretary to Warren G. Harding as United States Senator and as President, announced tonight he had submitted his resignation as executive secretary to President Coolidge.

Mr. Christian made his announcement soon after he had returned from the final services for his dead Chief.

"I entered public life with Warren G. Harding and I leave it now that he has been called away," the announcement said. "For nine years I worked beside him and my present sorrow is somewhat assuaged by the feeling of satisfaction at having been permitted to serve a great President, a most humane and considerate Chief, and the finest friend it has ever been given a man to have. I left at Washington my resignation for the acceptance of President Coolidge with a tender of any services I may be able to give him, and any assistance I can give his secretary. It is my expectation to enter private business just as soon as I may be able to complete my arrangements therefore."

Mr. Christian added informally that he had no desire to continue in public office and would not look with favor on any Federal appointment. The former secretary may continue to live in Washington for a few months.

WASHINGTON SILENT DURING BURIAL RITES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Silence prevailed throughout Washington today for five minutes as the funeral service for Warren G. Harding was held in Marion. On the east steps of the Capitol, where Mr. Harding had taken the Presidential oath, a bugler sounded "taps" and the call was picked up and echoed by trumpeters in other sections of the city. Street cars stopped, telephone service was suspended, electric power was shut off—for five minutes practically all activity was at a halt and men, women and children on the streets stood with heads bowed. During the day business houses and theaters were closed, as were government offices. Golf links were deserted, the municipal bathing beach was closed and no baseball games were played.

Total water-power resources of the United States is estimated at 50,000,000 horsepower.

Unknown Dog Appoints Self as Vault Guardian

Love of Animals is Sensed Even in Death

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—Warren Harding is asleep for eternity in the heart of his home city and his memory lives in the hearts of his old neighbors even more vividly than ever before. His body rests in the receiving vault in the city cemetery until a permanent tomb is erected. The President of the United States, Chief Justice Taft, the Cabinet and those most noted in the life of America came to pay their greatest honors at his bier but every resident of Marion participated in the simple rites which committed the remains of the former President to its sepulcher.

More than 100,000 persons came to Marion today to honor the late executive and the arrangements made at Mrs. Harding's request were perfectly carried out. The masses of people were all without confusion and the brief and simple services at the cemetery voiced in every way the personal tribute to the favorite son of Marion as a neighbor and friend that had gone far but never changed.

WIDOW FIRM

Mrs. Harding stood the ordeal with fortitude and emerged from the vault erect and firm and walked slowly to her motor car accompanied by Secretary Christian. She left Marion at 7 o'clock to adjust her furnishings and property in the White House and to turn it over promptly to President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Her plans for the immediate future are indefinite and she may travel a good deal until she is able to take over her old home in Marion when the present lease expires in about a year and a half. This she explained today as the reason why she was loaning Laddie Boy to Harry Barker, who was personal secret service man to the late President. Barker loves the Airedale and will take good care of him and return him to Mrs. Harding when she has re-established her home in Marion.

DOG PAYS HONOR

President Harding was noted for his love of dogs and a significant incident at the cemetery services this afternoon much impressed Mrs. Harding. The unusual action of a black and white fox terrier convinced her beyond a doubt this dog knew that some one who loved dogs was about to take up a new abode and that he would stand by. No one knows where the fox terrier came from, but when first seen he walked alongside of the honorary pallbearers as they approached the vault. When the casket was placed at rest outside of the vault the dog skirted the casket in a friendly inquiry and then inspected the vault.

Satisfied that all was as it should be he came back to the door of the vault and laid down. He stayed there throughout the ceremony and had to be coaxed outside when the casket was finally placed inside. A half-hour later when the vault had been sealed and the guard established the fox terrier was sitting on the outside of the door in the middle of the threshold apparently on guard. When the members of the party finally left he was still faithful to his self-appointed vigil.

OFFICIALS PRESENT

President Coolidge and the members of his party arrived from Washington in a special train in time to take part in the funeral exercises and practically all the Washington officials who were not already in Marion came on this train. President Coolidge and former President Taft now chief justice of the Supreme Court followed the casket together. Mrs. Coolidge stood to the right of Mrs. Harding throughout the service and accompanied by the President followed Mrs. Harding and Secretary Christian in inspection of the vault and the casket after it had been finally placed therein. No others of the party entered the vault and as the funeral party left President and Mrs. Coolidge followed Mrs. Harding from the cemetery.

Before leaving Marion for Washington President Coolidge removed all misunderstanding about the reported termination of the detail of Maj. Baldinger as military aide to the President and authorized a statement that Maj. Baldinger could remain as long as he cared to do so, this was in answer to rumors of resentment for the asserted orders terminating the detail of the military aide, effective on his reaching Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Remsberg and their daughters of Santa Ana will return to California Sunday after day or two of rest and a visit with the members of her family, Mrs. Remsberg, who has lived for seventeen years in California, was one of the President's favorite sisters and was one of the last members of the family to be with him before his death.

GREAT LEVIATHAN MOURNS

Mighty Vessel Halts in Mid-Ocean as Passengers Pay Respects to Departed President

[BY WIRELESS TO ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ABOARD THE STEAMSHIP LEVIATHAN, Aug. 10.—In the mid-Atlantic, long leagues from that little churchyard in Ohio where Warren G. Harding went to rest today, a few hundred Americans paused in the setting sun and breathed out upon the waters a fervent farewell to his spirit.

Nor were the Americans alone in their grief, although theirs, the loss of a friend more intimate, may have been the more poignant. Nationals of a score of other nations prayed also, from the wealthy ones in luxurious upper-deck suites to the humble immigrants down in the steerage.

FAVORITE HYMN PLAYED

The ceremonies were impressive as the steamer slackened speed at the funeral hour. A ship's band played the late President's hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light."

Secretary of Labor Davis eulogized his departed chief as "my friend." There was prayer; a few moments of meditation. Then the proud vessel dipped her colors; the band on the bridge played "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and the grouped passengers dispersed to scatter along the rails, silent, gazing westward.

Secretary Davis told of having visited in London the great cathedral of St. Paul's and [illegible] in a dark corner a tablet inscribed with the name of [illegible] architect.

"There lies Sir Christopher [illegible] if you would see his monument, look above you," he said, [illegible] stone.

LASTING MONUMENT

Said Mr. Davis: "If you [illegible] to find the monument of [illegible] parted President when you [illegible] to America, look about you [illegible] call the discouragement [illegible] 2,000,000 men who called [illegible] streets without work a few [illegible] months ago. marks weekly to the men who demanded 20 gold marks.

"Nearly all the Hamburg shipyards are closed because the managers have been unable to accede to the workers' demands for immediate increases in wages. Among the workers generally there is a disposition to take recourse to strikes unless wages are substantially increased. Even in the big victories where strikes have not occurred there is a disposition to adopt the tactics of "sabotage," or passive resistance.

The average wage of the workers is between ten and fifteen gold marks monthly, but butter, for example, costs one million paper marks per pound.

A proclamation issued by President Ebert this evening forbids the circulation of pamphlets demanding the overthrow of the constitutional government or incitements to acts of violence or acts that are likely to endanger public order.

The penalty mentioned in the proclamation for violation of the decree is three months' imprisonment and a fine not exceeding 500,000,000 marks.

Premiums of 100 per cent were paid freely on the Bourse today for paper marks, which now are so scarce that a man with a checkbook does not hesitate to pay for them at the rate of two for one.

BANKS CLOSE DOORS

The Reichsbank and all the big and little private banks locked their gates at noon to escape the long lines of clamoring patrons.

While the currency shortage is not void of humorous phases, it nevertheless is contributing a serious aspect to the prevailing nervousness and irritability since it is inconveniencing the workers and middle classes who are accustomed to ready cash.

The Prussian government today was unable to mobilize enough currency to meet its police pay roll and the officers are now in much the same plight as tourists, who are unable to lay their hands on sufficient currency to pay their hotel bills and railroad fares.

The General Electric Company was the first of the big industrial plants to organize a food distributing bureau for the benefit of its employees.

NEW RECORD SEEN IN RAIL OPERATIONS

Greatest Efficiency to Meet Increased Trade is Pointed Out by Paper

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—What is called probably the greatest increase in operating efficiency in the history of railroads to care for an increase in freight business almost as large as any the roads have ever known, is occurring at present, the Railway Age points out.

The article states that between 1910 and 1913 the increase in freight business was about 47,000,000,000 tons carried one mile and between 1913 and 1916 about 45,500,000,000 tons carried one mile, adding that the increase between 1920 and 1923 is comparable with these two periods.

"The business of 1920 broke all records and was followed in 1921 and 1922 by heavily reduced traffic. Up to and including the week ending July 21, last, the number of cars of freight hauled was 11¼ per cent greater than in the corresponding part of 1920."

Crowds Assemble Around Organ at Balboa Park; Southland Pays Undying Memorial

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 10.—Their heads bowed in sorrow, paying a last tribute of love and honor to the memory of the dead President, thousands of San Diegans attended memorial services this afternoon at the organ pavilion in Balboa Park. All public buildings and departments throughout the city were closed today and all activities at the Army, Navy and Marine Corps bases were suspended. All flags flew at half mast.

An impressive tribute to the memory of Warren G. Harding was given by Senator Shortridge who delivered the memorial address at the park services, and visiting officers of the various branches of the nation's defense forces, and gave brief tributes of the late of his command.

The musical part of the services included two funeral marches and the National Anthem. The United States Marine band provided music, supplemented by the outdoor organ. Ernestine Schumann Heink sang an aria of comfort and one of the great oratorios. Then the singing of "America," and "Lead Kindly Light," under the direction of Wallace Moody was a feature of the services.

Many ministers took part in the services. The official phase of the services was opened by Rev. W. E. Crabtree of Central Methodist Church, read the Scripture from the Bible used by Gen. Grant when he took the oath of office as President of the United States. The Bible had not been used since it was brought to this country by the general's son, Rev. F. F. Grant.

A public hall for the assembled throng in prayer and Chaplain Rev. Brewer pronounced the benediction.

The ceremonies began at 3 o'clock. Long before that hour the available seating capacity of the park enclosure was filled. Hundreds were obliged to stand and were willingly, eager to join in the singer's tribute to the late Executive.

SANTA PAULA'S TRIBUTE

SANTA PAULA, AUG. 10.—Santa Paula's memorial services for Warren G. Harding was one of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," was given by a county-wide chorus and orchestra at the open-air auditorium of the high school athletic field last night. The chorus was under the oratorio in all of the cities of Ventura county, and since the date for its production in Santa Paula fell on the day of Harding's funeral, it was determined to make of the presentation a fitting memorial service.

Following the rendition of the chorus, appropriate memorial services were voiced. "Lead Kindly Light" was sung by the chorus, the audience joining in. The Rev. J. J. Patrick, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, presided.

From 11 o'clock until 2 all business was suspended. Special memorial services were conducted at the Presbyterian Church at 1 o'clock. A large portrait of Harding, draped in mourning together with the national colors, stands in the lobby of the postoffice and tributes of flowers were placed before it by citizens.

BRING ROSES

PASADENA, Aug. 10.—Ten thousand Pasadenans bowed their heads in sorrow and joined the nation in a reverent tribute to the late President today. Impressive services were conducted at the Library Park this afternoon. Attending were Pasadenans of every denomination united in a community service for their departed leader. Pasadena wept with the nation as the body of the former President was lowered into the grave at Marion, O.

Surrounding a large portrait of the dead President which was draped in black crepe, were banks of roses. Every one of the throng of 10,000 people gathered to do honor brought a rose bloom and laid it on the grass beneath the portrait.

Following a funeral march played by a Pasadena band the gathering joined in singing "Nearer My God to Thee." A number of scripture texts were read by Rev. Leslie Learned and a prayer was offered by Rev. Richard W. Abberly. The Lord's Prayer was repeated by the gathering.

Leslie B. Henry, international trustees of the Kiwanis Club, made the principal address. His subject was "The Grief of a Nation." He said in part:

"As with reverent hands the friends and neighbors are laying away in native soil today, all that is of this earth of Warren G. Harding, we of this nation are here to pay honor to one for whom we feel a peculiar sadness and grief.

"It is a tragedy that this man should be cut down in the prime of life, the prime of his career. He is one who gave to the nation of his best, he sacrificed his personal feelings, his physical well-being that the nation might be served, and it is with a feeling of more than grief that we mourn today for a man who should not have died."

"The Consolation of Faith" was the subject taken by Rev. Daniel F. Fox. Taps was sounded by an American Legion bugler and the benediction offered by Rev. James Leishman.

BELLS TOLL

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 10.—With church bells tolling, thousands of San Bernardino Valley residents stood with bowed heads this afternoon at the memorial services in memory of the late President conducted in Pioneer Park.

The city was stilled for the services and for blocks the voices of the mourners singing "Nearer My God to Thee," could be heard. Flags were at half-mast and draped buildings bespoke the sorrow of the citizens.

In a brief eulogy the Rev. W. C. Loomis, pastor of the First Methodist Church, recounted incidents in the life of Harding following his footsteps to the White House. "The White House was the house beside the road," the minister said. A quartet sang "Lead Kindly Light."

Industry halted and all business houses closed between 2 and 5 o'clock, the hours of the services.

FRESNO MOURNS

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—Thousands of Fresnans, like millions in other cities of the nation, today bowed their heads in reverance to the memory of the late President, and throughout the day the entire city was hushed.

Every business house, factory and place of amusement was closed, the only business being conducted being that of a few restaurants. Memorial services were begun with church services this morning. Patriotic services attracted hundreds to the Courthouse Park this afternoon. The day of mourning was brought to a close tonight with a great union memorial service at the Courthouse with all churches of the city participating.

Other cities of Fresno county generally observed the day of mourning by closing all business houses and conducting special memorial services.

GLENDALE CLOSES

GLENDALE, Aug. 10.—All stores, realty offices and city departments were closed today. Memorial services were conducted at six of the churches this morning and the theaters were closed during the daylight hours. At 1 o'clock buglers stationed at the intersection of the principal streets, Brand Boulevard and Broadway, sounded taps, and a firing squad fired a final salute in honor of President Harding.

AT SANTA BARBARA

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 10.—Thousands of Santa Barbara residents turned out today to attend the memorial services here. The services were conducted on State street, the main business thoroughfare, in front of the Federal Building, where on a sloping lawn the people of the city had been laying flowers in memory of the President for the past few days.

The eulogy was delivered by State Senator F. A. Arbuckle, the Grand Army, Spanish War Veterans and American Legion were out in force and every civil organization attended. A male quartet sang "Lead, Kindly Light."

FLORAL OFFERING

POMONA, Aug. 10.—With all Pomona in mourning and with special services throughout the day by various churches and organizations, the general community services were conducted in front of the Y.M.C.A. Building at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

A large photograph of the late President was draped in black and beside it stood a large silk flag also draped in black. A soldier and sailor flanked it with fixed bayonets. Near by was a huge floral piece of red, white and blue flowers bearing the words "Our President." From all directions people came, with bouquets to pay their last respects.

Mayor Thomas R. Ovington, bearing a black wreath in his hand, offered it as a tribute from the people of Pomona. He said:

"With the greatest love and the deepest sorrow and on behalf of all the people of Pomona I place this wreath as a tribute in affectionate remembrance of our beloved late President of the United States, Warren G. Harding."

The throng then sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee." After a prayer had been offered by Rev. Samuel G. Buckner of the First Christian Church, taps was sounded by a bugler.

PACK HIGH SCHOOL

ORANGE, Aug. 10.—With the Orange High School auditorium packed, Orange today paid tribute to the memory of the late President.

Business throughout the city halted at noon for the remainder of the day, while hundreds of citizens repaired to the auditorium services.

The program opened with the audience joining in the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" accompanied by the high school pipe organ. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. F. Burelbach, followed by the scriptural lesson by Mrs. F. E. Hallman, a reading of excerpts from President Harding's last address by the Rev. M. L. Pearson and the principal address by Rev. Perry W. Clarkson. Then the audience sang "Lead, Kindly Light." A bugle, sounded, taps to concluded the services.

SANTA ANA RITES

SANTA ANA, Aug. 10.—Public offices, banks and business houses of Santa Ana were closed today while thousands of residents gathered to pay tribute to the memory of the late President. The Santa Ana Post, American Legion, conducted memorial services last night, and the Santa Ana Lions' Club devoted its luncheon meeting yesterday to a memorial to President Harding, who was a charter member of the Lions' Club of Marion, O.

While memorial services were conducted at various churches throughout the country this afternoon, probably the largest service was at Birch Park, with nearly all of the city churches participating. Addresses based upon the Christian character of President Harding were delivered by Judge W. H. Thomas and L. A. West. Others participating were Rev. Moffett Rhodes, Rev. Otto S. Russell, Rev. H. G. Burgess, Rev. F. T. Porter and a male quartet consisting of Maurice Phillips, J. H. Hughes, Melvin Beatty and Cecil Birtcher.

HUNTINGTON PARK

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 10. This city today listened to a eulogy delivered by a minister who heard the last public address of the late President in Seattle. This was Rev. D. J. Brigham, pastor of the South Gate Community Church, who delivered a short talk at the services here this morning.

On the platform with the local speaker was the Rev. N. Zulch, pastor of the First Christian Church, who also knew the President, and Rev. Harry Gray, pastor of St. Clement's Episcopal Church. Mr. Gray is acquainted with President Calvin Coolidge and graduated from Amherst five years later than the new President.

During the services a 12-year-old girl was overcome by the heat and fell to the lawn. She was carried into the shade and revived.

FITTING MEMORIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 10.—The citizens of Alhambra today bowed in reverence to the memory of Warren G. Harding, the official tribute of the community to the late President being paid at impressive yet simple memorial services at the high school auditorium this morning. A thousand people attended the gathering which had been arranged by the ministerial association, headed by Rev. John M. Barnhart.

The singing of hymns, short addresses by local clergymen, placing of the colors by men of the American Legion Post, and the sounding of "taps" comprised a service which was unique in the history of the city.

From 10 o'clock until noon every place of business in the city was closed, many were closed the entire day.

Last Editorial of Harding Was on Home-coming

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—Warren G. Harding's last editorial in the Marion Daily Star, strangely enough, was on home-coming. It appeared July 5, 1922.

"While Marion is celebrating the centennial of the city's founding," wrote Mr. Harding, "it is fine to rejoice in the coming together again to find happiness in the exchange of sentiments born of home-coming, to recall the pride in things accomplished, and, above all else, appraise the qualities of men and measures which made us what we are today. The latter is essential to the preparedness for greater progress in the future.

"Sturdy men pioneered the way to early settlement—and sturdy women, too. They blazed the way of development in Ohio and sent many of their sons and daughters to the peaceful conquest of the greater West—the Mississippi and Missouri valleys. Resolute and able men made secure the social order here and simple and courageous men blended determination with genius and made the industrial beginning. They had little of wealth, but they wrought wealth out of opportunity. Only a few knew their struggles, their sacrifices, but honesty, simplicity, industry, capacity and determination are known to have been the chief essentials of their success. These make for success anywhere, and are available to all who aspire."

TEXAS SHOWS GRIEF

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DALLAS (Tex.) Aug. 10.—Memorial addresses for President Harding in many city parks, stilled from the usual chatter and frolic of children and sport-loving grown-ups, after sundown this evening, reverently closed Texas's day of mourning.

London Mourns as American City for Harding

Rulers and Tourists Mingle at Memorials

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Not only the United States, but the entire civilized world paid homage to the memory of the late President Harding today. Memorial services were held in churches from London to Constantinople and from Buenos Aires to Sydney, Australia.

London mourned for the head of the American nation as if it were an American city. All over town flags flew at half-mast and on every public building the Union Jack flew at half-mast as a sign of mourning. The Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes flew side by side at half-mast over the famous Westminster Abbey and the great Union Jack over Victoria Tower of the House of Lords, flapped in the breeze in honor of the dead President.

The great event of the day was a memorial service at Westminster Abbey; the first occasion, it is said, on which England's premier shrine was used for a service to honor a foreign ruler. The service was conducted by Canon Carnegie, whose wife is an American, and the benediction was said by the Archbishop of Canterbury, who occupied the Episcopal throne throughout the service.

OLD ABBEY FILLED

Every seat in the great church was filled. The nave and lantern were set aside for guests of the American embassy and the diplomatic corps, which was fully represented, and eminent Britons of every walk of life. Inside the sanctuary sat the Duke of York, representing the King; Brig.-Gen. Trotter, representing the Prince of Wales, and Sir Henry Streatfelt, representing Queen Alexandria.

The rest of the Abbey was thrown open to the house and it was soon so full that it was found necessary to divert the crowd to St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, where additional services were held.

Draped in black and silver hangings, the deepest mourning, the American Pro-Cathedral and the Holy Trinity in Paris gathered 3000 Americans under its Gothic arches for a memorial service to the departed American President.

Bishop G. H. Kinsolving, in charge of the European district of the Methodist Church, conducted the service before a crowd of officials of all nations and hundreds of Americans visiting Europe. J. J. Jusserand, French ambassador to the United States, Hugh Wallace, Col. House, Frank Munsey and Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth were among the many well-known figures present in private capacities.

TAPS AT FAMED SPOT

President Millerand and Premier Poincare were represented, while Minister of War Magninot and two generals made up the French official group. Diplomatic representatives of every nation in the world which has an embassy, legation or consulate were crowded in the nave of the church.

Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, accompanied by his daughter and secretary, represented the President's official family.

At the hour the last rites for President Harding were held in Marion, American former soldiers in Paris paid tribute at a gathering in the Place de La Concorde, facing west with solemnly bared heads while a guard from the Paris post of the American Legion dipped the colors and a bugler played taps.

A crowded memorial service for President Harding was held today at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, Australia. Those attending included Lord Forster, the Governor-General; Sir Walter Davidson, governor of New South Wales; State ministers; the speaker of the legislative assembly; Sir Henry Braddon, Lord Mayor; representatives of the military and naval forces, members of the foreign consulates and representatives of the principal public institutions.

The American Society and the English-Speaking Union organized a service at which all the leading Americans here were present, including Consul-General Lawton and Vice-Consul Mosely.

HARDING EULOGIZED

Archbishop Wright preached the funeral oration at the public service. He said that President Harding had all the attributes of true greatness, combined with simplicity of character, a far-reaching grasp of public affairs, the vision to see the inherent need of humanity in his own country, the courage to enunciate it and the directness of purpose to carry it through. He asserted that President Harding embodied the noblest and best traditions binding the British Empire and the United States.

In the Near East, at Constantinople, throughout the American colony, the Stars and Stripes flew at half-mast. Rev. Dr. Ryan, an American missionary, conducted services at the American Embassy building, which were attended by members of the American colony, generals of the Inter-Allied army of occupation and the Turkish diplomatic corps.

Americans in Berlin, including Ambassador Houghton, President Ebert of the German republic and many other prominent Germans attended memorial services for the departed American leader.

In Mexico City and in Buenos Aires all official and virtually all business activities were suspended while the people paid tribute to the memory of Mr. Harding.

MADRID EMBASSY MOURNING

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

MADRID, Aug. 10.—The American Embassy and Consulate offices in Madrid were closed today for the funeral of President Harding. Hundreds of cards of condolence were left there, however, by diplomats, consuls and prominent personages.

ENGLAND PAYS FINAL TRIBUTE

Special Harding Service in Westminster Abbey

Hundreds Unable to Get in Stand Outside

American Colors Are Flown at Half-Mast

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LONDON, Aug. 10.—While America today paid her last tributes to Warren G. Harding, England mourned him as if he had been her own. Her chief expression of sympathy and grief was in a stately ceremonial service in Westminster Abbey—an official function at which high officers of state in their regalia and American officials abroad in formal attire sat side by side with American tourists in expressing the common sorrow for the departed President.

Hundreds of American and British applicants who had to be refused tickets to the service because of the limited space, went to the Abbey and remained outside in a silent throng until the ceremonial was over and then attended a special memorial service at St. Margaret's Church for those who could not be accommodated in the cathedral.

In the Abbey services, after the congregation had joined in the singing of "Lead, Kindly Light," Canon Carnegie delivered a brief and impressive address.

TIES OF KINSHIP

"Two great nations connected by intimate ties of kinship and fellowship," he said, "stand in spirit by his graveside today. It is fitting that in this church, which is the central shrine of our parent lineage, Americans and English should unite in giving religious expression to the sentiments of good will, sympathy and solitude which are aroused.

"A great Englishman once asked that over his grave these words should be inscribed: 'Here lies a man who tried to do his duty.' President Harding was such a man and Britons and Americans alike recognized him as such and by honoring him revealed themselves in fundamental unity with each other."

The Duke of York, representing King George, had the place of honor in the sanctuary with Post Wheeler, counselor of the American Embassy, near by, and with British, American and foreign persons of note seated in the choir stalls.

NOTABLES ARE PRESENT

The congregation included the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Robert Cecil, Lord Desborough, Lady Lee of Fareham, the High Commissioners of the British dominions and colonies, including Lucien Pacaud, representing Peter C. Larkin, the Canadian High Commissioner; Sir John Henry, accompanied by Lady Geddes, representing the British Ambassador to the United States; Sir Auckland Geddes, who is ill. The Prime Minister, the members of the Cabinet, the Anglo-American organizations in London and the American clubs and societies throughout England also were represented.

These services were not England's only tributes to the memory of President Harding. King George's racing yacht Brittania did not take part in the Cowes regatta events today and the ensign of the Royal Yacht squadron was half-masted as were the colors of the other yachts in the solent, many of which flew the American flag. Throughout the British navy the American colors were displayed at half-mast, while throughout London and the provincial cities the American emblem flew at half-staff.

Southland Thousands Bare Heads in Memory of Late President

CITY HUSHED AS MEMORIAL

Wheels of Industry Stop as Crowds Pray

Municipal Rites Conducted at Pershing Square

Church Bells Toll, Eulogies Are Pronounced

Warren Gamaliel Harding possessed every quality of a thoroughly good man; and, although the time has not come for proper estimation, history will undoubtedly place him in the category of the really great men of all times.

"The most fitting and enduring monument which this country can erect to the honor of President Harding," he said, "will be to proceed with his plans for a World Court. Such a monument will outlast the most lasting shaft of marble and will make his name i nhistory, synonomous with the abolition of war and the establishment of justice to even the smallest nations."

BEGINS WITH PARADE

Dr. Francis was introduced to the thousands assembled at Pershing Square by Mayor Cryer immediately following the five-minute period in silence. The civic ceremonies began with a parade, starting at the corner of First and Broadway at promptly 12:30 o'clock. A detachment of the 160th regiment of the California National Guard, under the command of Lieut. H. Harcourt, led the parade with the flag-draped caisson, followed by a detachment of the United States Marines commanded by Capt. H. W. Webb, the concourse flanked by a squadron of city police, with a detachment of motorcycle police leading and clearing the way.

The procession went west on Broadway to Sixth, from Sixth to Olive and thence to the center of Pershing Square, where Mayor Cryer and Dr. Francis was waiting at the platform in the midst of packed throngs.

The Balfour Octette sang "Lead Kindly Light" at the beginning of the ceremonies and closed by singing "Nearer My God to Thee."

GUARD OF HONOR

The detachment from the 160th regiment was comprised of the picked guard of honor which had been selected as President Harding's body guard at the Ambassador Hotel during his proposed visit to Los Angeles.

Throughout the day a succession of memorial services took place in the city and all Southern California. Among the most impressive ceremonies was the tribute paid to the late President at the City Club by Congressman John D. Fredericks yesterday noon.

"Years hence, when opinion has crystallized into history, it will be written of President Harding that he did more than any other man of his time to steer the nation safely through post-war dangers," Congressman Fredericks declared.

"During the World War we gathered up the powers of government and laid them at the feet of our President," said Capt. Fredericks. "For years past our admiration for 'the big stick' had been growing. Nationally we were leaning toward a dictatorship.

RETURNS POWER

"With the exigency of war ended," he continued, "it was the duty of the President to return to the people the power of government that had been so freely bestowed upon his office.

"That was Harding's task, and when history is written it will not be said of him that he usurped the powers of the other branches of our government.

"Through his able leadership the machinery of war was torn down without disorder or panic and there was established once more a republican form of government, by the people and for the people, which shall not perish from the earth."

A quartet, composed of Melba French Barr, Clemence Gilford Johnson, William Pilcher and Gage Christopher, sang "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Still, Still With Thee." Ruth Blackstone Mitchell sang "Oh, Rest in the Lord." The program opened with "America," sung by the assembly, and ended with The Star-Spangled Banner."

Flinging his challenge in the face of death and declaring that the tomb cannot imprison the immortal souls of the children of God, Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, spoke before members of the Rotary Club at the Alexandria Hotel at noon.

ENDURING MONUMENT

Following invocation by Dr. William H. Moreland, Episcopal bishop of Sacramento, and a musical program rendered by Dick Guyberson's Bob Tribby and the Rotary Club Quartet, President Harry Mason introduced Dr. KleinSmid, who spoke on "Monuments Which Endure." In part Dr. KleinSmid said:

"There is no death. What seems so is transition. Even with the announcement of the news of our beloved President's passing, the people, generally, were somewhat consoled by their faith in immortality, based on the facts of nature, the conclusions of science, scriptural revelation and the witness of the soul itself.

"Many volumes have been written by learned men on the subject of the life to come but none has sounded a truer note than that contained in the statement that our departed leader was an exemplar of the acquirement and use of those great characteristics of heart and mind which are not only a lasting blessing to the children of men but which entitle the soul that manifests them to a place in the ranks of immortals.

"Simplicity, sincerity, sympathy and a kindly conservatism marked the private and public life of this great man," said the speaker. "He exemplified the rare quality of simplicity at every turn and his integrity and honesty of purpose were never doubted by those who knew him.

ALWAYS SYMPATHETIC

"Warren G. Harding was a sympathetic man. Lover and in a measure understood by everyone who knew him, and especially by the members of his own household and the people of his home city, his ear ever open to listen to the claims and requests of those who looked to him for sympathy and help. Show me the man who has no sympathy in his soul, who does not feel the sadness and the gladness of his fellow-beings and I will show you a man who lives meanly in a very small world, steeped in personal selfishness.

"Kind and just in his dealings with all, the life of Mr. Harding was marked by a quiet dignity and a conservatism which well becomes the leader of a nation. No man ever spoke clearer or truer regarding the Constitution and its fundamental meanings. He had no wish to tinker with the established forms of our government. He walked confidently but carefully and slowly. He considered the Constitution too sacred a thing to be handled lightly and he did not deem it wise to risk the shaking of the stability of our government to please the whims of politicians and reformers.

"While he was a man of strong convictions, and was never willing to sacrifice principle for peace, President Harding, like all truly great men, made war on war because he knew its cost in pain and hate. Whatever else may be said of him he will always be revered as the man whose genius brought the United States to the expression of its belief that the time has come when men should live on the basis of brotherly love.

MILLIONS MOURN

"It has been said that republics are ungrateful, yet today 100,000,000 people of America bow their heads in sorrow for the loss of their leader and express their appreciation of a great life passed in the service of the nation. In this love of him whom we have 'lost awhile' and in the understanding of the meaning of his life, let us hold fast to those principles that made our leader great and consecrate our own lives to the service of our kind."

More than 5000 persons assembled at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater in the morning to join in the impressive program in memory of the late President. Each of the 4000 seats in the large auditorium was occupied and fully o thousand persons stood in the aisles and in the rear.

One of the features of the program was the playing of "Ave Maria" by twenty-seven violinists.

Another impressive feature came with the brief address by Mr. Will G. Farrell, representing the Chamber of Commerce at the program. Mr. Farrell has but one leg and as he stood or moved about on his crutches, his shadow played over the large crayon picture of the late President in the background, as though it were the ghost of a veteran soldier returned from the Great Beyond, thus to add his token of respect to the man who had tried to lead America into the World Court and out of the wilderness of war. Many viewing this picture were forced to choke back a sob, while tears streamed down the cheeks of many.

The nature of the entire program was indicated in the fact that of the gathering only three persons left before the program was completed.

There was a great hush over the auditorium from opening to close and throughout the people sat with bowed heads, raising them only as the entire audience rose to sing "Nearer, My God, to Thee" at the close.

DISPLAY PORTRAIT

The program opened with the soft playing of chimes on the organ. This was followed a short span later by the soft, slow raising of the front curtain. The back curtain was then drawn back, even more slowly, showing a life-size crayon picture of the late President. The picture was draped with the American flag and drapery and wreaths were hung about near by.

Following the chimes the Funeral March from Chopin was played by the orchestra of seventy pieces. A sextette of male and female voices then sang "Lead, Kindly Light."

Dr. James A. Francis, pastor of the First Baptist Church, delivered a short address. He said that Warren G. Harding was the President of the United States, not of any particular class, and that he had a sympathetic ear and understanding for all classes. He said his administration was marked by justice and sympatny and that he stood out as a great President beyond a background of giants.

The theater was then darkened and Henry Murtagh at the organ played "Rock of Ages." The twenty-seven violinists then appeared in black gowns and offered a beautiful rendition of "Ave Maria" by Schubert.

RENDERS SOLO

Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California eulogized the late President, who, he said, died under the strain and stress of public service, but will live as a great public servant in the memory of men and must be marked among the martyred Presidents.

Miss Marjorie Dodge rendered a soprano solo, I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," from "The Messiah." The orchestra then offered a symphony. "Beautiful Isle" was sung by a girl's quartette.

Will G. Farrell then spoke. He said that the greatest memorial the nation can erect to Warren Gamaliel Harding is not a granite shaft, but the carrying out of the work he was engaged in when he died — leading America into the World Court.

The program concluded with the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" by the choir and with the entire audience joining in. The program opened at 11:30 a.m. and was concluded a few minutes before 1 p.m.

AT UNIVERSITY

Honoring the memory of a Christian gentleman as well as that of a beloved President of the United States, faculty and summer session students of the University of Southern California gathered yesterday afternoon in Bovard Auditorium for a memorial service that was also a neighborhood memorial. Several hundred people of the community joined the university folk in paying tribute to the memory of Warren G. Harding.

The funeral march, played on the pipe organ by Miss Julia Howell of the college of music, opened the solemn service. Dr. Ralph Tyler Flewelling reading the Scripture lesson and offering the opening prayer. Dr. Lester Burton Rogers, dean of the summer session, presided. "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" was sung by Miss Gladys Grace Hill.

An intimate touch was added to the service in the address of Dr. William Paxton Burris, dean of the college of teachers, University of Cincinnati, who had attended many educational conferences in which President Harding, then an Ohio State official, had participated. Dean Burris spoke at length upon the interest Mr. Harding had shown in educational work and his kindly spirit of co-operation.

Dr. Brown, pastor of the University Methodist Church, paid tribute to the character of Mr. Harding as a Christian gentleman as well as that of a President and said that it was a fitting tribute that the entire American people stopped to pay homage to him as a citizen as well as a President.

Dr. Ezra Healy, dean emeritus of the college of theology, closed the service with a benediction.

MORE

Thousands gathered in and around the municipal auditorium on the Ocean Front at Ocean park to honor the memory of the late President in special services in the afternoon. The three cities of Santa Monica, Ocean Park and Venice united in the services.

Just before the citizens of all the bay cities had paid a five-minute tribute when all traffic was halted, and pedestrians stood with bared heads.

UNION SERVICE

The speakers at the union service included Mayor Berkeley of Santa Monica, Rev. W. F. Nichols, Rev. W. M. Pierson, Rev. William L. Barch, Rev. E. F. Dates and Rev. Father M. L. Hennessy. The combined bands of Venice and Santa Monica provided appropriate music.

A special service also was conducted at 2:30 p.m. at the Pacific Palisades summer school and Chautauqua in Temescal Canyon. Former Gov. Stephens, a personal friend of the late President, made the address. Music was furnished by the Pacific Palisades quartet. Practically all of the stores and business houses of the bay cities were closed during the entire day.

In memoriam to the dead President, once a printer, more than 1200 of Los Angeles printers and their families assembled at 1 p.m. in the Bible Institute to hear a brief service conducted by Rev. F. W. Farr, a Biptist minister of the city, and to listen to appropriate musical selections upon the chimes and the organ. The service was completed shortly before 2 p.m. and the crowd quietly dispersed.

"He caught the torch and held it high. Our hands have caught it. Shall we let it fall?" Ten thousand citizens of Long Beach listened in impressive silence to this appeal yesterday from Congressman Walter F. Lineberger, at a memorial service for the late President in Lincoln Park.

The Congressman urged the people to build in themselves and through their lives a living monument to the President, by emulating his devotion to the principles of character and of this country's government.

The assemblage included most of the visiting Congressional committee on Naval Affairs, and a large delegation from the Pacific Fleet, headed by Admiral Coontz. The admiral and two of the Congressmen made brief addresses.

Congressman George E. Darrow of Philadelphia and Congressman James O'Connor of New Orleans united in eloquent tributes to the memory of their fallen leader.

The services were opened with prayer by Rev. H. K. Booth of the First Congregational Church, and Dr. George D. Knights read a portion of Scripture. The crowd joined in singing "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Mayor Buffum presided. Long Beach business houses were closed, most of them for the entire day.

Thousands of Hollywood citizens paid tribute. Approximately 2500 mourners gathered in the Hollywood American Legion Stadium at 10:30 a.m., where services marked with simplicity and solemnity were conducted under the direction of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce.

READS LAST SPEECH

The ceremony was opened by the Rev. John E. Fry. President Coolidge's proclamation calling all American citizens to their places of worship for quiet prayer and meditation in memory of the deceased President was read by the Rev. John MacAllister. The Rev. Dr. William H. Rodgers gave a reading from the Scripture.

Led by Ralph Laughlin, the congregation sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Dr. James Hamilton Lash offered a prayer.

The last public speech of President Harding, delivered by his Secretary in Hollywood Bowl on the afternoon of the 2nd inst., when the international traveling Beauseant was presented to the Hollywood Commandery, Knights Templar, was read by Henry Herbert, character actor.

In an address the Rev. Dr. W. F. Richardson extolled the efforts of the late President, which so overtaxed his strength that death claimed him. Buglers sounded taps.

Hundreds of Masons gathered at the Hollywood Masonic Temple to pray for the departed President, a member of Marion Commandery, No. 26, Knights Templar who was to have been their guest of honor on the 2nd inst.

MASONS GATHER

Under the leadership of former Chief Prelate of the State of Ohio the Rev. Dr. Frank Roudenbush, members of the Hollywood Commandery expressed their sorrow in secret service and Masonic ritual.

Special memorial services were conducted in practically every Hollywood Church between 10:30 and 12 noon. Bishop Irving S. Cooper officiated at the service at St. Alban's Pro-Cathedral or Argyle avenue. The Fifth Church of Christ Scientist on Edgemont street conducted its memorial service at 11 o'clock.

The Rev. Father Patrick J. Connannon conducted mass at 7 a.m. at the church of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. Temple Beth-El members worshipped in their new synagogue.

The Levitical benediction in the original Hebrew was chanted by Evangelist Philip Sidersky at a memorial service yesterday afternoon at Echo Park. This benediction is recorded in Numbers V:, 24-26, and it is chanted by the Jewish people in their synagogue services, and this benediction was also pronounced by the Rev. Freeman Anderson at the funeral services that were conducted in Washington for the late President Harding.

PATRIOTS ASSEMBLE

The memorial service was largely attended by Jews and Gentiles. After prayer, Evangelist Sidersky related some facts about President Harding. One of them was that Harding was a man for peace and the other one was his friendly interest toward the Jews, and he quoted a letter which President Harding sent out over a year ago to the press as a New Year's greeting to the Jews at the time of the beginning of the Jewish New Year. "As long as a man of such high-minded purposes, fidelity and consecrated sincerity can be found, this country need have no fear of drifting away from ideals set forth in its Constitution by its founders," declared Rev. D. P. Stanton at the memorial service yesterday afternoon for President Harding by the Federated Patriotic Societies of Los Angeles at Patriotic Hall, 1816 South Figueroa street.

Tracing his life from his school days, Dr. Stanton described the gradual development of the late President and pointed out the many epoch-making events in which he played a prominent part. The President's love of justice and his abiding faith in the Constitution were stressed by Dr. Stanton.

The meeting, which was attended by veterans of three wars and representatives of the various patriotic organizations of the city, was opened by the audience standing for five minutes bowed in silent prayer for the country's dead Executive.

Following Dr. Stanton, who was the principal speaker at the services, C. E. Adams, chairman of the committee of the California department of the Grand Army of the Republic which was appointed to present the President with an American flag on his expected visit in this city, made his report.

Mr. Adams stated that when the President became sick and was forced to cancel his engagements in Los Angeles, the flag was taken to San Francisco and presented to the President nine hours before he died.

Memorial services were conducted at Universal City at 1 o'clock yesterday, with about 1000 motion-picture folk in attendance. Rev. Neal Dodd read a few scripture passages and gave a short talk on the late President, his Christian principles, the loss to nation and world which his death means.

WIDOW RETURNS TO WASHINGTON

Former Funeral Train for Sad Journey

Mrs. Harding Not Certain About Future Plans

Cabinet Members Accompany Her to Capital

[BY A. P. DIRECT WIRE]

MARION, Aug. 11.—A special train left Marion for Washington. It was the first train in the history of Marion, except for one coach that left San Francisco exactly one year ago today, the same train that crossed the continent to the national capital, and, after a stop there of less than twenty-four hours, ran on to its destination here. The satire action known by the name of "the funeral train." The coach has been taken away. The train brought home has been left intact.

The train departed from Marion this evening, never again to be used intact.

WIDOW ON TRAIN

Still there rode in another car tonight a grief-worn woman. She, too, was the same who crossed the continent to the capital, and on to Marion, bearing bravely throughout the ordeal, assuring anxious friends that she was all right, and there was no need for them to worry. This was the first time in the memory of Marion's citizenry that Florence Harding had gone away without Warren.

Mrs. Harding will return now to her home, inconsolable, but beside with friends, and she is going to return to her own home, now leased to friends.

Mrs. Harding insists she and her party shall not be disturbed, but will remain in their residence in accordance with the terms of the agreement she made with them.

There was no one here or at the train who could tell how long Mrs. Harding would remain in Washington. She did not know, but that could be said is that she will return as soon as she could get just her affairs at the White House and have the personal effects of herself and Mr. Harding had learned to love during their residence there removed to some other dwelling possibly to a storage house.

CABINET ON TRAIN

Mrs. Harding was accompanied by a number of those who had made the tour to Alaska as members of the President, and by a number of newspaper men who had come to Marion at her request—to go further to the last, as they had been with her husband on his last journey.

Others also were on the train. They included members of the late President's Cabinet and representative of official Washington who had traveled here or made plans to attend the funeral.

George Christian, Jr., secretary to the late President, went to Marion to aid in her new sorrow, and to remove his effects from the White House executive office where he had served until Harding's death, as secretary to the President.

MEXICO CITY PAYS HONOR TO HARDING

Sister Republic Feels It Has Lost Friend; Flags at Half-Mast Close; Services Conducted

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—Mexico today joined her sister republic in mourning the death of its greatest friend among the United States, the late President Warren G. Harding. The sorrow over the day of mourning was world wide. In Mexico City the flags of American houses, business firms and a great number of Mexican stores closed their doors from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in order to the memory of the late President.

Impressive memorial services were conducted here in the American colony at the Methodist Episcopal Church. Flags were at half-mast, including all the flags and banners over government buildings.

Services in the church were attended by almost the entire colony of importance in Mexico, and those who joined in the services were the prominent Pioneers, Charles B. Stevens, John Barton Payne, Albert Summerlin, United States chargé d'affairs and the embassy staff, Thomas Bowman, consul general in charge, and committees composed of members of the Alan Seeger Post of the American Legion and the American Chamber of Commerce.

The services were conducted by the Rev. William Evans, pastor of the church, the Rev. Mr. Bowman proceeding to the altar from the cathedral.

The Mexican government was represented at the memorial services by Fernando Gonzalez Roa and Ramon Ross, chief of the nation commissioned to receive the foreign diplomats in full uniform also was present. The church was packed.

Brief memorial services were conducted at the Country Club at which colors were delivered by both Mexicans and Americans for "the greatest man who ever lived."

COOLIDGE'S HOME IN TRIBUTE TO HARDING

[BY A. P. DIRECT WIRE]

NORTHAMPTON (Mass.), Aug. 10.—Two thousand persons in this town, the home of President Coolidge, honored the memory of the late President Harding at memorial services this afternoon in John M. Greene Hall, Amherst College, and heard the tribute paid to faith in the man who succeeded him. Rev. Frederick Lynch, well, nationally known author, delivered the address.

NEW EIGHTEEN

EXHIBITIONS TO MARK OPENING

Ed Tufts Will Present New Course to City

Architect of New Links to Drive First Ball

Public Will First Try New Layout Sunday

Local golfers will get their first glimpse of the new Griffith Park municipal course this afternoon when the links will be formally opened with fitting dedication ceremonies. At 1 o'clock Ed Tufts, president of the Southern California Golf Association, will present the new layout to the city, and in turn Mayor Cryer will accept the links, speaking for the golfers of Los Angeles.

George C. Thomas, Jr., a member of the Los Angeles County Club and affiliated with many prominent eastern golf organizations, is the designer of the course. The architect will play a prominent part in the ceremonies this afternoon, and will enjoy the distinct privilege of driving the first ball down the fairway.

Immediately following the dedication festivities a foursome of the south's leading amateurs will tee off on an exhibition match. This quartet will be composed of Norman Macbeth of the Wilshire Country Club, A. D. H. Johnston of Annandale, Willie I. Hunter, Southern California amateur title holder, and George C. Thomas, the course architect.

The amateurs will be followed by a foursome of professionals, Yie Dalberto of the Beverly Hills Club, Mel Smith, popular Pasadena pro; Chick Fraser and Hutt Mayfield, entrants in the recent national open at Inwood, will compose this group.

No admission will be charged the public to witness the exhibitions, and all are cordially invited to attend. The course will not be open to the general public for play until tomorrow, today being reserved for the dedication and exhibition play. Tomorrow, however, golfers are welcome and as many as care to may try the beautiful eighteen-hole layout. A green fee of $1 will be charged those who play the new course, while those content with the old may play for 50 cents.

"TIMES" CUP RACE IS ON FOR TODAY

Seven R-Boats Answer Gun at Noon in Yacht Classic at Harbor

Seven R-class sloops will answer the gun at noon today on Point Fermin in the annual race for The Times trophy, the most spectacular event of the Southern California yachting season. It will be an eighteen-mile jaunt from Point Fermin to Point Vincente and return.

The Times trophy race calls for experienced sailors at the sticks and will be interesting to experienced yachtsmen as well as from a picturesque standpoint. Provided the prevailing westerly breezes are blowing the first leg of the race will be a beat to windward to Point Vincente and then a speedy spinnaker run back home.

The skillful skippers will keep their boats on the edge of the giant kelp beds which skirt the coast along the course, as the weed keeps the water easy as well as giving the boats plenty of wind.

The sloops which will race today include Harry Fisher's new six-meter boat Peggy, skippered by Bert Coleman; Capt. John Barneson's Lady Betty, with Clare Neuner at the tiller; the former San Francisco champion Machree, sailed by Bailey Aggeler; the California, with Newell Logan as skipper; Ben Weston's Angela; the Patricia and the Wasp, both veterans.

If light airs prevails the Peggy should romp home an easy first, while in a strong breeze the California and Patricia will be the favorites. The Patricia, formerly flying the colors of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, will today make her first start under American colors. She is Nicholson-designed, created by the designer of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV, and holds a wonderful record for hard breezes and choppy water.

Tomorrow afternoon the second event of the summer racing season will be run, a free-for-all sloop race. More than thirty R-boats, star-boats and sloops of all classes are expected to start in the event, which will be sailed over a triangular course between the Outer Harbor and Long Beach.

Fair American Racketers to Meet British

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FOREST HILLS (N. Y.) Aug. 10.—Leading women tennis players of America and England will meet here tomorrow on the turf courts in the new stadium at the Westside Club in the first of a series of international team matches. Several matches, five singles and two doubles, will be played for a trophy given by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Two singles matches and a doubles match will be played tomorrow, the remaining three singles and one doubles match to be decided Monday in connection with the opening of the women's national championship.

Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, seven times national champion; Miss Helen Wills, the youthful star of Berkeley, Cal.; Miss Eleanor Goss, one of the leading players in the East this season, and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, a former national title holder, will play for America. Mrs. Wightman, captain of the team, will play only in the doubles, while her team mates will take up the burden in the five singles events.

Against the American stars England will be represented by Miss Kathleen McKane, Mrs. Geraldine Beamish, Mrs. R. C. Clayton and Mrs. Nancy Covell. These players in their first appearance in this country at the recent Seabright games, gave evidence of providing the keenest sort of competition. Miss McKane and Mrs. Beamish are the singles stars, while, paired in the four, make up two of the best women's doubles in the world.

EYES FOCUSED ON TITLE GO

Dundee has Everything to Gain in Bout With Leonard on September Fifth

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—From a New York standpoint, the biggest boxing match ever arranged in recent years is the Benny Leonard-Johnny Dundee bout of September 5.

Both are local boys and both are world's champions, and when they meet at the Yankee Stadium the city will be evenly divided, for both are about equally popular.

Dundee will have everything to gain and nothing to lose—but prestige, of course—in this bout, as it will be at the lightweight limit, 135 pounds, at 2 o'clock on the day of the contest. Dundee is insisting that Leonard weigh in with newspapermen and fans present—not like the private weighing-in that marked the Leonard-Tendler fight—and Benny and his manager, Billy Gibson, have agreed.

CAN'T WIN TITLE

Even should Leonard stop Dundee he won't win the featherweight title, as Benny would have to weigh 126 pounds at 2 o'clock—an impossible weight for him—while Dundee was scaling the same figures.

If Benny puts Johnny away, however, it would not be the first time that he rocked to sleep a champion of that division, as in 1917, shortly after he won the world's lightweight title from Freddie Welsh in nine rounds at Manhattan Casino, the exact date being May 28, he stopped Johnny Kilbane, then the champion in the feather division, in three rounds in Philadelphia.

The match was largely brought about by Dundee's own clamoring for it. He went to record as saying that he was ready to wager $25,000 that he could defeat Leonard in a fifteen-round bout to a decision. Johnny's wife is equally confident. She declares that she is willing to mortgage all the property they own and bet that he can beat Benny.

SET ON BOUT

While working for the Criqui bout, Dundee was so confident of winning this contest that his mind was really set on getting Leonard into the ring with him. He said he was determined to whip the Frenchman so decisively that he would be in a position to demand that Benny give him a chance.

Few, if any, fans looked for Dundee to whip Criqui as decisively as he did—probably no champion in history taking a worse whipping before losing his championship than the game boy from across the big pond.

Leonard was impressive against Tendler, but his victory wasn't as decisive and as impressive as that of Dundee over Criqui.

All the time he was training, Dundee kept saying he was hoping that Leonard would give him a chance. He thinks he will be even faster and stronger for the Leonard bout than he was for Criqui—and he is just as confident he will win on points—although he keeps warning anyone who questions him to look for a surprise.

JOHNSTON ARRANGES TILT

To Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of the Cromwell Club, belongs the credit of matching this pair. Leonard and Dundee have fought eight times already, but never in a decision bout.

This will be the first time that two world's champions have met since Leonard lost on a foul to Jack Britton, then wealterweight champion at the New York Velodrome last June 26.

Four Attempt Swim Across Channel Today

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

DOVER (Eng.) Aug. 10.—Four men will attempt to swim across the English Channel tomorrow, three of them from the English side and the other from the French.

Two of the trio that will start from Dover are Americans and both are from Boston, the city in which Henry Sullivan, who last week became the third man to swim the channel, is a shoe salesman. They are Charles Toth and Sam Richards. Toth made two unsuccessful attempts to swim the channel last year, the first time getting within four miles of his goal and the second time within five miles. Richards surrendered in his attempt when four miles off the Dover coast last year when taken ill with a fit of coughing.

The third man to start from Dover tomorrow is Romeo Maciel of Argentina. It will be his first attempt. Enrique Tirabocchi will start from Calais.

NATIONAL ALLIANCE IMPOSES HEAVY FINES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—The Chicago chapter of the National Sports Alliance today announced that Morrie Schlaiffer and Cowboy Padgett had been fined $250 each as a result of their boxing match Thursday night at Aurora, Ill. The match was awarded to Schlaiffer in the fourth round on a foul after the two had pummeled one another about the ring for ten or eleven minutes and Padgett had at one time fallen outside the ring after a wild rush. The money will be used in buying athletic equipment for the St. Charles school for boys.

EL MONTE TO TACKLE COX-HAAS

Squads Meet Tomorrow at Brookside; Edison Clubs in Second Game

BY JOE BUSH

El Monte and Cox-Haas hold the center of interest in tomorrow's round of play in the Greater Southern California Baseball Association. These two fast squads clash at Brookside Park in the first of a three-game series. The game was scheduled for last Sunday but was postponed out of respect to the memory of the late President Harding.

Two games are scheduled for this afternoon. "Little Napoleon" Stanton's Angelus crew tackles Santa Ana at the White Sox Park in the second game of the series for the Southern California Edison League championship. The Angelus nine won the first game, 9 to 7, last Saturday. The Ben Hurs meet Lankershim in the other game on today.

Manager Carleton's Hollywood Merchants and Jasper's Los Angeles White Sox resume their baseball argument tomorrow at the Sox Park. The colored team won, 3 to 2, last Sunday, but Carleton feels sure his club will even the series tomorrow. Hannah will pitch for Hollywood and either Slowtimer or Lindi will work on the mound for the White Sox. The Kant-Skore Pistons, who stopped the Compton Firemen's winning streak last Sunday, clash with "Butch" Gauntner's Azusa sluggers at Azusa in what is expected to be a fast game.

CITY LEAGUE

Palomar at Montebello.
Barry's Classy Hats at Hynes.
Whittier American Legion at La Habra.
Western Lithograph at Compton.
Fremont W.O.W. at Strauss.
Union Oil vs. El Monte I.O.O.F. at El Monte.
First National Bank at Echo.
W. S. Fiskell vs. C. F. Braun at Alhambra.
Kant-Skore Pistons at Azusa.
Altos Cubs at Downey.
Hill A.C. vs. Vernon Park Art Shop at Ben Hynes No. 1.

SATURDAY GAMES

Ben Hur at Lankershim.
Santa Ana vs. Angelus No. 12 at White Sox Park.

TENNIS AT ECHO PARK

Tennis tournaments for boys, juniors and men will be held at Echo Park Playgrounds next week starting Monday. The entry list for boys will be closed Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, for juniors at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and for men 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Cups and tennis rackets will be the prizes. An entrance fee of 50 cents will be charged.

TWO-CLUB RACE IN COAST LOOP

Seals and Solons Left in Pennant Running

Bay City Squad Leading by Four-Game Margin

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

Nine weeks from the finish there are indications that there may develop at least a two-club race in the Coast League.

San Francisco, four games to the good, is trailed by Sacramento. The other six clubs are stretched out like the tail to a kite.

Although the Seals quite generally are rated as the strongest club in the league, the Solons in their different appearances here have shown more polish than the league leaders.

However, San Francisco has the most formidable stable of flingers ever seen in the circuit, and has reserve strength. Sacramento has developed a punch which seemed lacking earlier in the season, and is playing good ball on the base. Pick has his men travelling at all times.

Until very recently it seemed that San Francisco would make a runaway race of it with a big drooping off in the receipts. Then things began to happen. One of the Seals, most dangerous hitters was suspended. Ailments appeared with here and there an accident. Players dropped out of the line-up from one cause or another, but not for a great period. Interest increased somewhat. But the club was in a position to suffer a series of relapses. With all its tribulations it has a four-game advantage, a very comfortable lead, and one which the team on paper certainly figures to increase between now and October 1. When Kilduff gets back in the game, as he should very shortly, the club will have that line-up with which it was making a runaway race six weeks ago, and as none of the other teams have been able to strengthen, there is no sound baseball reason why the Seals should not again shoot out in front.

Sacramento looks good for second place, and may do better. That city and San Francisco should make money. Portland, if it sticks in third place, may show some profit.

Looks as though Los Angeles and Vernon would do well to beat out Oakland and escape from last place. Vernon is but five games above the Oaks, and the Angels but little better.

PREXY TEARNEY SAYS GAMES WILL STAND

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Games played between Sioux City and Wichita at Wichita on August 4 and 5 will stand, Al Tearney, head of the Western League, announced tonight. Jack Holland, Oklahoma City owner, protested on the ground that the series was scheduled for Sioux City and was changed without authorization of the majority of the clubowners of the league. "The case was an emergency and I authorized the change in places for the games and the games will stand," Tearney said tonight.

SPORT WORLD PAYS FINAL TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF HARDING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—There was no life on the field of sport today. Baseball diamond and golf course, tennis court and track were vacant while athletes and lovers of sport everywhere paid final tribute to the memory of Warren G. Harding. Probably at no time in recent years has there been such a complete cessation of activity in the sporting world as on today. The pause was voluntary and included every branch of sport and individuals in every walk of life.

On the day following the late President's death, every national sporting body announced that the day of his funeral would be one of mourning and that events scheduled for that day would either be postponed or cancelled. Baseball, which Mr. Harding followed closely during his lifetime, took the lead by calling off all games on two days, but it was closely followed by other organizations and individuals in every kind of sport.

No professional baseball games were played in the United States today. President of the National League expressed the feeling of those connected with the game, when in his message of sympathy to Mrs. Harding he said:

"Baseball never had a better friends than Mr. Harding."

The United States Lawn Tennis Association through its president, Dwight F. Davis, requested all clubs under its jurisdiction to postpone all play scheduled for the day. So far as could be ascertained the request was strictly observed throughout the East. Other sports complied with like requests.

Eleven Caltech Lettermen to Report for Practice

"Fox" Stanton's Material of High Class

Prospects Bright for Banner Gridiron Season

With eleven lettermen hailing from last year's team slated to return this fall, "Fox" Stanton, Caltech mentor, should develop the best team ever boasted by the Pasadena institution. Several excellent prospects from the 1922 freshman aggregation will also be on hand when the veteran tutor calls for candidates next month.

But three men were lost by graduation last June, and although their places will be found hard to fill, the "Fox" contends that he already has a trio of seasoned players in mind for the positions left vacant by the graduates. Bernard Evans, last year's captain, and who played a guard position for three years for the Engineers, will probably be the man most sorely missed. Evans was recognized last season as one of the best guards in the Conference, both on defense and offense.

LOST TO TEAM

The other two men lost to the team are Doug Stromsoe, an end, and Chuck Howard, a guard. A fourth member of last year's team,

SIR TOM SENDS AFTER SHAMROCK

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—A crew of English sailors in the employ of Sir Thomas Lipton, arrived today on the steamship Zealand to take Sir Thomas's twenty-three meter racing yacht, Shamrock, back to England, where she will be used as a trial horse for the yacht he has ordered in a new attempt to capture the famous America's cup. The Shamrock was used in both British and American waters in 1920 as a pacemaker for the Shamrock IV. Since then she had been in storage.

"Kenny" Cannon, who dazzled all of the Conference elevens with his speed, will be missing, owing to a favorite indoor pastime of the Caltech faculty of letting sophomores and juniors out for failing to live up to scholarship requirements.

Holly Moyse, who has played for two seasons in a tackle berth for the Engineers, will pilot the team this year. Moyse has always played a stellar game in the position, and should enjoy a wonderful season. "Horsey" Alderman will handle the other tackle position. Mike Brunner, the scrappy little end, who last year was the first of the Conference flanks to get a chance at Suggett of Whittier, made good his chance, and threw the Poet flash for loss after loss. He will be back this fall. Harold Beck, veteran of two varsity seasons in the center berth, has promised to report, and is a cinch for the job again this year. Eugene Smith and Stew Seymour, guards are also expected to answer the "Fox's" call next month.

LOOMS BEST

Of the backfield men scheduled to return, Frank Foster looms as Stanton's best bet. He possesses a world of speed, passes well, and punts consistently with the best of the Conference kickers. Great, who played quarter last year, is also an excellent punter, but hardly gets the distance Foster does on his kicks. He will be back, and probably will handle the signal calling again this season. Maury Goldsmith, star of two years on Engineer elevens will be back for his final year of varsity football. Ed Kinsey, who played full throughout the last season, and Doug Sellers, a half, complete the list of returning backs.

Stew Johnson, Baker, and Fricker, veterans of last year's freshman backfield will all make strong bids for varsity berths this season. Johnson played stellar ball throughout his first year at half, while Baker scintillated throughout the season as the frosh fullback. Bob Stein, who handled a tackle position for the freshmen, looks like a sure bet for a place on the varsity. He is a big man, and packs several years of high school experience, as well as that gained last season with the peagreen eleven. George Stewart, a guard, hailing from the ranks of the first-year men, is another very likely candidate for a varsity position.

ALAMITOS BAY SCENE OF MEET

Six Fast Teams Entered in Title Event

Olympic Club and Cady's Team Ruled Favorites

Viola Hartman to Perform in 220-Yard Free Style

The national 880-yard senior A.A.U. relay championships will be staged this afternoon by the Belmont Shore Athletic Club over the Alamitos Bay course, Long Beach. With so important a title at stake keen competition is anticipated when the six teams entered in the event get together.

The Olympic Club team and that of the Los Angeles Athletic Club look like the best bets for the high honors, although either the Venice A.C. or the Redondo A.C. may upset the predictions. The Olympic Club team has been at Long Beach since Thursday working out daily over the open water course under the watchful eye of Coach Frank Rivas.

Fred Cady, Los Angeles Athletic Club mentor, feels confident that his quartet will cop the title. With two such swimmers as Duke Kahanamoku and "Buddy" Smith carrying the local club's colors, Cady has every right to predict a victory for his crew. The Duke is still clipping fifths of seconds off national swim records, and right now is in the best shape of his career.

Two San Diego teams have entered the affair, one from the Sunset Club, coached by Henry Gunther, and one from the San Diego Rowing Club. These two organizations are keen rivals and each is out to beat the other this afternoon.

Several other interesting events have been arranged. Miss Viola Hartman of the Los Angeles Athletic Club is entered in the high-diving event and also in the 220-yard free style for women. Miss Hartman holds several national diving titles, and three weeks ago won the open 440-yard free-style at Belmont Shore in a most decisive manner.

The meet will start at 2:30 and will be free to the public. The new course will take care of about 3500 spectators besides those who care to view the competition from water craft.

WASHINGTON PRINTERS WIN BASEBALL HONORS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Washington printers yesterday won the Union Printers' National Baseball League championship for the second successive year, but had to defeat two rival teams in one day to gain a second leg on the Garry Herrmann trophy, emblematic of the title.

In a semifinal game, at Yankee Stadium in the morning, Chicago shut out St. Paul, 9 to 0. Meanwhile Washington, at the Polo Grounds, was pounding out a 13-to-3 victory over Hamilton, Ont., in the other semifinal. The final, at the Polo Grounds in the afternoon, was won by a 11-2 score.

SPORT SHRAPNEL

By HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Writing from 695 South Motine avenue, Pasadena, Ernest G. Mickle, well-informed baseball fan, expressed the opinion that Christy Mathewson came by the title "Big Six" about the time the Mathewson car, a six-cylinder machine, now extinct, came on the market.

His theory is that Matty was named after this car. My impression was that Matty had acquired that title prior to the advent of that machine, and that the name of the car was spelled Mathieson.

But now comes J. J. O'Connor, editor of Western Motorcyclist and Bicyclist, far better versed than myself in the dates and christening of wheeled vehicles, with a statement which tends to support the Mickle contention.

In a letter to this column O'Connor says: "As a reader of your Shrapnel column I was much interested in your references to the Mathewson car. The correct name of the car was Mathewson. It was built in Holyoke, Mass., along in 1903-1905 by the Mathewson boys, Frank F. and C. W.

"Later they refinanced and moved to Wilkesbarre, Pa., where they enjoyed prosperity for awhile and then dropped out. C. W. now is general sales manager for Dodge at Detroit.

"I was covering the Long Island Vanderbilt races for Motor World when the Mathewson boys were running their car in this classic, so I am positive about the correct spelling of the name."

Have received a letter from Maj. Tom Turner, scout for the Portland club, who recently returned from an extensive trip through the South. Tom says he looked over some good youngsters, but did not tell of closing any deals.

"I was glad to find the Beavers up in the race," writes Turner. "They look to be one of the best clubs in the circuit, and are probably the youngest. We have more major league prospects on our club than any other team in the league. Manager Jimmy Middleton deserves a great deal of credit for the manner in which he has handled the team this season."

Incidentally, a glance at the Portland roster will show that the Beavers have been built up mainly from eleven players who were recommended by Turner during the past two years.

Complete harmony appears to prevail between Middleton and Turner, and they strike one as a strong combination. Jimmy must be a cinch for his job next season. Few if any critics in the spring placed the Beavers better than the second division.

Middleton and Charley Pick of Sacramento are two managers who have delivered. The Portland man won his spurs as a pilot, as he took over a disheveled and disorganized outfit late last season and nobody knew just what he could accomplish until he delivered this season.

Pick has redeemed himself. This wasn't necessary in the eyes of baseball men, who were familiar with the handicaps under which he labored in 1922, but the public needed to be shown. The Solons, under Pick, have displayed the best ball seen here this season.

Dots Miller was on his way to repeat with San Francisco when taken ill. His record indicates that he was a great minor league manager. True, he was quiet, and his personality was not apparent, but he was none the less effective.

Bert Ellison may have equal qualifications, except in experience. He is a hustling, fighting ball player, and will give the club more color than Miller. But he may find himself under those disadvantages which seem to confront nearly every player who graduates from the ranks of his own team into the leadership. Sometimes it is difficult for a man thus suddenly elevated to enforce discipline among his former pals, while envy and jealousy frequently are an inhibitions and undermining force under such circumstances.

No doubt it was a desire to avoid these things which in a measure actuated the Los Angeles owners in appointing Marty Krug to lead the Angels, although he had other qualities to commend him.

It was felt that this would cause less friction than picking a man from the inside. However, as the season progressed it became apparent there was a certain amount of discord, all denials to the contrary notwithstanding nevertheless.

Krug was forced on a few days' notice to take over a club schooled under a different system. It was a team with perhaps more than the usual amount of temperament. There will be less of this on the club next season. Temperament comes too high. Marty has had many inside battles to fight. He is a student of baseball and knows as much as any manager in the country. He deserves another crack at the job.

Mention Elsinore and most of the Angels would prick up their ears. And they would show no less interest, possibly, if one spoke of a peach. But this has to do with Elsinore peaches that grow on trees.

What should I find on my desk the other day right among the ink stands and telephones but a fifty-pound box of this fruit. It came from H. C. Scott, Hank Ray's able assistant in the depot there.

Scotty apparently has branched out. Not content with being the town's only telegrapher, except Hank, who has retired, and manager of the Star Theater, he also has become an agrarian, and will join the farm bloc in the City Council. See you next spring, Scotty, when the poppies are blooming and the peaches are still in bed.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

Posed by Johnny Weismuller, world's champion speed swimmer. Sketch by Fog Murray.

Answered by BILL BACHRACH

Illinois Athletic Club; most famous and successful of all swimming coaches; has turned out champions such as Johnny Weismuller, world's fastest swimmer; Norman Ross, Sibyl Bauer, Perry McGillivray, Harry Hebner, Arthur Raithel, Bob Skelton and Mike McDermott.

Make the bottom leg, which is the right leg if you swim on the right side, do most of the work. The top or left leg is chiefly a foil. From a position with the legs extended full to the rear, the body lying flat on the water, the right knee is bent and spread wide from the left leg which is held straight but not rigid. As the body rolls up to the left and the top arm finishes its sweep, the right leg kicks suddenly to a straight position. It swings close to the left foot and past it in a "follow through." This is the famous scissors kick. The kick is executed simultaneously with the pull of the top arm, and in the simple stroke there is only one kick to each revolution of the arms.

DEAL WANTS BACK PAY

Vernon Third Sacker Asks Money Claims Due Him Since He Was Traded for Smith

Charley Deal wants $600 in back salary before appearing in the Vernon line-up, and this the club refuses to pay. Deal has not been in the game since being traded to Vernon for Red Smith. He asserts that he was taken ill, and that he has a doctor's certificate to show for it. Deal also, because of his long service in the game, believes he should be declared a free agent at the end of the present season. The club also refuses to agree to this.

The contention of Vernon is that Los Angeles should pay the salary indebtedness incurred since the time Deal was traded. Marty Krug points out that Deal was playing ball when the swap was made, and therefore is in good condition.

Deal consulted a physician, who reported enlargement of the liver. Charley may take his case to Commissioner Landis. Whether his liver started to swell the day he was traded or the day after is a fine point not covered by baseball law.

Apparently this vital organ has subsided, as Deal says he is ready to start working out next week if the club coughs up his back salary.

McMULLIN TO TAKE ON MURPHY TONIGHT

"Cyclone" Larry Murphy and Packy McMullin, hard-hitting 126-pounders, will furnish the fireworks tonight when Dick Donald resumes his weekly boxing shows at the Lyceum Athletic Club.

Murphy and McMullin are as evenly matched pair and they head one of the strongest cards that Donald has offered in months. In the semi-wind-up Sailor Reaume and Johnny McGraw will clash. The feature preliminary will bring together Stanley Shimkus and Dick Mayo, 175-pounders. The rest of the card will be: Pancho Palma vs. Pete LaMar, George Wilkins vs. Kid Price at 118 pounds, and a curtain-raiser between two good boys.

Santa Barbara Store Within 200 Yards of Police Station Robbed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 10.—Auto truck burglars last night entered the store of Star Gruener, within 200 yards of the Police Station and carried off practically the entire stock of men's clothing valued at $1600. The burglars, whose methods were the same as those who looted stores at San Jose, Gilroy and other cities, entered by a skylight. They loaded their loot into a truck in the yard of the store. This is the third burglary of the same kind in six months, all within a stone's throw of the Police Station.

DISTRICT TO GET HEALTH LABORATORY

South Bay Towns Plan to Maintain Office at Redondo Beach

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDONDO BEACH, Aug. 10.—This city, and others in the South Bay district, now without an immediately available health department laboratory, as a result of the combining of the Los Angeles county laboratory with the one at Berkeley, are to have one of their own soon. It will be located in the City Hall here and will be opened about October 1. It will serve Redondo, Hermosa, Manhattan, Torrance, El Segundo and surrounding territory. The maintenance cost will amount to $5000 a year. Los Angeles county will pay half this amount and the remaining expense is to be apportioned to the townships in the district.

Dr. Pomeroy, county health officer, who was present at the meeting last night at which the plans were adopted, stated that the new bureau was another link in the chain of district health laboratories which his department plans to establish throughout the county.

"Each city in the district will pay its share gladly," said Mayor Cate of Redondo. "In the end it will not mean much more than the health departments are costing now. For each city in the district eliminates the salary of a local health officer, and costs of private tests of milk, liquor and all the laboratory fees in connection with suspected rabies, typhoid and similar diseases."

Fire Chiefs to Hold Sessions in Crown City

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Aug. 10.—The 1924 convention of Pacific Coast Fire Chiefs' Association will convene in Pasadena. This fact was made public today by Chief Coop of Pasadena, who extended the invitation to the association, now meeting in Wallace, Idaho.

Pasadena was also awarded the big silver cup for having the lowest fire loss of any city in the western States. During the past twelve months Pasadena has had a loss of but 9½ cents per capita. Pasadena firemen were also awarded a sum of $250 by the Fire Underwriters' Insurance Company for being rated the best fire guards in the West.

DIRECTORS DINE

President of Huntington Park Chamber Entertains Board

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 10. President James R. Johnston, of the Huntington Park Chamber of Commerce, entertained the board of directors at the Jack Riley Hotel tonight to a 7:30 o'clock dinner instead of the regular Thursday noon luncheon.

During the banquet Mr. Morris of the organization department of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, was present and gave an interesting talk about organization, and he also gave out a number of good ideas to the local board in planning their work for the coming seasons. The meeting was in the nature of a get-together session.

SON HURT, MOTHER SOUGHT IN SOUTH

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 10. City Marshal J. H. Pinkham has received a telegram from Red Bluff, asking him to locate Mrs. Culey, said to be a resident of Boyle avenue, near this city. The information came that her son had met with an accident at Red Bluff. Mr. Pinkham spent several hours in trying to locate the mother, but failed.

POMONA SETS RECORD FOR BUILDING PERMITS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Aug. 10.—Ten building permits issued since the 3rd inst. by Building Inspector Cowles totaled $12,475, bringing the total for the month to date to $14,375 and the total for the year to date to 1,074,456.50, smashing all previous records in the history of the city.

HEN-HOUSE ROW CAUSE OF MIRTH

Even Judge Chuckles When Witnesses Testify

Ex-Ball Player's Wife is Ordered to Pay Bill

Woman Admits Swearing; Says She's American

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Gail Oldham, wife of John "Red" Oldham, former well-known major league baseball pitcher, today announced her intention of immediately appealing to a higher court following the action of Judge Holbrook in awarding judgment in the amount of $50 to the plaintiff in a suit in justice court by C. R. Bealey against Mr. and Mrs. Oldham, alleging that amount due on the sale of a hen house.

The case, the hearing of which consumed the greater part of the afternoon, was replete with thrills and humor, some of the testimony calling forth such merriment that even the judge was obliged to chuckle.

It developed at the hearing that Mr. Bealey, residing at 1044 East D street, had sold Mrs. Oldham, living at 1048 East D street, a hen house, the woman giving a pig valued at $5 as first payment and agreed to pay $50 more when the building had been moved to her premises.

TELLS OF THREAT

Mrs. Oldham said that before moving the hen house Mr. Bealey removed the nest boxes and roosts, with the result that she insisted that he cut $5 from the original price. She testified, however, that she did pay her neighbor $45, but that he refused to give her a receipt until she paid the remaining $5. When she demurred he told her that would be the "sorriest $5" she ever kept. Bealey denied that he had received any payment other than the pig.

The humor was injected into the case when Mr. Bealey and several of his witnesses recited how Mrs. Oldham had heaped abusive language on his head, had heaved a five-pound rock which struck him on the right shoulder, and had threatened to blow out his brains with a shotgun if he did not desist from cutting trees growing on the property line between the two places.

The case reached its humorous climax when Charles Birmeley, an employee of Mr. Bealey, recited the details of Mrs. Oldham's talk in the tree-cutting episode, and told how she had threatened to get a gun and shoot them.

"Did she go to the house and get a gun?" asked Attorney A. O. Dillon, for the plaintiff.

"By golly! I didn't wait to see," replied Birmeley, and the courtroom rocked with mirth.

Other witnesses for the plaintiff included Mrs. Louise Bealey and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Coburn. Mr. Coburn also was a witness to the tree-cutting episode, but he, Bealey and Birmeley all declared themselves unwilling to repeat Mrs. Oldham's language in court.

HOLDS BILL NOT PAID

"The idea of these men not being able to repeat what I said!" laughed Mrs. Oldham, when she took the stand, modishly attired. "It is ridiculous. Why, I bet they have all said a hundred times worse. I was mad clear through and I suppose I did swear, I don't deny it. I'm an American."

Mrs. Oldham declared that Bealey's suit to collect the $50 was the outgrowth of his threat to make her regret her failure to pay the remaining $5 originally agreed on.

In giving his decision, Judge Holbrook declared that the preponderence of evidence indicated that the bill had not been paid.

Watermelon Theft Hearing Is Postponed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 10.—Two Japanese, T. Okato and M. Ishikawa, charged with the theft of three and a half tons of watermelons, have had their case continued by Justice of the Peace Jones until Tuesday.

Kerkorian, the complaining witness, charges that he had signed a contract with the two Japanese in which the crop from his ranch was to be split evenly between the contracting parties and that the Japanese, who are dealers in fruit, broke the aforementioned contract.

The defendants are represented by Frank Heck while the prosecution is being carried on by Dep. Dist.-Atty. West and L. E. Nathan.

SPECIAL OFFICER HELD ON TRAFFIC CHARGE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 10.—Clarence Keating, special officer of this city, is under arrest on complaint of Clarence Brown of Los Angeles, charged with reckless driving. Brown asserts Keating cut a corner and crowded past him in entering a safety zone, and when he remonstrated, that Keating crowded him into the curb, damaging the Brown car. Keating says he was in a hurry as he was pursuing a traffic violator. He furnished $50 bail for his liberty.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 10.—The body of Haruo Goto, 7 years of age, Japanese boy who, with his brother, 9, disappeared Saturday, was found in the surf at Miramit this morning, near where his brother's body was found Monday.

STARTED SOMETHING STUNNING

King Tut Bathing Suit Put in Discard

Bernice Siebeck

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Aug. 10. — Feminine bathing suit creations fashioned in old Egyptian since the opening of the tomb of King Tut have predominated the beaches of Southern California's popular pleasure resort throughout the entirety of the season. Everywhere it was King Tut bathing suits.

Bernice Siebeck, one of the city's fair mermaids, has a reputation of being different. The Egyptian styles were becoming so commonplace and their funny patterns all looked about the same and didn't mean anything. For the most part they were just a flare of every color of the rainbow.

So Miss Siebeck turned eyes toward Hawaii for her summer bathing-suit creation. In place of patterned hieroglyphics cut rubber was fashioned on her costume. Then she went to the beach to see the effect.

With as much rapidity as the King Tut suit was ushered in, so the beach is fast giving way to the new creation. Here and there mingled with the spirit of Old Egypt there is a breath from Hawaii.

Miss Siebeck has started something!

IOWANS TO GATHER AT BEACH CITY

Sixty Thousand Expected to Attend Annual Picnic of Society Today

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Aug. 10. — Sixty thousand former Iowans are expected to attend the sixteenth annual picnic of the Iowa Society of Southern California tomorrow at Bixby Park, according to J. G. Sutelman, president of the society. Senator Brookhart, Iowa, was scheduled to be the chief speaker of the occasion, but it has been announced that he will be unable to be present.

Col. Shaw of Sierra Madre will preside at the exercises. Henry J. Brubaker will lead the singing. There will be several speakers on the program and several musical numbers. The municipal band of Long Beach will lend its services to the occasion.

The park will be divided into ninety-nine sections representing ninety-nine counties of Iowa. Each division will have a book for registrations. The pioneers of Iowa will wear red badges, persons who were born there or went to the State fifty years ago will wear white badges, those who have lived there any length of time will wear blue badges while friends of the State will wear yellow badges. Thousands of gallons of coffee will be provided for the occasion.

YOUTH BADLY HURT

Bicyclist Run Over by Auto Not Expected to Live

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Aug. 10.—Crushed beneath the wheels of an automobile driven by Mildren Lotz, 280 South Pasadena avenue, Louis Virgness, who resides at 54 Huribut street, is expected to die of his injuries. He is now being attended at the Pasadena Hospital. According to a report made to the police, Virgness was riding a bicycle this afternoon and became confused with the traffic at California street. In the clamor he fell from his wheel and was run over by the automobile.

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Aug. 10.—Frank McCarter of Inglewood was bitten by a dog this morning while at the bathing beach. McCarter, who was in a bathing suit, was attacked without warning, the dog sinking his teeth in McCarter's arm. Other bathers aided in releasing the dog. McCarter was treated in the offices of Dr. Joseph Saylis.

MUSIC HATH CHARMS AND POESY IS EFFECTIVE WITH POLICE JUDGE OF UPLAND

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

UPLAND, Aug. 10.—Probably going on the theory that "music hath charms to soothe," L. B. King of 5410 Fountain avenue, Hollywood, twice arrested on the same day by local traffic officers on charges of exceeding the speed limit with his motor car and scheduled to appear in Police Court tomorrow, appealed to Judge Crane in poetry and got results.

In his communication to the magistrate, Mr. King explained that he had just been obliged to make a payment on some real estate and was so low financially that he would consider it a great accommodation if the hearing of his case might be continued until he had another pay day. The letter closed with: "Should you grant this I hope for you the night shall be filled with music and cares that infest the day shall fold their tents like the Arabs and silently steal away."

Judge Crane admitted that the sentiment had more or less touched his heart and after due consideration forwarded a communication to Mr. King to the effect that if he would send bail to the Upland Court he might spare himself the necessity of appearing at all.

Swimmer Flits in Nature's Robe on Ocean Front

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Aug. 10.—Officer W. L. Woodruff found George Knapp, 1209 Esperanza avenue, frantically scrambling about the beach last night trying to recover his trousers and his self-respect. It developed that Knapp had lost $75.50 and his clothes through trying to save 50 cents.

Knapp had attempted to go in swimming by crawling under the Jackrabbit Pier instead of through the bath house where he would have paid 50 cents admission. He reached the beach in safety, threw his clothes aside and had a swim but when he emerged he found a thief had robbed him of all he had. Officer Woodruff smuggled the man to his own home and gave him enough clothes to enable him to reach his abode.

WOMAN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Jeanette Christine of the Admiral Apartments sustained possible internal injuries when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by another machine at the corner of Washington Boulevard and One Hundred and Fourth avenue. The other car was driven by Miss Susie Slinkard, Hollywood. Miss Slinkard in her report attributed the accident to the fact that her brakes would not work as she approached the intersection. The injured woman was removed to her home.

POSTPONE PASADENA TEST CASE

Jurisdiction of Justice Courts Will be Decided Next Thursday

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Aug. 10.—Due to the absence of Justice Morton from the city the test case scheduled for today that would have decided whether justice courts in California have jurisdiction over petty larceny and misdemeanors committed in the city bounds was postponed until the 16th inst. It was intimated today by D. M. Clark of the District Attorney's office that he will base his argument on the fact that Pasadena's freeholders' charter permits misdemeanors to be tried in justice courts.

Stanley K. Brown, attorney for the defense, contends that the Political Code states that the police court has exclusive jurisdiction over such matters and that all cases now pending before the lower courts must be dismissed as the court has no jurisdiction to try them. He also contends that persons fined for offenses in the past will have just cause in suing for the return of their money. If the Political Code is upheld, Justice Morton stated, all persons now being held in the City Jail for misdemeanors to be tried in the justice courts will probably be released.

Angeleno Held in Pomona on Liquor Charge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Aug. 10.—Jay Buxton, 55 years of age, of Los Angeles, was jailed here last night on charge of transporting contraband liquor after Officer Phillips stopped him driving through the city without a tail light on his machine. A large five passenger car was seized, besides sixty-seven gallons of asserted moonshine which was found concealed in the back seat of the machine. An invoice of the asserted liquor showed two barrels, one holding thirty-five gallons and another twenty-five, both said to be full of whisky.

Seven one-gallon jugs were found sealed in soft drink boxes, also one and one half gallons of supposed brandy. The stranger had a pint bottle labeled Old Taylor in a small hand bag on the front seat. Sales slips tending to show Buxton had been doing business in San Bernardino may bring to light that he is running out of a distillery between here and the Gate City.

San Gabriel Man Dies Suddenly in Cincinnati Hotel

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN GABRIEL, Aug. 10.—William H. Troupe, a traveling salesman for a New York wholesale stationery concern, died suddenly of heart failure in a Cincinnati hotel yesterday, according to a long-distance telephone message received by Mrs. Troupe at her home here today. The body is being sent to this city.

Mr. Troupe had been with the firm for twenty-five years as traveling salesman, making trips across the continent every two months. He left his home here on July 4 in good health and his wife was looking forward to his homecoming on the 25th inst. with special pleasure, that being the date of his birthday. Mr. Troupe was born in Hagerstown, Md., and lived for many years in New York and Chicago. During the World War he did active service with the Food Commission in Washington. He was a member of a Masonic lodge in Chicago.

Call Meeting on Protection Against Frost

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 10.—Frost protection for citrus groves is the general subject of a meeting called at Fairmount Park Tuesday evening by the citrus committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Men who have had years of experience in various phases of orchard heating will give the latest information to the growers who attended. These are Howard Pressey, manager of the Sespe Ranch, Ventura county; Floyd D. Young of the United States Weather Bureau stationed at Pomona; Warren D. Schoonover, citrus extension specialist, United States Department of Agriculture.

INSPECTION OF TITLES

Men Engaged to Examine Venice Records

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Aug. 10.—Thomas Wilde and M. K. Baretto, bay district examiners of municipal records, will be employed by the city to examine titles of all municipally owned land.

The motion for inspection was made by Trustee Holbrook following the declaration of Trustees that the city retained a clear title to all Trolleyway from Mildred avenue to Nautilus. It was learned there were two strips of territory on the Trolleyway to which the city does not have clear title. In event the Pacific Electric Railway and other property owners in the territory were not favorable toward paving, the work would be held up for several weeks, it was pointed out.

A search of property records will will be necessary to eliminate trouble.

BOY IN FLIGHT LEAVES WHEEL

[By a "Times" Staff Correspondent.]

PASADENA, Aug. 10.—The boy who, in his haste to elude the owner of the peach trees at 1379 North Los Robles avenue, left his bicycle on the premises, may have the vehicle by calling at the police station. This is the announcement issued today by the local police after it had been reported by M. Fiske that he had routed a lad from his peach orchard.

According to Mr. Fiske the boy has been a frequent visitor at the peach orchard and when suddenly confronted with the owner he became so frightened that he dropped his fruit and made a hasty retreat, leaving his bicycle behind.

WOMAN IS ATTACKED IN HOME

Screams Bring Neighbors and Assailant, With Companion, is Routed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ORANGE, Aug. 10.—Police today were seeking two men who last night entered the home of the Misses Bertha and Frances Johnson under the pretext that they wanted to purchase a lot from the two sisters, who are both elderly.

During the discussion of details of the purchase in the front room, the elder of the pair asked for a drink of water.

The men followed the elder sister as she went to the kitchen to get the water. After drinking the young man left the kitchen and went into a bedroom where the other sister was sewing.

The young man, police were told, seized the woman by the throat, shaking her roughly. She screamed, attracting the other sister, whereat the elderly man blocked her way, saying "Don't dare scream."

The screams of the other woman, however, attracted neighbors who came to the scene just as the man darted out of the house.

Police are at a loss to ascribe a motive for the men's actions unless the younger man, who is believed to be the son of the older, was mentally unbalanced. A good description was given.

BENEFICIARY IS SILENT ON WILL FIGHT

Anaheim Priest States His Attorneys Will Talk for Him in Carney Case

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ANAHEIM, Aug. 10. — Stating that his attorneys would talk for him, Father Patrick Browne, pastor of St. Boniface Catholic Church of Anaheim, refused to comment on the charges contained in the contest to the will of the late Frank E. Carney, Anaheim rancher, filed late yesterday.

Father Browne, executor and one of the principal beneficiaries of the will of the $60,000 estate, is charged with using undue influence on Carney, who, the petition states, was in a semiconscious condition at the time. A portion of the property was to be divided between relatives and Catholic institutions and the remainder was to go to Father Browne, St. Boniface Catholic Church, Anaheim; St. John's Cathedral, Milwaukee, and Father Roch, Milwaukee.

Mine Official's Wife Injured in Auto Collision

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 10.—When the automobile of H. J. Doughty, superintendent of the Long Tom mine, near Woody, collided with another car six miles north of here last night, Mrs. Doughty was seriously injured. It is said the car which collided with the Doughty machine was on the wrong side of the road, when Doughty swerved to avoid hitting it, and went into the ditch.

The other driver is charged by Mrs. Doughty with turning his car to the left to avoid the ditch, the two meeting in a head-on collision and throwing Mrs. Doughty from her car. She was attended at the Bakersfield Emergency Hospital by Dr. S. C. Long. The other occupants of the Doughty machine were their daughter, Mrs. Hampton, and her husband and small son, none of whom was injured.

SON SUES FATHER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VISALIA, Aug. 10. — Son sued father and the latter appeared as a witness against himself in a damage suit growing out of a crossing collision, in the Superior Court here today. The father, A. M. Drew of Fresno, whose wife was killed in the accident, succeeded in losing his case to his son, Leslie Drew of Lindsay, who had as his attorney, his brother, William Drew. The suit was a friendly one to establish insurance claims.

SISQUOC FOREST FIRE IS CHECKED

Forestry Forces Halt Blaze in All-Night Fight

Crews Take New Position to Protect West and North

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 10. — After an all-night battle, the fire in the San Rafael Mountains, which separate Santa Ynez Valley from the Sisquoc Valley, was stopped along the mountain tops today, and it was declared by Fire Superintendent Jordan there was now no further danger of the fire getting over into the Santa Ynez River section. The superintendent was moving his forces today from the eastern and southern fronts to the west and north.

Superintendent Jordan telephoned from the Santa Ynez ranger station that the fire had eaten to the southwest, sweeping the valley of the Grapevine as far as the west fork of Santa Cruz Creek and leveling a wide stretch of heavy timber along the Santa Cruz. The fire also burned a considerable distance above the forks of the Santa Cruz and into the Peachtree Canyon district.

DAMAGE GREAT

McKinley and Santa Cruz Mountains have been burned over and about 10,000 acres of timber in the Manzana Game Refuge have been destroyed.

The superintendent was unable to estimate how much of the pine timber in the Mission Pine district had actually been destroyed. The valley in the direction of the Cachuma Mountains is now declared to be safe.

The valley of the Santa Ynez is filled with rich grazing land and has a heavy growth of brush. Had the fire won its way into this valley it would have menaced many ranch homes and caused immense loss to cattle growers.

Today's word from Supt. Jordan was reassuring, as no word had been heard from him for two days, at which time he was at the Santa Ynez ranger station.

BLOW TO SPORTSMEN

The shift of Jordan's men to the west and north is interpreted here as a precautionary measure to prevent a shift in the wind from sending the still smouldering fire into an almost inaccessible region, covered with heavy timber, in which it might burn for weeks.

The destruction of the timber in the Manzana Game Refuge is a blow to the hopes of sportsmen, who were expecting that this timbered area would protect much wild life. It is hoped that the destruction in this forest area is not complete.

Glendale Lot's Value Octuples in Three Years

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, Aug. 10.—The advance in realty values in Glendale was demonstrated this week when the lot at the southwest corner of Central avenue and Broadway changed hands for a consideration of $52,000, together with the service station that stands on it and which has been bringing its owner a rental of $300 a month.

This property was offered for sale at $4500 three years ago, and the purchaser developed it by erecting on it a modern business building, and the natural development of the city has brought it into the most valuable section of Glendale, enhancing its value to many times the amount paid for it a few years ago.

On the northwest corner of Central avenue and Broadway a well-known local realter has taken over two lots, giving a frontage of 166 feet on Central and running back 135 feet on West Broadway, on which it is planned to erect a six-story apartment house, of brick and stucco, at a cost of $400,000.

The interests behind the plan to erect the apartment house will lease the property on a ninety-nine-year lease, paying more than $1,000,000 during the life of the lease.

SANTA BARBARA TO SEEK GAS-RATE CUT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 10.—The City Council has ordered the City Attorney and City Manager to investigate the present gas rates here, with a view of appealing to the State Railroad Commission if the rates are found unjustified. Under the agreement prepared more than a year ago by the Southern Counties Gas Company, and accepted by the State Railroad Commission, the rates were to be lowered or raised with the decrease or increase of the price of crude oil. Only one reduction, it is said, has been ordered by the commission on request of the company, and since then, it is contended the price of crude oil has dropped from $3 to 100 per cent, depending on the gravity.

HUNTINGTON PARK OIL DERRICK BEGUN

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 10. The lumber for the erection of the large 122-foot derrick for the Huntington Park Oil Company is now on the ground and it is thought that the derrick will be completed within the next week or two. It is the intention of the stockholders of the company to begin the sinking of the well within the next sixty days.

CONGRESSMAN GIVEN HONORS

Support of Homes Bill Wins Expression of Thanks

Picturesque Rites Performed at Governor's House

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HONOLULU, Aug. 10. — During the visit here of Congressman Charles F. Curry of Sacramento he was elected to the native order of Daughters and Sons of Hawaiian Warriors.

This is a high-class Hawaiian secret society which occasionally includes in its membership a "haole" (white) who has shown conspicuous friendliness for the Hawaiian race.

Congressman Curry was the father in Congress of the rehabilitation bill by which land and homes are being provided for Hawaiian families on the island of Molokai (the leper island, where the home district is entirely apart from the leper settlement.) Curry sponsored this bill through the House of Representatives and helped it through the Senate.

KNEW PRINCE WELL

He was also a close personal friend of Prince J. Kuhio Kalanianaole, Hawaii's delegate to Congress for twenty years.

When Curry came to the islands a few weeks ago the Hawaiian society, after meeting him, elected him to membership. He was informed of the election when high officials of the society formed a circle around him and a native singing woman chanted the words of an ancient song.

The initiation was a highly picturesque secret ceremony, conducted at Washington Place, the official gubernatorial residence. Gov. and Mrs. Farrington were simultaneously initiated into the society.

TEMPLE REPRODUCED

A porch of the big house was transformed into the likeness of an ancient "heiau" or native temple, with a sacrificial altar in its center, and the three white persons were put through rites whose origin dates far back into the history of a primitive Pacific people.

Congressman Curry said afterward that it was one of the most impressive ceremonies of his long experience.

Urges Course of Love-Making in Sunday-schools

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KALAMAZOO (Mich.) Aug. 10. No longer will it be necessary for doting mothers to chaperone personally little Rudolph to Sunday-school—or little Marie, for that matter. They will go without urging from now on—that is if the plans of Dr. Henry E. Tralle, New York Sunday-school specialist, are carried through.

"Sunday-school should teach the science of love-making," he said in an address before the Michigan Baptist Assembly, "and furthermore, there should be a secluded nook in every church house where young folks may court in."

His lecture was entitled "Sweet Sixteen."

"One course in love-making is worth forty courses in Latin," was another gem of Dr. Tralle's talk. "Girls should have wholesome association with the opposite sex."

CLOUDBURST WRECKS HOME IN TWO TOWNS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Aug. 10.—A combination cloudburst and cyclone did large damage to buildings and property at Winkelman and Hayden, 100 miles east of Phoenix. The Dreamland Theater in Winkelman was unroofed and wrecked and a score of roofs were scattered around the town. The buildings of the Standard Oil station between the two towns were demolished. Lighting and telephone service were stopped for a day. The heavy local rains are believed responsible for a sudden rise of the Gila River at Winkelman to about five feet depth. This is expected to stop fording for a while at Sacaton and Gila Bend crossings. Two inches of rain fell at Tucson, but there was only slight precipitation in Phoenix.

PHOENIX ABANDONS TRADE FOR SERVICE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Aug. 10.—Business was suspended in Phoenix today, even restaurants and drug stores closing for the afternoon in respect to the late President. Public offices, banks and stores locked their doors and more than a Sabbath hush was known. The principal address was by former Gov. Richard E. Sloan. The pastors of the principal city churches joined in the services. Similar exercises were held in all the cities of the State, in most cases under charge of the American Legion posts.

SEARCH FOR DERELICT VESSEL IS FRUITLESS

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

ASTORIA, Aug. 10.—The Coast Guard cutter Tamaroa reported this morning that she had found no trace of a capsized hull of a sailing vessel, which had been sighted in the Pacific Ocean, and which was believed to have been the derelict barkentine Alta, which had not been heard from since last February, when the vessel left Los Angeles Harbor for Bellingham, Wash., in ballast. The Tamaroa reported she would continue the search off the Washington coast.

BRITISH ZIONIST POLICY FLAYED

Editor Says England Curbs Rights in Palestine

Conditions Under Turkish Rule Held Better

Congress at Carlsbad Sees Friend in Collidge

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

CARLSBAD, Aug. 10.—The policy of the British administration in Palestine toward the Jews and toward the Zionist movement was denounced today by Mr. Glickson, a delegate to the thirteenth Zionist congress, who charged "the government hinders the upbuilding of the Jewish national home." Dr. Glickson is the editor of the Haaretz, the daily Hebrew language newspaper appearing in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

Accusing the Zionist leaders of weakness in dealing with the administration of Sir Herbert Samuel, British high commissioner, Dr. Glickson asserted the Palestine authorities were systematically violating elementary obligations toward Palestine Jews.

SEES RIGHTS CURBED

"Palestine Jews," he said, "bear only the duties of citizens, enjoying none of the citizens' rights. They have less rights than they had in Turkish times. The article in the British mandate promising to facilitate Jewish settlements on the soil is not being fulfilled, while Arab tillers receive hundreds of thousands of dunam of land, which they are unable to cultivate. Reforestation by Jews of the hillsides is being hindered, as is also the attempt to drain the swamps. Jews receive nothing from the government for their education and sanitation systems, although they are the chief source of Palestine's fiscal duties. Arab needs are covered by grants-in-aid from the government treasury.

"In the municipalities the Jews are deprived of their rights," Dr. Glickson further charged. "The fact is Jews make up the majority of the population of Jerusalem and Tiberias, notwithstanding neither of these cities has a Jewish Mayor.

The speaker said conditions in certain places in Palestine were similar to conditions that prevailed in old Russia.

INDIGNATION EXCITED

Jewish contractors are prevented from bidding for government work, and Jewish labor is not being employed on public works, he asserted. Although Jews are the principal taxpayers, the government attitude toward Jewish officials "excites indignation," he reported. Similarly trying, he said, was the government's attitude on the question of autonomy for the organized Jewish communities in Palestine. He declared communities in countries outside Palestine, where no promise to set up a Jewish homeland has been made, enjoy greater autonomy.

The American delegation today cabled President Coolidge a message of greeting and wishes for a successful administration. The Zionists here recall the President has on various occasions expressed his admiration of the effort to re-establish Palestine as the Jewish homeland.

CORPORATION LICENSE TAXES ARE DOUBLING

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 10.—California's corporations have paid more in license taxes to the State Treasury during the first half of 1923 than they did during all of 1922, according to figures included in the semiannual report of E. W. Gardiner, chief of the Corporation License Department, to Secretary of State Frank Jordan to be submitted tomorrow. Since last January 1, a total of $1,097,258 has been paid in license taxes, as compared with $992,962 for all of 1922. The report shows that since the establishment of the department in 1911, the State has collected a total of $10,374,432 in corporation license taxes. There are 105,141 corporations doing business in the State, according to the report.

GREAT INCREASE IN AUTOS REGISTERED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 10.—An increase of nearly 25 per cent in the number of automobile registrations in July last compared with July a year ago is shown in figures compiled today by Will H. Marah, superintendent of the State Motor Vehicle Department. Registrations last month totaled 68,572, an increase of 15,828 over the corresponding month in 1922. Revenues from registrations amounted to $252,929 last month, an increase of $62,608 over July, 1922. Despite increased business, the department was operated with a payroll of $3817 less than a year ago.

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON HONORS HOOD MEMORY

HUGHES AND DIPLOMATIC CORPS SEND CONDOLENCE TO WIDOW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Messages of tribute and condolence from many high officials and members of the diplomatic corps were received today by the widow of Edwin M. Hood, dean of Washington correspondents, and for a half century a member of the staff of the Associated Press.

Secretary Hughes in Marion attending the funeral of President Harding, telegraphed:

"I am deeply grieved to learn of Mr. Hood's death. You have my most sincere sympathy."

The State Department, as well as the foreign embassies and legations will send official representatives to the funeral tomorrow. The Japanese Ambassador went to the residence today to express in person his regret and most of the other ranking diplomats who are absent from Washington voiced their sorrow through embassy officials. The British charge, in the name of Ambassador Geddes, forwarded a message saying the "embassy personnel had lost a valued and trusted friend."

BRITON WOULD CHANGE FOREIGN OFFICE IDEAS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Aug. 10. — Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor opposition in the House of Commons, says the Labor party is determined to change Great Britain's method of conducting business with other nations. In an article in the New Leader magazine he condemns what he stigmatizes as the bureaucracy of the British Foreign Office with its queer mentality and subversive selection of agents; with its work in secluded rooms as though some pursuit in alchemy were conducted by mystic signs at astral times.

BAY CITY LUMBER YARDS BOMBED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—The lumber yard of the Pacific Box Company was the scene of an explosion caused by a bomb or a stick of dynamite, which caused considerable excitement on the northern water front this afternoon. The explosion could be heard for a long distance. Lumbermen working 100 feet away, hurried to the place to find a deep hole in the ground and timber scattered about. Investigating detectives reported that the explosive had been wrapped in a newspaper of August 5. They found some I.W.W. literature near by.

LAMBS PROVIDED WITH NEW GLANDS IN PARIS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Aug. 10. — Fifty male lambs are prancing in the garden experimental laboratory of the College de France this afternoon with three glands, instead of two. In his great experiment to transform ordinary sheep into long-wooled merinos, so as to relieve France from dependence on Argentine and Australian wool, Serge Voronoff cut out the glands of twenty-five male lambs and grafted them on the other fifty, which were supplied by the French Woolen Manufacturers' Association.

Dr. Voronoff has discovered that year-old animals flourish like grass in the springtime when supplied with additional glands.

Prof. Gabriel Petit of the State Veterinary School assisted in the operations by order of the Minister of Agriculture, who is tremendously enthusiastic.

If the fifty exhilirated lambs do their duty nobly and patriotically and bear long wool, the government will issue subsidies to all veterinarians in the provinces to enable them to come to Paris and learn how to perform the grafting operation.

AGRICULTURAL ILLS ANALYZED

Eastern Economist Describes Remedies as Feeble

Troubles Are Outgrowth of Unbalanced Affairs

Farmer Has Too Much Credit Now; Caution Needed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GREAT FALLS (Mont.) Aug. 10.—"Changed marketing methods and changed credit methods in agriculture, however excellent for the long future, are feeble and irrelevant remedies for present acute agricultural distress," declared Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., Ph.D., economist of the Chase National Bank, New York, in an address here before the Montana Bankers' Association.

"The farmers' troubles," he explained, "grow out of a breach in the world's economic equilibrium. With Europe disorganized, and with production 'as usual' in the rest of the world, there is a relative scarcity of manufacturing activity, and a relative excess of farm production, raw material capacity and shipping. There is not a general overproduction, but the proportions are wrong, and this means overproduction in certain lines, of which wheat and hogs are striking examples."

Dr. Anderson contended that for agriculture to accept vast new credits at the present time would mean putting a lot of new capital into an already overexpanded industry. This, he said, would mean increased agricultural production, and still lower prices for farm products.

"Agriculture may very properly continue the process already under way," he declared, "of funding short-term debt into long-time obligations.

"There are cases where country banks are carrying short-dated paper, several times renewed, which the farmers have not been able to pay because of the low prices of their crops. The paper is good. The farmers will pay it in the course of time. But it is not liquid. As a result, such banks have not enough liquid assets to enable them to meet satisfactorily the current borrowing needs of their customers. Where the farmers can borrow on long-term mortgages and clear up the situation, it is distinctly desirable for all concerned.

"We may also approve new credit machinery which will enable our heavily burdened farmers to replace old mortgage loans, made at high rates, with new ones made at lower rates. While good first mortgages on farms in States like Iowa or Illinois are made at very reasonable rates indeed, owing to the competition of insurance companies banks, trust companies, savings banks, land mortgage companies, and local capitalists for such loans, there are other sections, especially in the South and West, where local capital is scarce, outside investors not eager and rates unduly high. That these sections, through sound debenture-issuing credit organizations, should draw on the central money markets for refunding loans at lower rates, is much to be welcomed.

TOO MUCH CREDIT

"The farmer's present difficulty, however, is partly due to the fact that he has had too much credit and too easy credit in the past. Greater difficulty in securing credit in the past would have lessened the evils of land speculation, and would have compelled the farmers to save more of their boom-time profits.

"A caution is also in order against an undue multiplication of different kinds and qualities of farm credit debentures and bonds. The investing public cannot be rushed too rapidly in the process of education. The investor demands ready marketability as well as soundness in low-yield bonds. We must not glut the market, or confuse it by a multiplicity of issues.

"Co-operative marketing is to be commended where it accomplishes technical improvements in the marketing process, but is to be condemned where its purpose is control of prices through speculation and holding. There is a co-operative in California, which, dealing in a perishable commodity, does not speculate at all. It has standardized its product, assuring the distant buyer as to its quality, and thus getting a better price. It knows, through agents, the state of markets in various cities, and routes its products to the best markets at a given time, avoiding the local gluts which unorganized shippers used to create. It avoids wastes in shipping by expert packing, and avoids the use of expensive refrigerator cars by its precooling stations. It serves a local group of producers, whose markets are scattered and distant. Its success is great and its services undoubted.

"Co-operation has been especially needing in marketing perishable commodities. It is much more needed in commodities hard to standardize and grade, like vegetables, tobacco, or even wool, than in the case of wheat and cotton.

"Highly competitive markets and especially world-wide markets, like those for wheat and cotton, obviously require less co-operative organization by sellers than in cases where a few great buyers dominate the market.

Where middlemen and commission merchants are upright, loyal to clients, and expert, no hastily constructed amateur co-operative can possibly compete with them in the long run. Of course, co-operatives may be expert, too, and may, with sufficient outlay of time and expense, build up world-wide trade connection of a valuable and adequate sort. But farmers will be well advised to study the existing machinery of their various markets, and consider how far it is necessary to duplicate it. Often an inexpensive local co-operative, which turns over most of its business to well-established, reputable firms in the central markets, may be far wiser than an expensive, elaborate organization, covering a wide territory. Often, too, the local buyers will enjoy so much confidence that no co-operative at all will seem necessary. Co-operation is not costless. It should be viewed as a business proposition. Discriminating study of individual cases is needed.

STANDARDIZATION

In the case of wheat and cotton, the existing machinery does most of the things that the California co-operative, referred to above, does, and some things in addition. It standardizes the product. It supplies information of world-wide conditions of supply and demand and prices, which the daily press, and now the radio, pass on to remote hamlets. It avoids price depression through local gluts. Prices of cotton at Liverpool, New York and New Orleans, in view of constant trading by telegraph and cable, rarely differ by more than cost of transportation at a give time. Future contracts bind present and future together, tending to make prices at time of greatest scarcity only enough higher than harvest-time prices to cover carrying charges—interest, storage, shrinkage, insurance, etc. In principle, competition would eliminate the profits if the spread should be greater than that, and statistics, covering prices of grain and cotton for many years, show that, on the average, the difference in prices between the seasons is barely enough to cover the carrying charges. Local co-operation, especially in cotton, may well be called for to enable the Southern farmer to get better grading. But it will be well for co-operatives in both wheat and cotton to consider carefully how far there is need for a general duplication of existing marketing machinery.

Distinctly sympathetic to carefully worked out methods of improving credit machinery in agriculture, and distinctly sympathetic to the general co-operative movement, I none the less am greatly concerned by recent proposals that there should be a general holding movement, carried out by co-operatives, and financed by the new credit machinery, designed to raise the prices of various crops, notably wheat.

I am not willing to encourage our farmers to engage in speculation on borrowed money. Co-operatives should be marketing, and not holding, organizations. If a great co-operative pool should succeed in holding 200,000,000 bushels of American wheat off the market, it would, of course, raise prices for a time. But it would merely defer the day of reckoning. Argentina, Canada and other exporting countries would capture the export market. The higher prices would increase wheat production throughout the world. The longer the pool held out, the worse the ultimate smash would be.

The remedy is not to be found in unsound speculation, but rather in striking at the root of the trouble, which lies in Europe. We shall help our farmers best, if we take active steps to restore the balance among the world's great industries, through getting Europe back as a great producer and consumer which pays for foods and raw materials by sending a back flow of manufactured goods.

FAITH IN COOLIDGE

Wall Street Faces New Administration With Confidence; Politics a Big Factor in Situation

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—There is the assurance of President Coolidge himself that he purposes to carry out the policies of his immediate predecessor, and, with this avowed purpose on the records, Wall Street and industry at large are not at all disturbed over the administration change, except in the great sorrow at Mr. Harding's death. Wall Street knew and loved the late President, although it did not always agree with his viewpoint. For his successor it has the utmost respect, but it is admittedly respect for a man of whom it knows little more than is indicated on the surface, and whose real bearing on the leading questions of the day is yet to be disclosed.

New York financial circles are convinced that a buyers' strike is on among investors and speculators, and until this situation is improved there may not take place any permanent change for the better in the stock market. This is the opinion expressed by bankers and heads of big commission houses with wire connections extending throughout the country. At the same time the further opinion is advanced that a 10-point rally might work like a charm in bringing renewed attention to the present bargains thought to be available in the stock market, and which are indicated in the present high yields on dividend-paying stocks selling at low prices.

Captains of industry are louder in proclaiming their belief in a favorable outlook than are bankers and stock exchange men. True, there is a falling off in new business, marked in some instances; but in many places, where much thought is given to working out plans for the future, this is regarded either as seasonal or the result of propaganda spread for the purpose of affecting the stock market and political sentiment.

As a factor politics is bound to assume its usual position attained once in four years, and the outlook for the coming year is that more attention than usual is to be paid, owing to the strides made by radicalism, and the necessity seen in trying to stem, if not, indeed, actually choke it off from further expansion. That business men and bankers alike are alive to the situation is known, and already they are thought to have in mind plans for future use.

POLITICS RAMPANT

Informal gatherings of industrial leaders are being held and out of their discussions are bound to come benefits not only for themselves but for business at large. At least this is the belief of some of the participants, who have let it be known that the radical movement is growing and becoming more menacing than generally realized or at least admitted. The success of Magnus Johnson is pointed to as an example. That the stock market is dependent on politics over the next year and that politics is to be affected by the trend of security values is conceded in the uptown clubs and in the financial district.

It is gathered from talks had at some of these gatherings that bankers and industrialists are convinced Republican success next year may best be secured through an advancing stock market, but to start the ball rolling at this early date would mean supporting for eighteen months a concentrated bull movement. Such a campaign would be prohibitive in cost and of too long duration to make it an assured success, hence for the next few months, or until the end of this year, it is to be allowed to drift, and if the professional bears are convinced of their position and there is none among traders or speculators strong enough to stem the tide, lower prices are inevitable. In the meantime stocks will have been accumulated by the strongest powers known and in the best possible hands for a new bull market to start with the turn of 1924 and be maintained at least until after election.

It is not the intention of the writer to try to forecast the stock market, and the foregoing is given merely as the bare outline of a possible program to which leading business men are believed to have subscribed in entirely informal discussions of the future. Wall street itself is confused over the future price trend and is naturally much concerned over the refusal of the public to buy stocks even at present-day levels. Commission houses are hard hit, as, according to the partner of one stock-exchange firm, July was the smallest month in years in point of commissions. Wire houses, some with private lines extending through to the Pacific Coast, are under heaviest expense, but there is an offset to them through an active business done in cotton and grain.

FUTURE BRIGHT

When Judge Gary is not averse to speaking informally, albeit for publication, of the present good volume of business on the Steel Corporation's books, and John D. Ryan is confident for the future of copper metal, and Julius H. Barnes is emphatic in his statement that dollar wheat is not spelling ruin for the western farmer, then it is that Wall street takes notice and acts accordingly, for these are among the most conservative of business men and among those who are not always rushing into print, but rather are sought for their views.

The question of railroad rates still is a moot one, and while some roads are seeking a higher schedule others are willing to lower their tariff in order to induce a bigger volume of traffic. In some places there is a feeling that railroad executives are overstating their case, which may act later as a boomerang, and while some roads admittedly are not well off, others are doing the best in their corporate histories.

There is thought to be lurking in the background for later Congressional discussion the soldiers' bonus and, as it doubtless is to involve the question of taxes, Wall street is bound to be vitally interested. The question of success or failure may not be approximated at this time, but its mention as a coming factor is thought to be timely. Among the offsetting factors to talk of receding business is the continued inability of railroads to find enough tonnages to enable them to roll up new records in the volume of loadings. Million-car weeks still are the order of the day, and the likelihood of their continuance is, of course, dependent on the needs of shippers. Another straw indicating the direction of the wind is seen in the tendency of steel mills slightly to increase their operations to an average of just better than 91 per cent of capacity credited to the biggest manufacturer from around 90 per cent a fortnight back.

LEGISLATION

It is a foregone conclusion among certain New York bankers that Congress is to be resorted to in a mighty effort to get the stock exchange under some sort of outside control. Several ineffectual attempts to legislate the institution into corporation have failed at Albany and, with the enormous losses rolled up throughout the country and laid up against Wall street, it is considered highly probable that some headway may be made along the desired direction.

Another bit of legislation that may be attempted in Washington is said to be that seeking a national blue sky law superseding State legislation. It is contended by persons watching this situation that barring the sale of securities from an individual State is not final in its prohibition, as "live-wire sale organizations" are now said to be conducting aggressive selling campaigns from outside the States in question through the medium of the mails, over which States officials have no authority. The bucket-shop situation in Wall street is quite well cleaned up, although it is said there remain one or two spots to be investigated.

FALL OUTLOOK MUCH BRIGHTER

Economists Predict Further Advance in Prices

Country Goes Into New Cycle With Good Prospects

BY ARTHUR D. WELTON
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Students of economic conditions and trends are standing pat on their May and June forecasts. Those were unanimously to the effect that the peak of the business cycle had not been reached, that the long-swing movement downward had not begun, that the current slump in stocks and commodity prices was a usual manipulation and that the late summer and early fall would bring a resumption of activity. In this resumption, they said, there would be a further price advance and probably new records of production and sales.

In the face of the records of the last few weeks they stick to their forecasts. They are not concerned even as to wheat. This product, they say, may not advance to the point of bringing profit to many of the growers, because the cost of raising wheat varies, but it will advance.

One reporter says that something will happen to help the wheat situation before the government or private enterprise has found an artificial plan of aiding the wheat grower.

WHEAT QUESTION

"It is more likely to be Providence than Congress," he said. "Has it occurred to you that all this agitation is over a crop that is only partly harvested? It snowed the other day in Calgary. There is black rust in Manitoba and the Dakotas. Rust and heat and drought can do in a week what the disturbed doctors of business couldn't do in a year. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has fathered an investigation of wheat conditions. A report is expected in three months. By that time there may be no wheat question."

There is no corn question. There never seems to be too much corn. It is the most useful and valuable of crops, and the most wonderful of grains. It is food for man and beast, fodder, oil, syrup, glucose, starch and some other things little known but all useful and important. The season's corn crop will bring the farmer wealth. The agitators are not concerned about corn.

The students point to the remarkable statements of the Steel Corporation, General Motors and Studebaker for evidence to support their position. There is nothing to comfort the calamity crew in them. The list of success could be multiplied many times. Big corporations and little jobbers and retailers are all doing business steadily, and apparently at good profit. Employment is general; there is a shortage of common labor everywhere that the lines of investigation reach. Building has become stabilized at about the capacity of the producing plant.

The credit and banking condition gives the students of condition the greatest comfort. They are unanimous in the declaration that money rates must harden, collections become slow and renewal of loans the rule, before there will be justification for the forecasting a turn in the cycle.

It may, then, be said that, regardless of many current troubles and indications, the country is going into the fall with business good and prospects bright. There is enough trade and demand within the country to give a great measure of prosperity, no matter how badly Europe fares. The condition may not reach the theoretical 100 per cent, but something much less may still be rated as prosperity.

This forecast, it may be added, calls for an upward movement in the price of stock exchange securities. It is not thought that the stock market can travel along indefinitely in the company of wheat or take its cue from the Ruhr. Psychology, it is agreed, has been an effective factor in the market. There has been a striking disposition to believe the things supported by rumor instead of fact. The business world has been getting a thrill from being scared. Standing in the zoo and looking at the giraffe it has declined to believe there is any such animal.

But the forecast says that presently the same observers will be shouting their enthusiasm and declaring that this same giraffe has a longer neck than any other giraffe in the world, and more spots.

The forecast goes no further. It begins to guess that the turn will come after the first of the year. How sharp will the turn be? Hope intervenes here. It may not be very sharp or the descent very steep. But turn there must be.

Winnipeg Grain Quiet; Chicago Market Closed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—With all American exchanges closed, as a mark of respect to the late President Harding, there was little more than usual interest taken in trading in grain at Winnipeg and Liverpool than is usually the case. Very few brokers were to be found at any time around the Board of Trade. A few houses had cables from a broad overnight, but they failed to bring any orders, and one house had a cable advising against sales of wheat to Germany at any price. It develops that American houses that have shipped some small lots abroad in the last six weeks are having trouble in getting their money.

Fairly general rains were reported in the Canadian Northwest over night and the forecast for the western provinces was for local showers. Dry and warm weather is needed to force the wheat and other crops to maturity, and there is increased apprehension of black rust damage.

Trading in Winnipeg was not large, and it took but little short covering on the unfavorable weather to make an advance, with the close on wheat ¾@⅞c higher, with oats ¼@⅜c higher.

South of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railroad in the Provinces of Manitoba, rust, blight and smutty has seriously cut down the wheat yield, according to the Sanford Evans report as wired to Logan & Bryan. Rust is found in practically all parts of the provinces, and is still spreading in Saskatchewan. It is too early yet to estimate the effect. Fair to good yields still seem probable.

Movement in the Canadian Northwest is down to a minimum, Winnipeg receiving thirty cars of wheat, against thirteen cars last year, and had twenty cars of oats, against twelve cars last year.

No reports as to overnight developments in the corn belt were received, with weather generally favorable for growth.

ECONOMIC AND MARKET VIEWS

Recent Price Movements Are Without Significance

Leaders Eagerly Await First Presidential Moves

Money Market is Bright Spot in Financial Horizon

BY HERBERT R. JACKSON

The recent movements of prices within the security markets in the past couple of weeks appear to be absolutely without significance. Stocks are not freely offered for sale, though it is safe to assume that there is a large volume of selling orders in the hands of brokers to be executed at prices higher than prevailing levels. It is equally true that there is a corresponding volume of buying orders below current price levels. A small rise brings about selling and a small decline brings about more buying. The volume of trading is small and such activity as there is seems to be mostly professional.

The eyes of investors and leaders in industry are turned toward President Coolidge, and his first public utterances are eagerly awaited. Coming from New England, it is natural to expect caution and conservatism of him, and it is obvious that legitimate business has nothing to fear from administration quarters.

On the other hand, the radical element of Congress is contemplated with grave concern, though the effect of radical vote-getting propaganda is more likely to be psychological than fundamental.

While we expect early recognition of Mexico and substantial benefits from a renewal of formal relations, there are many stops to intervene. Nevertheless, this factor is entitled to an optimistic interpretation. The foreign situation is in a hopeless tangle.

Another factor which attains greater significance is the agricultural situation, with high wages to pay and low prices for crops, especially wheat; the farmer's lot is not enviable. Yet the sales of mail-order houses and others catering to rural needs are not falling behind. Recent reports from companies of this nature are highly encouraging. Sears, Roebuck & Co., for instance, being prepared to meet maturing obligations out of cash, without resorting to new financing.

MONEY AND INDUSTRY

The money market is a bright spot on the financial horizon. An authoritative publication states that new financing has fallen off considerably in the past month, that interest rates on new issues, while ranging from 5 to 8 per cent show a decided tendency to decline on high-grade issues. There has been an unusual amount of railway equipment loans at 5 per cent. This condition indicates plentiful money for an extended period of time, and should aid materially in influencing higher price levels for sound securities.

Railroads continue to beckon invitingly to the investor, with but one drawback. Car loadings are about 20 per cent over a year ago, and exceed all previous records. The companies have overcome all effects of last year's strike. They are making money, but one element in Congress does not like to see them operate at a profit. This situation creates timidity on the part of investors.

The motor industry and affiliated lines are prosperous, but the rubber companies, especially those confining operations to the manufacture of tires, are competing keenly, and another reduction is threatened. It would seem good business to exchange stocks of such companies for those representing diversified rubber products.

The leather, fertilizer, chemical and rubber stocks are not doing at all well. Steels, equipments and rails have a substantial economic background. The oil outlook is still uncertain, but there is an increased demand for California crude oil, based on the reduced prices. California production in 1923 will probably be double that of last year, or even more.

Under conditions prevailing today, investors will do well to continue their cautious attitude. Investing only in the high-grade issues which can be bought on a high-yield basis, bearing in mind present monetary conditions and ignoring speculative considerations.

IRON STOCKS INCREASE; STEEL DEMAND GOOD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLEVELAND, Aug. 10.—Daily Metal Trade today says stocks of pig iron continue to increase at Pittsburg, as well as at Birmingham, and slow buying still keeps quotations at wide ranges. Both hot and cold rolled strip steel in larger tonnages are asked for by automotive builders and even larger needs are expected to develop. Wire mills in the Pittsburg district are catching up on deliveries with demand centered around bright wire and nails, but since customers have anticipated needs by thirty to sixty days, new buying is slow. Connellsville coke ovens by the hundred continue to close down and production to be curtailed, which adds to market strength, but whether quotations will continue is uncertain. Metal markets were closed today.

STREET OPTIMISTIC ON PETROLEUM OUTLOOK

MANY OF INDUSTRY'S LEADERS, HOWEVER, TAKING OPPOSITE VIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10. — While many leaders in the petroleum industry continue to take a pessimistic view of the outlook for the industry, due probably to the fact that they have been forced to carry the heavy load of overproduction since the beginning of the year, Wall street appears inclined to take a more cheerful view of the situation.

Wall street's attitude is based upon the fact that production has shown reductions during the past few weeks, while consumption has been carrying along, establishing a new high record almost every month.

Leaders in the industry still look askance at the California fields, which have been characterized as "the fly in the ointment," despite the fact that were it not for the increased production of the fields in that State there would actually be a shortage of oil in this country today. Production in California has been holding steady around 850,000 barrels daily for several weeks, despite the bringing in of many new wells.

The pessimism among trade officials probably is due to the predictions that the output may reach between 900,000 and 1,000,000 barrels daily by autumn. But Wall street accepts the predictions philosophically. In the street it is argued that even if such a record is reached the curtailment in fields east of the Rocky Mountains will offset any further increase in California, while the expanding consumption will help to reduce current supplies.

Southern California Oil Company, which recently brought in a [illegible] near Santa Fe Springs, announced yesterday that it would begin drilling a [illegible] on the same property. [illegible] secretary of the company, said that the derrick is [illegible] and that the machinery [illegible] from No. 1-A [illegible]. Drilling will begin [illegible] it will be done by H. L. [illegible]

Oil on Hand

The oil in hand at refineries in California July 1 amounted to [illegible] barrels, constituting [illegible] supply at the June [illegible] according to [illegible] of the Department [illegible] through the Bureau [illegible] estimate shows a [illegible] increase in stocks from [illegible] days' supply.

Price of gasoline

The price of gasoline available [illegible] year were sufficient [illegible] demands. Notwithstanding the existence of large [illegible] at this time, supplies [illegible] only 23 per [illegible] for the same [illegible] when the factor of increased demand is con-

[illegible] slight decrease in [illegible] of operating refineries [illegible] but the number remained [illegible] the Bureau of Mines for [illegible] being 1504. Their [illegible] daily refined crude oil [illegible] record, however, to [illegible] This increase is [illegible] to the installation of [illegible] additional stills which have just been reported to the bureau. These plants were operating during June at 77.9 per cent of their capacity, running to stills a daily average of 1,593,466 barrels of crude oil.

Rush Giant Reservoir

Crude oil storage capacity of the El Segundo plant of the Standard Oil Company of California will be increased by 2,432,000 barrels within a short time, according to officials of the company. A concrete reservoir of the above capacity is rapidly being rushed to completion. The huge oval is now completed except for the roofing.

More than 400 mules, several tractors and a large number of men are working in eight-hour shifts in the construction of a 3,161,000-barrel reservoir for the Standard at El Segundo. This largest crude oil reservoir in the world will be available for storage within ninety days, it is planned.

Two More Standard Wells

At Huntington Beach the Standard Oil Company has just brought in two new wells. They are the Boles No. 13, doing 2100 barrels of 27 gravity oil from a depth of 4476 feet, and the B-21, flowing 750 barrels of 25 gravity oil from a depth of 4580 feet.

Preparing to Move

The Richfield Oil Company and United Oil Company which recently formed a $15,000,000 merger here are preparing to move into new offices on the eleventh floor of the Bartlett Building, which was recently vacated by the Union Oil Company.

Municipal Pocketbook Hit

The city of Long Beach was $65,000 shy on revenue when it checked up its oil income for July, according to report. The curtailment of production from wells drilled on city property by the Jergens Trust is given as the reason for this condition of affairs. One city well, it is said, has been shut down and two others have gone on the pump.

WOOL PRICES HOLD STEADY ON MARKET

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON (Mass.) Aug. 10.—The Commercial Bulletin will say of the wool market tomorrow:

"Moderate buying has characterized the wool market this week, chiefly favoring the finer grades. Prices have kept steady on the whole, although hardly firm. As yet there has been no marked reaction in the wool market from the openings of lightweight goods. The trade, however, is encouraged by the keen interest displayed in women's wear lines and it is hoped that another month will see greater interest shown in the raw material end of the market.

"The foreign markets are generally steady. In the west there has been little business done and that mostly on a consignment basis.

"The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston from January 1, 1923, to August 5, 1923, inclusive, were 91,421,000 pounds against 77,744,529 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from January 1, 1923, to August 5, 1923, inclusive, were 350,045,500 pounds against 293,995,843 pounds for the same period last year."

WIDOW FILES ANSWER IN ESTATE CONTEST

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SANTA ROSA, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Ellen Sterrett, widow of John Sterrett, wealthy resident of Monterio, in this county, has filed an answer to a contest of his will, which was instituted by his son, John A. Sterrett of New York, who declared he was cut off without a cent in the instrument. The estate is valued at $250,000. In the contest, Sterrett said the widow was made the sole beneficiary "because of undue influence exercised over the testator." In her answer, Mrs. Sterrett, who is John A. Sterrett's stepmother, denies his legitimacy and also that of another contestant, Mrs. Mary Garrich, daughter of the testator.

FRANC FALL LAID TO BRITISH

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Aug. 10.—"There is no economic reason for the latest depreciation of the franc, which can only be attributed to an effort by British bankers to create the impression that the whole world is behind the British policy and condemns the franc in order to obtain a reparation settlement," a high official in the Ministry of Finance said today.

The franc was quoted at 17.5 to the dollar. The prewar equivalent was 5.18 to the dollar.

SOLVENCY ASSERTED

"British agencies have been making much of the recent advances by the government to the Bank of France in order to undermine world confidence in the franc, but it is a fact that such advances have been going on ever since the war. They are only temporary to meet the large reparations payments and are considered by financiers to be advantageous to the French policy as they show the solidarity which exists between the banking interests and the government.

"Otherwise France's financial position remains the same as it was six months ago. The Ruhr coats are being met. We are paying what we promised on the America debt, the trade balance remains virtually the same as last year and in addition we are able to continue repairing the devastated regions at our own expense instead of standing still while we wait for Germany to make good.

ASSERTS INCREASE

"Under such conditions it takes little economic knowledge to realize that every factory rebuilt increases France's financial reliability far more than any divergence with England on political issues impairs it."

The Paris press gives great publicity to a telegram from New York which states that the rapid fall of the franc in New York is not explained by the commercial situation and that financial circles declare it can not be due to the recent half-yearly payment by France of the interests on the debt contracted for the purpose of purchasing war material.

TELEGRAM QUOTED

This telegram declares Wall street is unanimous in the belief that the depreciation of the franc is exclusively due to British pressure. The Gaulois points out that owing to the depreciation of the franc since France bought war material from America, France's half-yearly payment, 'our days ago, was 130,000,000 francs more than when the original contract was made.

Although little exchange speculation is noticeable on the Paris Bourse, bankers are stressing the fact that certain British papers announced, on the afternoon Premier Baldwin made his declaration on the Franco-Belgian replies to the British note on reparations, that the financiers of Lombard street had decided to place immediate pressure on the franc.

SCHOOL "FACTORY" SCORED

Proposed Changes in Chicago Because of Overcrowding Are Both Lauded and Opposed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Public schools open six days a week on two shifts, or running continuously the year round without vacations, or the "platoon" system, the program to be started in the fall, laid down by the new Chicago Board of Education, has aroused a storm of controversy among educators and public officials.

President Mederwell of the Board of Education declares that the board is unanimous that something must be done to relieve overcrowding and inefficiency. John Dill Robertson, former president of the board, supports the innovation. Prof. Charles H. Judd, director of the school of education, University of Chicago, and President William B. Owen of the Chicago Normal College, favor the platoon system of rotating public school classes.

Opposed to the changes are Mayor Dever and Health Commissioner Bundesen. The Chicago Teachers' Federation has denounced them.

Charles E. Singletary, addressing an educational convention of subscription book publishers, discussed some phases of the situation.

"City congestion is responsible for these proposals for factory methods in schooling," said Mr. Singletary. "The country child may not have as elaborate an educational plant, but the wholesomeness of their lives is a compensation. Tabulated reports on this subject from subscription book salesmen who are recruited from teachers, college students and cultured people trained in educational problems show that the country child with a good home library has a better educational chance than a city child. A child needs air and space, not factory efficiency."

Mayor Dever declared that he was opposed to any curtailment of summer vacations. Miss Margaret Haley, business representative of the Teachers' Federation, declared the teachers would fight "to the last ditch" the six-day week or the platoon system, which she denounced as a makeshift.

SOVIETS THREATEN BERLIN

"Revolution Will Crush Germany," Speaker Tells Reichstag in Warning to Government

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The threat of a revolution, which for weeks has been talked about throughout the country, was heard in the Reichstag this afternoon when a speaker of the Communist party warned the government that its program would be answered with the proclamation of a soviet state "in which the present capitalist government would be crushed to pieces under the heels of the German proletariat."

"If the Communist revolution comes now we will have a military dictatorship here in ten days," a high Army official told the Tribune in the Reichstag lobby.

As a first step toward a revolution the Communist leaders have ordered the adoption of private resistance, or sabotage, throughout German industry. Reports from hundreds of plants indicate that all workers, Unionists as well as Communists, spontaneously adopted the resistance program today.

"A rotten day's work for a rotten day's pay," was the slogan on Communist posters which announced strikes throughout the country.

Employees of the Berlin subway are striking. Workers at two railway stations are out. Cavalry routed crowds this afternoon around the Reichsbank when money payments were stopped owing to the Reichsbank being cleaned out and the money printing presses being stopped because of a printers' strike. Militia and strikers clashed in a Berlin subway this afternoon, the workers being dispersed.

A general strike has been declared in Danzig. Port, wharf and street-railway employees are out as well as the printers. The fear of a general railroad strike is alarming American tourists in Germany.

PLAN FAST AIR MAIL SERVICE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—A twenty-eight hour mail service without a break between New York and San Francisco, which will include night flights between Chicago and Cheyenne, Wyo., over a lighted airway, will receive a five-day experimental trial starting on the 21st inst., it was announced by C. F. Egge, general superintendent of the Air Mail Service, who arrived in Chicago today from Omaha where he has been making an inspection trip over the lighted airway the planes will use.

Westbound planes will leave New York at 11 a.m., eastern time, and arrive in San Francisco the following afternoon. They will make stops at Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City and Reno. Eastbound they will leave San Francisco at 6 a.m., Pacific Coast time, arriving in New York the evening of the next day.

SERVICE IN THREE ZONES

They will receive and dispatch mail only at the eight cities on the route.

Air service is divided into three zones; the first from New York to Chicago; second, Chicago to Cheyenne, and third, Cheyenne to San Francisco. A postage rate of 8 cents an ounce for each zone will be charged.

The night airway from Chicago to Cheyenne will be lighted every three miles with 2000 candle-power lamps to guide pilots. Every 200 miles service stations have been established and are indicated by 600,000,000 candle-power beacon lights which are visible on clear nights for 127 miles at an altitude of 2000 feet.

Every twenty-five miles emergency landing-fields have been provided and 1,000,000 candle-power lamps will guide pilots.

Each plane is equipped with 400,000 candle-power searchlights to be used in emergency landings.

sued at Washington by Second Assistant P. M.-Gen. Paul Henderson of Chicago, who has been working on the continuous coast-to-coast service, states the five-day trial is only an experiment. Mr. Egge, who has been supervising the lighting of the night airway, expressed confidence the service would be permanent.

AIR STAMPS PRINTED

"We are so positive that this service will be permanent, air mail stamps have been printed and will be ready for sale shortly," he said. "However, if stamps are not available the correct amount of postage with indorsement 'Via Air Mail' will be sufficient."

The twenty-eight-hour schedule is based on flying ninety miles an hour.

"This time will undoubtedly be materially reduced as our planes are capable of 127 miles an hour," he said.

Each plane will carry approximately $2,000 letters.

P. M.-Gen. Harry S. New and Mr. Henderson. It is hoped, will be in Chicago when Pilot R. G. Page hops off for Omaha with the first batch of mail to be carried at night.

SEEK NEW CANDIDATE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Aug. 10.—Though Coconino county is averred overwhelmingly in favor of ratification of the Colorado River compact, the only candidate for the seat of the late State Senator Campbell is John Hennessy, a close friend of Gov. Hunt, and an opponent of the pact. Efforts have been made to obtain the assent of Fred S. Breen, Republican, to the use of his name, while there also has been suggestion of the name of Danny Campbell, son of the late Legislator.

PORT NOTES

Heavy passenger travel with Northern Pacific ports continues as is evidenced by the arrival at Los Angeles Harbor yesterday of the Admiral Line liner H. F. Alexander with more than 400 passengers aboard. The liner sailed on a return trip to Seattle last night with 425 passengers and big cargo of general merchandise. Among the passengers sailing for the north were Col. R. E. Morse of the Fairbanks, Morse Company; J. A. Graves, president of the Shamrock and Monument National Bank, and W. D. Woolwine of the same institution. A hunting party from Los Angeles was aboard. Among arrivals here was K. O. McKinnon, passenger traffic manager of the Pacific Steamship Company. Mr. McKinnon forecast a high-water mark for passenger travel to Northern California in the fall from Northwestern United States where his company is carrying on an extensive publicity campaign, reaching as far east as St. Paul.

The Swedish motorship Amur arrived at Los Angeles Harbor from Stockholm yesterday on her initial visit to this port. She brought 2000 tons of cement and a large cargo of print paper for Los Angeles dailies.

of passengers and freight. This will be the first ship of the big liners since her purchase by the Los Angeles Steamship Company from the United States Shipping Board, announced on the 6th inst., for upwards of a million dollars.

As an accommodation to expedite the landing of passengers on the arrival here of the City of Los Angeles and the liner Cabrillo of the same line, the California State Ferry Redondo steamer hereafter will board the liners in the quarantine area in the outer harbor and land upon passengers ingress there.

Reports are current that the United States Shipping Board tank steamer Mishicot is to be dry docked at the Bethlehem shipyards at Los Angeles Harbor for more than two weeks.

San pilotage are making Los Angeles Harbor a busy place for sailing vessels this week. The latest comer to come in the harbor for service is that of Thomas H. Dodd, which is flying Captain O'Reilly's flag now at Avalon, Catalina. In the fleet are Blanche Sweet, William Russell, George Martin and Claude Cooper, supervised by Robert Ellis Thompson, assisted by Edward Sutherland, is directing. Three were taking scenes outside the breakwater on a barge until nightfall drove them in last night.

"STAR" EMPLOYEES PAY LAST HONORS

MARCH IN BODY AS TRIBUTE TO HARDING, THEIR FORMER CHIEF

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARION (O.) Aug. 10.—Mrs. Harding's heart is still with the Marion Star, where for many years she devoted her best efforts in the upbuilding of the paper which her husband made famous around the world.

Today she made it emphatic that she desired all Star employees to attend the funeral of Mr. Harding. She personally directed that these sixty or more faithful servants be given a position of honor immediately following the honorary pallbearers in the funeral line. All marched to the Marion cemetery.

All the employees who personally knew Mr. Harding through the years turned out to pay their last tribute to their dead chief. Among the department heads were George H. Van Fleet, general manager; George Elliott McCormick, for many years head of the news department; James C. Woods, who started in as a carrier boy and became circulation manager; Henry R. Schaffner, business manager and treasurer; Fred L. Kraner, sporting editor, who started in many years ago as railroad reporter; Martin Luther Miller, the patriarch of the Star, who was with the paper when Mr. Harding bought it and who is still in the "ad alley" although virtually a pensioner; William Bull, foreman of the composing room, who entered the employ of Mr. Harding as a "devil;" Sammy Smith, printer, who two decades ago wrote plays for home talent productions, in one of which Mr. Harding was a principal; Charles W. Cramer, for thirty years foreman of the Star job department; Thomas H. Maher, who operated the first linotype in the Star office, and others who were on Mr. Harding's paper for a number of years.

During the campaign of 1920 the Florence Harding Newsboys' Association was formed. Its membership was made up of old Star carrier boys who peddled the Marion Star when Mrs. Harding, widow of the late President, was circulation manager.

Throughout the campaign this organization was active, its members being widely scattered throughout the United States.

Today the Florence Harding Newsboys' Association is still intact. George H. Foster, its president, says it will remain an organization as long as there is a member left. Many of the Florence Harding newsboys went to the cemetery today to attend the funeral services of Mr. Harding.

Fresno Planning to Exterminate All Rabid Dogs

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—Vaccination of dogs may be made compulsory in Fresno county if the spread of rabies is not immediately stopped by some other means, the county Supervisors announced today.

An ordinance is now being prepared to require that all dogs running at large on county highways be muzzled. It is designed to prevent rabid dogs from biting children who frequent the county roads.

Deputy sheriffs, constables and other county officers may be required to round up and shoot all unmuzzled dogs if such an ordinance is passed, as it is not planned to provide for a county pound or dog catcher.

City police were today ordered to round up all dogs which have not been vaccinated or which are without muzzles.

Fresno Legion Backs Boulder Dam Proposal

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—Fresno Post of the American Legion last night unanimously indorsed the Boulder Dam and the All-American canal project after the proposition had been laid before the post by John M. Kepley and Harry Foster of El Centro, representing the American Legion of Imperial Valley.

Indorsement was based largely on the possibility of reclaiming 450,000 acres of east side mesa lands in Imperial Valley, on which ex-service men are expected to receive ninety-day preferential rights of filing. Kepley and Foster are making a tour of posts in the State, while en route to the State convention of the Legion at Eureka.

HELD FOR ATTACK

Claremont Man to be Tried for Asserted Shooting

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Aug. 10.—Martin Gonzales of Claremont charged with assault with a deadly weapon following an attack on J. Inega on July 17, also of Claremont, was held to answer to the Superior Court today after his preliminary hearing before Judge White and bail was fixed at $1500 pending the trial.

Gonzales is said to have shot Inega after the two had quarreled over an asserted attack by Inega upon one of the former's daughters. Gonzales, hearing the girl's screams, ran to her assistance and the fight began immediately upon his arrival, culminating in Inega being shot in the leg. Mrs. Inega swore to the complaint and stated that Gonzales had attempted to make love to her and that it was this reason and not the asserted attack upon the girl by Inega that caused the fight.

EMPLOYEES VOTE FOR PENNSYLVANIA PLAN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—An overwhelming majority of its employees concerned in employee elections favor the Pennsylvania plan of employee representation, a statement from officials of that railroad system stated today. A tabulation of the percentage of employees voting in the elections was given. Of the 141,429 employees in the shop crafts, clerical and miscellaneous forces and maintenance of way, in which were elections this year, 110,918 participated by balloting, showing approximately 78.5 per cent. Of the 51,446 maintenance of way employees, 36,682 voted, or approximately 75 per cent. Of the other classes the shop crafts voted 85 per cent, clerical forces approximately 80 per cent, miscellaneous forces approximately 65 per cent.

STATE TROOPS SEARCH LOGAN

Force Congressman to Yield in Hunt for Arms

Charleston Election Result Not Yet Decided

Guards Take No Chances in Vote Tabulation

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHARLESTON (S. C.) Aug. 10. Congressman Turner M. Logan, chairman of the city executive committee, clashed with State troops guarding the Hibernian Hall here today when he attempted to enter the hall to preside over the committee meeting called to formally declare the result of Tuesday's municipal mayoralty primary. The chairman, who represents the first South Carolina District in Congress, resisted efforts of the soldiers to search him for arms.

Sheriff Poulnot of Charleston county was directed by Lieut.-Col. Harry Withington, commanding the two National Guard companies on duty, to arrest Mr. Logan, but the Sheriff instead prevailed upon the Congressman to go with him to an ante-room and a few moments later the Sheriff announced that the chairman was unarmed. Members of the committee and others were searched by the troops as they entered the hall.

PROTESTS SEARCH

Congressman Logan, who is a law partner of Mayor John P. Grace, protested vigorously when he was ordered by militiamen to halt and be searched as he entered the building. He brushed by the guards at the outer gate but was stopped by an officer.

"My person is sacred and I will not be searched," he declared. "I have no arms except a pen knife. Can't you take my word?"

"We are taking no man's word," Col. Withington replied, as he called the Sheriff, adding "the search is being done as a matter of precaution for you and for everybody else."

MILITIAMEN CALLED

Extra militiamen were called into the hall from the yard, where two companies of the One Hundred and Eighteenth Infantry were mobilized, when Archie P. Owens, a member of the committee, objected strenuously to the military searching him. Upon persuasion of friends, however, he yielded. No arms were found in his possession or on Mr. Logan, it was announced.

The committee decided to proceed with the counting of the ballots in the two boxes of Ward 11 and one of Ward 8, which were not tallied Tuesday night because the poll lists were found missing and upon which depends the outcome of the election. Without counting these boxes the vote stood:

Mayor Grace, 5590; T. P. Stoney, 6542.

SAYS COURT'S DUTY TO KEEP JURORS UNBIASED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SUPERIOR (Wis.) Aug. 10.—Walter Hard, managing editor of the Evening Telegram, who was called before Federal Judge C. Z. Luse and warned against publication of news that might have a tendency to prejudice jurors or veniremen in the Federal Court here today, made the following statement as to the controversy:

"The question at issue is whether or not the courts have the power to compel newspapers to withhold news from the public in order that jurors or veniremen may not possibly be prejudiced by the reading of such news.

"The accuracy of the news article which incurred the displeasure of the court has not been questioned. The objection raised is that it was of such a nature as to prejudice the veniremen to such an extent that it might not be possible to obtain an unprejudiced jury for the trial of Victor H. Arnold, who is charged with having used the mails to defraud. The court has dismissed the venire and ordered another drawn for service August 15, when the trial will commence. That any member of the venire was prejudiced by the news article has not been proven.

"To permit newspapers to print only such news as, in the opinion of the court, will not influence jurors or veniremen is a new departure and an encroachment upon the freedom of the press.

"It would seem that if the reading of newspaper articles tends to prejudice jurors it is then the duty of the courts to take steps to prevent the reading of newspapers by such jurors or veniremen and not to deprive the general public of the right to the news."

SCARCITY OF BUTCHER CATTLE BOOSTS PRICE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 10. — Unusual scarcity of finished beef cattle drove the price to a new top of $12.45, a record for the year, according to the weekly Trade Review issued today by Armour & Co.

Pork trade has been under a similar condition, the review stated, but hogs of extremely poor quality are arriving in large numbers, most of them being too inferior to tell what they are worth.

"It seems as though producers were simply sweeping their farms and sending the litter to market," the company stated. "The packer is hard put to know what to pay for such animals and what to do with them after he gets them."

CANADIANS ROUND UP CONTRABAND AUTOS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MONTREAL, Aug. 10.—Royal Canadian mounted police and customs officials seized four automobiles and thousands of dollars worth of automobile tires today in a round-up of smuggled goods Two of the automobiles were taken as they were about to board the Lachine ferry at Caughnawaga and the other two in Montreal streets. The total value of the haul was

NOTICIAS MUNDIALES DE ULTIMA HORA

En obsequio a nuestros numerosos amigos de habla española, y para beneficio de los lectores americanos del Times que estudien esa lengua, publicamos diariamente esta columna en castellano, con un extracto de las más importantes noticias de última hora.

Buena parte del futuro progreso de Los Angeles, que es la metrópolis de los Estados Unidos que más cercana se halla a territorio latino-americano, habrá de depender de las relaciones que logremos establecer con nuestras hermanas, las repúblicas del sur. Para que lleguen a ser enteramente cordiales, no hay nada tan importante como que nuestros ciudadanos se familiaricen con la lengua castellana. Tan se dan cuenta de este hecho nuestros habitantes, que hay al presente más de 25,000 personas que estudian español en Los Angeles. A ellas les conviene leer todos los días esta columna, en la que encontrarán español correcto y enteramente moderno.

NOTAS TELEGRAFICAS

WASHINGTON, agosto 10.—Todas las habituales quehaceres de Washington se han suspendido con motivo de los funerales de Harding, y ha habido servicios conmemorativos en muchas iglesias y teatros.

Se ha visto una política de agresión en los pasos dados por los líderes de las uniones obreras para conferenciar con el Presidente Coolidge e imponer a la nueva Administración la aceptación del criterio de los obreros.

Dicen los amigos del Presidente Coolidge que éste va a encarecer una rígida economía en los gastos del gobierno.

El Presidente Mueño Reposa ya en el Seno de la Tierra

MARION (Ohio) agosto 10.—El cuerpo de Warren Gamaliel Harding, vigésimo-nono Presidente de los Estados Unidos, disfruta ya de eterno reposo, desde hoy en la tarde, en las laderas cubiertas de césped del campesanto de Marion. Rodeados de afectuosos amigos, sus restos mortales fueron depositados en un mausoleo, adyacente a las tumbas de su madre y de su hermana. No hubo pompa ni ostentación en la ceremonia; fué ésta tan sencilla como lo hubiera dictado y deseado el editor del "Marion Star". Fué presenciada por una muchedumbre en silencio, y tan numerosa como si se hubiera tratado de un monarca muerto. Si alguien experto en manifestaciones de este género pudiera haber pasado revista cronológica de todos los dolientes que siguieron al cuerpo del Presidente muerto hasta el cementerio, sería posible presentar en ella los anales de todos los años de historia americana, con los cuales estuvo ligada la vida de Harding. Habría sido la historia de la República desde Lincoln: una narración de inquebrantable amistad, del amor eterno de una mujer; una narración de la que se hubiera enorgullecido Warren G. Harding, y que no sería sino la historia de su vida.

Manuel Martinez Sube al Cadalso en Arizona

FLORENCE (Arizona) agosto 10.—Manuel Martinez fué ajusticiado esta mañana en la penitenciaria del Estado, por el asesinato de J. Frank Pearson, Administrador de Correos de Ruby, Arizona, durante un raid de bandidos efectuado allí en agosto de 1921. Soltaron la trampa de la horca a las 5:24 a.m., y once minutos más tarde, Martinez fué declarado bien muerto. Marchó el condenado a su destino sin dar muestras de la menor emoción. Habían sido infructuosos cuantos esfuerzos hicieron muchas sociedades y muchas gentes de alto posición en Arizona y en Méjico, para ver de conseguir conmutación de la sentencia con el Consejo de Indultos del Estado. Martinez hasta el fin ha sostenido que se vio obligadó a acompañar a los bandidos contra su voluntad, y que no tomó parte, ni en la muerte del Administrador Pearson y de su esposa, ni en el saqueo de la oficina de correos.

NOTAS LOCALES

Las Ruedas de la Industria se Paralizan Cinco Minutos en Honor de Harding

Duró cinco minutos nuestro respetuoso silencio, pasados los cuales se reanudó el febril rumor de Los Angeles, que quiso concentrar toda su atención en recordar y honrar por breves momentos la memoria de nuestro muerto Presidente, Warren G. Harding. Este fué quizá el más elocuente de los tributos rendidos ayer a nuestro gran funcionario: el religioso silencio de una gran ciudad. Al sonar la una de la tarde, dejaron de girar las ruidosas ruedas de los tranvías; cesaron las llamadas de las bocinas de los automóviles, y el silencio de las praderas se extendió por todos los ámbitos de Los Angeles. Un Jefe Ejecutivo de esta nación, que cayó en su fila, frente a frente del deber, había tomado asiento entre los inmortales.

DEPORTES

Tennis

Vincent Richards y Carl Fisher, ambos jugadores del este, van a encontrase hoy en las finales del torneo de lawn tennis del Meadow Club, en Southampton, Nueva York. En todas partes del país se suspendieron ayer los torneos por respeto a la memoria del difunto Presidente Harding.

Yates

Siete rápidos yates van a jugar una carrera esta tarde para disputarse el famoso trofeo del Times. Partirán las embarcaciones de la escollera de San Pedro, navegarán alrededor de la boya de Punta Vicente, y regresarán; total, 18 millas de recorrido. El yate favorito de esta carrera es el rápido "Angela", que corrió tan lucidamente en la reciente regata de Santa Bárbara. También tiene muchos partidarios el "California", ganador de esta prueba el año pasado. Comenzará la carrera a la 1 p.m.

Golf

Invitase cordialmente al público a concurrir a la apertura de la nueva pista de golf en el parque Griffith, esta tarde. A la 1 p.m. principiarán las ceremonias de inauguración, entregando Ed Tufts dicha pista a la ciudad. El Alcalde Cryer la aceptará en nombre de los jugadores de golf de Los Angeles. Después comenzarán los matches de algunas notabilidades. La entrada será gratis.

Baseball

ONE AGENT SURVIVOR OF BATTLE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LENNUT (Ky.) Aug. 10.—Wounded in the shoulder and left leg and crawling and stumbling along, Alexander Gayheart of Perry county, a prohibition enforcement officer in R. L. Stewart's force, made his way into the railroad station at Lennut at break of day this morning, reporting that he was the only man laft of a party of four prohibition men headed by Stewart who entered the mountains late Thursday afternoon to capture a band of moonshiners said to be near Cockerill's Fork, on Lost Creek.

The other three men in the prohibition party were R. L. Stewart, J. A. Carpenter of Jackson and C. D. Morrison.

Gayheart says the men were trapped in a small valley by the moonshiners and surrounded. In this, the most remote and inaccessible section of the mountains of Breathitt county, widely known as a haven of moonshiners and fugitives.

The prohibition band was practically at the mercy of the moonshiners, Gayheart said, who were in the rear and on all sides of the mountains and who kept up a constant fire until early this morning.

During the battle, in which Gayheart lost track of all the remaining force with him and at which time the moonshiners were attacked from the rear by a Sheriff's posse, the wounded man took advantage of the opportunity to escape. He expressed little hope that any of the prohibition officers were alive. Gayheart was taken to a hospital in Hazard.

Wait for Word From America in China's Row

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Aug. 10.—The plans for intervention in China now are awaiting only President Coolidge's assent for the powers to take action.

Qual d'Orsay outlines the projected action as, first, a naval demonstration by the powers, second, a note signed by twenty-one nations who protested before the Boxer War; third, graver measures which the Allies hope to avoid if possible.

The Foreign Office even goes so far as to name two French cruisers which will be sent to China for the naval demonstration in the hope of scaring the Chinese into the semblance of orderly behavior.

MAN IS CHARGED WITH THREATENING POLICE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 10.—Jesse Sissom is in the County Jail in default of $2500 bond charged with threatening a police officer. His wife is making a fight for life in a local hospital, after taking poison with suicidal intent, the officers say. Sissom and his wife, say the officers, became involved in a quarrel. The neighbors called police and before they reached the house it is said the women swallowed lysol. The police contend Sissom met them at the door of his home with a revolver and threatened to shoot them if they attempted to enter. They disarmed him and had the woman rushed to

The Little Warrior

With most managers these spasms, which may be compared to twinges of conscience, pass as quickly as they come, and they go back to coining money with rowdy musical comedies, quite contented. But Otis Pilkington, happening along with the script of "The Rose of America" and the cash to back it, had caught Mr. Goble in the full grip of an attack, and all the arrangements had been made before the latter emerged from the influence. He now regretted his rash act.

"Say, listen," he said to Wally, his gaze on the stage, his words proceeding from the corner of his mouth, "you've got to stick around with this show after it opens on the road. We'll talk terms later. But we've got to get it right, don't care what it costs. See?"

"You think it will need fixing?"

Mr. Goble scowled at the unconscious artists, who were now going through a particularly arid stretch of dialogue.

"Fixing! It's all wrong! It don't add up right! You'll have to rewrite it from end to end."

"Well, I've got some ideas about it. I saw it played by amateurs last summer, you know. I could make a quick job of it if you want me to. But will the auther stand for it?"

Mr. Goble glowed a belligerent eye to stray from the stage, and twisted it round in Wally's direction.

"Say, listen! He'll stand for anything I say. I'm the little guy that gives orders around here. I'm the big noise!"

As if in support of this statement he suddenly emitted a terrific bellow. The effect was magical. The refined and painstaking artists on the stage stopped as if they had been shot. The assistint stage director bent sedulously over the footlights, which had now been turned up, shading his eyes with the prompt script.

"Take that over again!" shouted Mr. Goble. "Yes, that speech about life being like a watermelon. It don't sound to me as though it meant anything." He cocked his cigar at an angle, and listened fiercely. He clapped his hands. The action stopped again. "Cut it!" said Mr. Goble tersely.

"Cut the speech, Mr. Goble?" queried the obsequious assistant stage director.

"Yes. Cut it. It don't mean nothing!"

"Mr. Goble! Mr. Goble!"

"Well?"

"That is the best epigram in the play."

"The best what?"

"Epigram. The best epigram in the play."

Mr. Goble knocked the ash off his cigar. "The public don't want epigrams. The public don't like epigrams. I've been in the show business fifteen years, and I'm telling you! Epigrams give them a pain under the vest. All right, get on."

Mr. Pilkington fluttered agitatedly. This was his first experience of Mr. Goble in the capacity of stage director. It was the latter's custom to leave the early rehearsals of the pieces with which he was connected to a subordinate producer, who did what Mr. Goble called the breaking-in. This accomplished, he would appear in person, undo most of the other's work, make cuts, tell the actors how to read their lines, and generally enjoy himself. Producing plays was Mr. Goble's hobby. He imagined himself to have a genius in that direction, and it was useless to try to induce him to alter any decision to which he might have come. He regarded those who did not agree with him with the lofty contempt of an eastern despot.

Of this Mr. Pilkington was not yet aware.

"But, Mr. Goble. . . ."

The potentate swung irritably round on him.

"What is it? What is it? Can't you see I'm busy?"

"That epigram. . . ."

"It's out!"

"But. . . ."

"It's out!"

"Sure you have a voice," retorted Mr. Goble, "and you can use it any old place you want, except in my theater. Have all the voice you like! Go round the corner and talk to yourself! Sing in your bath! But don't come using it here, because I'm the little guy that does all the talking in this theater! That fellow gets my goat," he added complainingly to Wally, as Mr. Pilkington withdrew like a foiled python. "He don't know anything about the show business, and he keeps butting in and making fool suggestions. He ought to be darned glad he's getting his first play produced, and not trying to teach me how to direct it." He clapped his hands imperiously. The assistant stage-manager bent over the footlights. "What was that that guy said? Lord Finchley's last speech. Take it again."

The assistant stage manager bent ing the part of Lord Finchley, an English character actor, who specialized in London "nuts," raised his eyebrows, annoyed. Like Mr. Pilkington, he had never before come into contact with Mr. Goble as stage director, and, accustomed to the suaver methods of his native land, he was finding the experience trying. He had not yet recovered from the agony of having that watermelon line cut out of his part. It was the only good line, he considered, that he had. Any line that is cut out of an actor's part is always the only good line he has.

"The speech about Omar Khayyam?" he inquired with suppressed irritation.

"I thought that was the way you said it. All wrong. It's Omar of Khayyam."

"I think you will find that Omar Khayyam is the—ah — generally accept version of the poet's name," said the portrayer of Lord Finchley, adding beneath his breath, "You silly ass!"

"You say Omar of Khayyam," bellowed Mr. Gobre. "Who's running this show, anyway?"

Mr. Goble turned to Wally.

"Mr. Goble! Mr. Goble!"

"What is it now?"

"Omar Khayyam was a Persian poet. His name was Khayyam."

"That wasn't the way I heard it," said Mr. Goble doggedly. "Did thought he was born at Khayyam."

"You're probably quite right," said Wally, "but, if so, everybody else has been wrong for a good many years. It's usually supposed that the gentleman's name was Omar Khayyam. Khayyam, Omar J. Born 1050, A.D., educated privately and at Bagdad University. Represented Persia in the Olympic games of 1072, winning the sitting high-jump and the egg-and-spoon race. The Khayyams were quite a well-known family in Bagdad, and there was a lot of talk when Omar, who was Mrs. Khayyam's pet son, took to drink and writing poetry. They had it all fixed for him to go into his father's date business."

Mr. Goble was impressed. He had a respect for Wally's opinion, for Wally had written "Follow the Girl," and look what a knockout that had been. He stopped the rehearsal again.

"Go back to that Khayyam speech!" he said, interrupting Lord Finchley in mid-sentence.

The actor whispered a hearty English oath beneath his breath. He had been up late last night, and, in spite of the fair weather, he was feeling a trifle on edge.

"'In the words of Omar of Khayyam'. . . ."

Mr. Goble clapped his hands.

"Cut that 'of,'" he said. "The show's too long, anyway."

And, having handled a delicate matter in masterly fashion, he leaned back in his chair and chewed the end off another cigar.

For some minutes after this the rehearsal proceeded smoothly. If Mr. Goble did not enjoy the play, at least he made no criticisms except to Wally. To him he enlarged from time to time on the pain which "The Rose of America" caused him.

"How I ever came to put on junk like this beats me," confessed Mr. Goble frankly.

"You probably saw that there was a good idea at the back of it," suggested Wally. "There is, you know. Properly handled, it's an idea that could be made into a success."

"What would you do with it?"

"Oh, a lot of things," said Wally warily. In his younger and callower days he had sometimes been rash enough to scatter views on the reconstruction of plays broadcast, to find them gratefully absorbed and acted upon and treated as a friendly gift. His affection for Mr. Goble was not so overpowering as to cause him to give ideas for nothing now. "Any time you want me to fix it up for you, I'll come along. About 1½ per cent of the gross would meet the case, I think."

Mr. Goble faced him, registering the utmost astonishment and horror.

"One and a half per cent for fixing a show like this? Why, darn it, there's hardly anything to do to it! It's—it's in!"

"You called it junk just now."

"Well, all I meant was that it wasn't the sort of thing I cared for myself. The public will eat it! Take it from me, the time is just about ripe for a revival of comic opera."

"This one will want all the reviving you can give it. Better use a pulmotor."

"But that long boob, that Pilkington . . . he would never stand for my handing you 1½ per cent."

"I thought you were the little guy who arranged things around here."

"But he's got money in the show."

"Well, if he wants to get any out, he'd better call in somebody to rewrite it. You don't have to engage me if you don't want to. But I know I could make a good job of it. There's just one little twist the thing needs, and you would have quite a different piece."

"What's that?" inquired Mr. Goble casually.

"Oh, just a little . . . what shall I say? . . . a little touch of what-d'-you-call-it and a bit of thigummy. You know the sort of thing. That's all it wants."

Mexican Bandit Pays Penalty in Arizona Prison

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FLORENCE (Ariz.) Aug. 10.—Manuel Martinez, convicted of the murder of Postmaster Frank Pearson of Ruby, Ariz., was hanged today at the State prison.

The hanging was the culmination of a long and bitter legal fight in which the Mexican government took a hand to save Martinez from paying the death penalty.

Pearson was killed in a raid on the border town of Ruby by a gang of Mexican desperadoes, one of whom was Martinez. He was captured, tried and convicted. The case was appealed, but the judgment of the lower court was affirmed.

MEXICAN AGREEMENT IS NOT FULLY CLOSED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 10.—Despite declarations in the newspapers of Mexico City that the delegates of the United States to the recognition conference will leave Tuesday for Washington, both the American representatives, Charles B. Warren and John Barton Payne, declined today to admit that the negotiations were ended, or that their plans were settled enough to permit a statement that they would leave that day.

They admitted, however, that the understandings which have been reached are receiving finishing touches and final corrections. It is understood that instructions from Washington which would permit a formal closing and signing of the minutes of the acceptances, revolutionary and mixed claims conventions, have not been received.

The newspapers announce on information which they credit to the foreign office, that formal statements on the conclusion of the conference will be issued simultaneously Monday or Tuesday both here and in Washington on the depar-

Budget Increase Is Planned for Citrus Station

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 10.—A slight increase in the budget for the University of California Experiment Station here will take care of activities for next year, Dr. J. T. Barrett, director, stated on his return last evening from Berkeley, where he has been conferring with committees on budget details.

Activities will be increased at the station from another source also. There has been a transfer from the State Department of Agriculture to the University of California of the experimental work done in controlling and destroying plant parasites. That work will be done at the station here and will involve a new department.

While in the north the director also discussed details relative to instruction in fungus and disease control which will be given to students of university rank next year.

POST PLANS CLUBHOUSE

East Pasadena Legionnaires to do Own Construction

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Aug. 10.—The newly formed Lamanda Park Post of the American Legion will, according to an announcement made today, purchase a site and erect a building to be used as clubrooms. Several locations in East Pasadena are being considered.

The Lamanda Park Post, whose membership is but fifty, has planned to build the structure itself during spare hours. The new post has been organized but a few months. According to Commander Lester Gray, a membership drive will be started within a few days.

WOMAN DENIED HOTEL LICENSE

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Louise Norcross, lessee of the Natlee Hotel, at the solicitation of John Burke, proprietor, was denied a license to operate the hostelry, by local Trustees this morning. Mrs. Norcross has been arrested on two different occasions on charges of violating dry ordinances. Edward Clark, when manager of the hotel, was arrested twice on similar charges. Other complaints of disorder have been made against the hotel and the place has secured a bad name, Burke asserts.

BELGIUM CONCERNED AT FALL OF FRANC

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Aug. 10. — Belgium is much concerned over the fall of the Belgian franc, which is quoted at only one-fourth of the par value. According to Brussels financial correspondents of the Paris newspapers, M. Lepreux, vice-governor of the National Bank of Belgium, came to Paris unannounced and completed arrangements with Paris banks to open a credit of about 500,000 francs to Belgium for the purpose of stabilizing the Belgian

POLICE POLITICIANS IN PALPABLE PERTURBATION

Imminent Revelations in Heath Case Make Uneasy Heads of City Hall Kitchen Cabinet

Detective Lieutenant Oaks, who was Chief of Police until he was fired by Mayor Cryer following Oaks's dismissal of R. E. Heath, let it be known yesterday in an emphatic way that he will be present next Wednesday at the Police Commission hearing of the charges against Heath. The testimony that Oaks can give relates to the hampering and binding of his efforts as Police Chief, by pernicious politicians, moving in subterranean ways.

The hush hearing was thrown on an uproar last week when representatives of the Crime Commission accused the Mayor of discharging Oaks in order to wreck the case against Heath. The former Chief disappeared for two days, then came back fighting and yesterday declared his intention of exposing the light of day the unscrupulous creatures and methods behind his official acts.

Efforts opposed to the Crime Commission were manifestly perfected when information brought to them that high police officials whose integrity as witnesses is unquestionable, are planning to take the stand in the Heath case and recount incidents of importance to the life of perhaps the extent of the corruption and the identity of the higher ups unknown to the police or public.

PASTORS EULOGIZE HARDING

President's Life to be Theme of Sermons Tomorrow; Author of "Wayfarer" to Speak Here

Memorial services for the nation's late leader, sermons in which the great chief's virtues will be extolled, and musical programs to include the rendition of Mr. Harding's favorite hymns will feature the meetings at more than 200 Los Angeles churches tomorrow.

A recent address of the late President in which he made a plea for a more vital application of the principles of Christ will serve as a background for a sermon on "The Challenge to Religion," to be preached by Rev. M. Howard Fagan tomorrow morning at the Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church.

Dr. Benjamin Haywood, pastor of the Wilshire Methodist Church, who was on his vacation at San Francisco at the time of Mr. Harding's death, hastened home from the north in order to preach the memorial sermon at his church here tomorrow morning. Special solos will be sung by Mrs. Pearl C. McMullen and Leslie McCormick and favorite hymns of the late President will be sung by the congregation.

Immortality in its relation to the human soul, and the value to each life of faith in the spiritual forces will form the theme of a sermon to be preached by Dr. G. A. Briegleb at the Westlake Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning. In the evening Dr. Briegleb will preach on "Warren G. Harding—Friend, Patriot and Christian." In the course of his address Dr. Briegleb will discuss the following questions: "Will Mr. Harding's death mean a modification of the Volstead Act? What may we expect from President Coolidge regarding the great issues, in the light of his past record? Is Gov. Smith of New York trying to ride into the White House on a beer barrel?"

FAMOUS AUTHOR HERE

Dr. J. E. Crowther, author of "The Wayfarer," the great pageant which is to be given here in September, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday and will address a mass meeting to be conducted at the Philharmonic Auditorium next Tuesday evening. The magnitude of the production and its influence for good on community life will be emphasized. Montgomery Lynch, director of the pageant, will give a description of the various scenes. No admission fee will be charged to the lectures and the public is invited.

TEMPLE BAPTIST

"The Heart of the Resurrection" is the subject of a sermon to be preached at the Temple Baptist Church tomorrow morning by Dr. J. A. Earl, pastor of the First Baptist Church of St. Paul, Minn. The evening program, starting at 7:30 o'clock, will include motion pictures and a musical program by Harold Procter. Dr. Ray Hastings and Misses Alberta and Lorene Davis. Dr. Earl will preach on "Around the Fireside" and an address on "Building Public Opinion" will be given by Dr. B. S. Hudson, associate pastor of the church.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Services will be conducted tomorrow at 11 a. m. in the fifteen Christian Science Churches of Los Angeles. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon is "Spirit." Services will also be conducted tomorrow evening at First, Third, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, Tenth and Thirteenth Churches and at 3 p. m. in Second Church. All churches conduct regular Wednesday evening meetings, at which testimonies of Christian Science healing are given.

TRINITY STATES DAY

States Day, an annual institution of Trinity Methodist Church, will be observed at Trinity Auditorium tomorrow morning and special sections will be reserved for former residents of, and visitors from various States of the Union. All American flag will be presented to the State Society with the largest attendance at the service. Addresses will be made by Rev Bob Shuler, the pastor, and by Dr. C. C. Selecman, former pastor. At the evening hour Mr. Shuler will preach on "America and Her Foes."

"THE OTHER FELLOW"

Dr. W. J. Thompson, pastor of the First Congregational Church at Oakland, will supply the pulpit of the First Methodist Church tomorrow. Dr. Thompson will preach in the morning on "A Message Marked Personal," the topic for evening being "The Other Fellow." Organ recitals will be given at 10 a. m. and 7 p. m.

FIRST BAPTIST

Officials of the First Baptist Church announced yesterday that "the church is not taking a vacation" and that services will be continued, as usual, throughout the summer. Tomorrow morning Dr. J. A. Francis, the pastor, will preach on "The Power of an Endless Life." The preacher for the evening will be Dr. R. B. Jones, noted Welsh minister.

"REMEDY FOR WORRY"

"Should Evolution be taught in the Tax-supported Schools?" That is the subject of a sermon to be preached by Dr. J. Frank Norris at the Church of the Open Door tomorrow evening. The subject for the morning discourse is "The Sure Remedy for Worry, and How to Keep Well."

BISHOP TO SPEAK

Dr. Charles Edward Bishop of the University of West Virginia will supply the pulpit of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church tomorrow, according to announcement made yesterday. At the morning hour Dr. Bishop will discuss "Our Tremendous Inheritance and the Safety of the Same," the topic for evening being "The Use of the Word Christian in the Bible." Soloists for tomorrow will be Mrs. Harry Scott Ross and Mrs. Ada Fay Tuttle.

WILSHIRE PRESBYTERIAN

In the absence of Dr. J. A. Eby, the preacher at the Wilshire Presbyterian Church tomorrow will be Rev. Arthur Edwin Wake, associate pastor, whose subject for the morning address will be "The Relation of the Child to the Church." Preceding the evening sermon a musical program will be given by Meryl W. Regnier and William J. Reed and the motion-picture "Keeping Up Appearances" will be shown.

"THE SHORTEST CREED"

The question, "What is the difference in the creeds of the Fundamentalists and Liberals?" will be discussed at the First Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning by Rev. Paul C. Elliott, who will preach on the subject, "The Shortest Creed I Deem Sufficient." The topic for evening is "Questionings and Certainties."

ANGELUS TEMPLE

According to Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson there are only two roads to be found in life, one of them leading to Heaven and the other to perdition. Mrs. McPherson will preach on the subject "Which Road?" tomorrow morning at the Angelus Temple. The subject of the afternoon sermon is "The Ten Virgins." The evening service will be featured by selections given by the Swanee Jubilee Singers.

DR. PEASE TO SPEAK

"Those who have not given the matter much consideration do not realize the fact that much that is done to perpetuate religion really tends to destroy it." That is the opinion of Rev. Charles Pease who, in the absence of Manly P. Hall, is supplying the pulpit of the Church of the People, and who will speak at that church tomorrow morning on "Getting Rid of Religion." The subject for the evening address is "Patience and Godliness."

CHURCH NOTES

The church office of the Olivet Community Congregational Church, at Wilshire and Mariposa streets, was completed yesterday, according to announcement made yesterday by Rev. Dr. Frederick Hall Sumner, pastor. Many of the material of the office was raised by the women of the congregation, the men donating the labor. The dedication of the "Mother's Room" of the new manse will be held on Tuesday afternoon, the speaker for speaking being "The Revival Which Grew Out of a Church Quarrel."

Dr. Willis R. Kerr, pastor of St. Paul's Cathedral, announced yesterday that at the services to be conducted tomorrow morning and evening at the cathedral the topic chosen by the pastor will be "Christian Life Centered in the Cross." Dr. Kerr is a native of Scotland, a brother of Sir Jamieson. Christians of all denominations are invited.

Rt. Rev. William Hall Moreland D.D., Bishop of Sacramento, will be the preacher tomorrow morning at St. Mary Magdalen's Church, Vine and Yucca streets, Hollywood. Bishop Moreland will be assisted in the services by Rev. Ernest S. Bartlett, vicar of Trinity Pro-Cathedral, Sacramento.

Dr. James M. Campbell of Claremont will occupy the pulpit tomorrow morning and evening at the Mount Hollywood Congregational Church, according to announcement made yesterday by the pastor, Rev. Frank Dyer. Dr. Campbell is pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Dr. W. G. Smith, pastor. Morning topic, "The Christian's Hope." Evening topic, "Heaven." Rev. Paul Bretscher, Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Rev. E. F. Colvin, pastor. Morning topic, "What Is Missing in Many Churches?" Rev. Frank Dyer, pastor of the Hollywood Boulevard Congregational Church, Dr. Frank Dyer, pastor. At the service tomorrow morning to be conducted at the Immanuel Presbyterian Church, Dr. Charles Edward Bishop, president of West Virginia University, will preach on "Our Tremendous Inheritance and the Safety of the Same." Evening topic, "The Use of the Word Christian in the Bible." Soloists, Mrs. Harry Scott Ross and Mrs. Ada Fay Tuttle.

The approaching world convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Church will be the theme of Rev. W. Ball's sermon at St. Mark's Lutheran Church tomorrow morning.

Granted Decree After Five Days of Wedded Life

Marriage brought her only discord and quarrels instead of the expected peace and quiet, Mrs. Emma Jane Thomas, 42 years of age, told Judge Clock, who granted her a decree of divorce from her husband of five days, Frank E. Thomas, 64 years of age.

During the five days of their honeymoon, before Thomas finally deserted her, the wife declared her husband made her life miserable by his insane jealousy. He falsely accused her of telephoning other men, the wife told the court.

CRYER READY TO TEST BOULEVARD STOP PLAN

PARTNERS END POLICE DUTIES

Two Eventful and Dramatic Careers Are Closed

Roberds and Ritch Together for Sixteen Years

Tracked Elusive Criminals in Byways of City

to become the partner of "Cap" Roberds, having joined the department Sept. 7, 1892. Roberds hailed from Indiana, Rich from Alabama. The records of both show that neither has ever been reprimanded by a superior officer, an achievement well worthy of praise.

The files at the Central Police station contain the reports of many of the great crimes of the country, but none more thrilling or denser than those handled by the Roberds-Ritch team. Lack of space prevents complete narration of all these cases. A few of them would have made weird material for the pen of Edgar Allen Poe.

Most of the veteran residents of the city will well remember the Scheck case. Joel Scheck, a taxidermian, was shot and killed in cold blood in his bed on the night of June 4, 1906. His body, with bullet wounds in the chest and head, was found lying across the bed. Roberds and Ritch were assigned by Chief of Detectives Auble to the case. They arrived at the scene of the murder in a rooming-house on Wall street. They were told by Scheck's wife that Scheck had been murdered by a Mexican burglar. Preliminary investigation convinced the detectives that the wife was not telling the truth. They placed her in custody and, after twenty days' work on the case, were able not only to "break" the widow's story into a complete confession of her knowledge of the murder, but also to apprehend the murderer, Ernest Stackpole.

MURDER SOLVED

They learned that Stackpole, after a slight acquaintance with Scheck, had succeeded in influencing the wife to have her husband insure his life for $500. Then, on the night of June 4, 1906, while she stood in the room with her hands over her eyes, Stackpole shot and killed the husband in his bed. Stackpole was taken into custody by the detectives in a poolroom to which he was known to frequent and later was sent to San Quentin for life.

A unique feature of this case was the fact that Roberds, while a barber here, gave Scheck his first shave.

Another case worthy of comment was the murder of Police Officer Walter Auble, September 4, 1911. Capt. Auble in company with Capt. Flammer of the detective bureau, were on the trail of a notorious gang of burglars. They learned the location of the criminals' rendezvous, and, planning their capture at a later hour, visited the place and filed the firing pins from the revolvers found in the lair. But their plans did not carry through as anticipated. The two officers met two of the gang at the corner of Ninth and Wall streets and attempted to place them in custody. One of the pair, Ike Sutherland, carried a "gat" which had not been "jiggered" by the officers. He whipped it out suddenly and shot Capt. Auble through the neck, inflicting a mortal wound. Capt. Flammer placed the other man under arrest.

Roberds and Ritch were given the task of capturing Sutherland. After working all night on the date of the murder the detectives found a room at Seventy-second and Figueroa streets where Sutherland and Travers to hang out. There they concealed themselves and waited. Their long vigil was finally rewarded by the appearance of the murderer, who, however, apparently aware of an attempted early capture, had provided himself with the means to thwart the efforts of the police to place him on the gangman's platform. As the detectives were about to place the handcuffs on his wrists he raised his right hand and swallowed a quantity of cyanide of potassium from a small bottle attached to his vest. He died immediately afterward.

A more involved case which was brought to a successful culmination by Roberds and Ritch was what is known in police records as the Dillon case. C. C. Dillon, a married man with four children, came to this city a woman by the name of Mary Quinn from Chicago. The day after they arrived in town he took her to an empty house on Arlington street for the ostensible purpose of renting the place, and there murdered her with a bear gun in a small upstairs room. Roberds and Ritch were assigned to solve the fiendish crime. Their investigation gave them the information that Dillon was from Chicago.

CHICAGOAN TRACED

With the assistance of the Chicago authorities Roberds and Ritch were able to trail Dillon to his home in that city. But through powerful channels the murderer learned that the Los Angeles detectives were after him, and early one morning several weeks after the crime committed suicide by hanging himself on the tracks in front of a speeding paper train on the outskirts of Chicago.

The records of these two veteran officers are illuminated with the details of a great many cases, the narration of which would require numerous columns of space. And a great many more columns would be required to set forth the comments made by the veterans of the department as to the activities of "Cap" Roberds and "Joe" Ritch. But of all the comments that could be gleaned from the personnel of the department perhaps the most significant of the work done by "Cap" and "Joe" and the most treasured of those veteran officers would be the unanimous expression heard at every turn of the road that Roberds and Ritch "were always square shooters."

ENVER PASHA GIVEN OVATION BY TURKS

[BY UNITED AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 10.—Enver Pasha arrived from Lausanne, where for several months he was engaged in the pourparlers which led to the signing of the treaty with the Allied powers and was received by the populace. The city was elaborately decorated and tonight there were illuminations in his honor.

BURON FITTS OPERATED ON

Chief Trial Deputy Undergoes Twelfth Treatment for Injuries in France; Patient Doing Well

In order to save his right leg, which was injured by shrapnel in the Meuse-Argonne offense in France in 1918, Buron R. Fitts, formerly lieutenant in the Three Hundred and Sixty-fourth Infantry, Ninety-first Division, and now chief trial deputy in the District Attorney's office, yesterday underwent his twelfth operation.

The operation was performed yesterday morning at the California Hospital by Dr. John Carling, chief of the orthopedic service of the Veterans' Bureau, and Mrs. Francis L. Anton and Frank Brown.

Mr. Fitts was reported later as being as well as might be expected due to the shock of the operation. He is expected to resume his duties in the District Attorney's office in about three weeks. The operation was necessary because of infection that had set in.

Mr. Fitts underwent an operation in France immediately after his injury in battle. Then he returned to the United States and campaigned for the sale of Liberty Bonds. He later was elected commander of the American Legion for California, during which time he was forced several times to undergo additional operations. After leaving that post he was elected national committeeman and was urged to make the race for national commander.

Upon the appointment of Asa Keyes as District Attorney, Charles W. Fricke was named chief deputy and Mr. Fitts, chief trial deputy.

POLICE POLITICS GIVEN BLOW

the Mayor had strawberry shortcake and tea. Mr. Kinney, who looked well-fed and sleek, maintained a discreet silence. Mr. Parrot, it seemed, was awaiting the rest of the luncheon party, and had consumed his meal, leaving him free to pursue conversation.

"Mr. Mayor, did you make any recommendations to the Chief concerning transfers or personnel?" he was asked.

The Mayor signed a bond. With a flourish Mr. Kinney blotted it.

"I never do that," answered the Mayor. "If I did I should become responsible for the actions of the police department. I let the Chief do his own work."

"In many quarters, Mr. Mayor, the appointment of Capt. Cleveland Heath to replace his suspended brother, Lee Heath, in command of Central Station, seemed a result of the Wednesday luncheon," said one of the interviewers.

Sancho Panza Kinney cackled—that expresses it—and waved his blotter frantically. "I thought we'd get to the heart of this talk pretty soon," said he.

The Mayor signed two bonds. They dried during the blotter-waving.

"That appointment was a surprise to me and Mr. Kinney," he answered.

"Well," replied the interviewer, "in justice to Cleveland Heath it's fair to say he was a logical man."

"Do you know what former Chief Oaks is going to do about the Heath hearing, Mr. Mayor?"

"No, I don't," he replied. "I haven't seen that fellow in a month."

"What do you make of Police Commissioner De Coo's attitude in issuing a statement that you made a mistake in firing Oaks twelve hours before he was to testify against Heath?" asked the newspaper men.

The signing went on.

"I suppose he was misquoted," said the Mayor. "I haven't seen him since the last commission meeting."

"If Capt. Lee Heath is reinstated will he be assigned to the command of Central Station again?" the Mayor was asked.

"I don't know," he answered; "that is the Chief's duty to decide. You know Capt. Heath always wanted to be transferred anyhew."

"Now, Mr. Mayor, at that luncheon, did you ask Chief Vollmer to fire Capt. Hilf and Secretary Boyesen?" was the next question.

"What did the Chief say about that?" shot back the Mayor.

"He would neither deny nor affirm it, and said to ask you about it."

"I don't recall saying anything about it," replied the Mayor, while the bonds went unsigned.

MR. KINNEY KNOWS

Mr. Kinney waggled the blotter up and down.

"Positively not!" exclaimed the bond blotterer. "The two gentlemen were not mentioned during the conversation."

"I don't believe we talked about it at all," supplemented the Mayor.

That closed the interview. The signing and blotting were resumed in peace.

"Please set the latch on the door," called Clerk Kinney as the newspaper men departed into the deserted corridor.

JAIL INMATES OFFER TRIBUTE TO HARDING

TEARS FLOW WHEN PRISON CHOIR SINGS "NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE"

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 10.—Prisoners in the Sacramento County Jail today joined in paying homage to the memory of President Harding with a unique memorial service arranged and conducted by themselves.

There were no flowers, and only the bare iron and masonry walls confronted the little group on the top floor of the jail as they rendered their measure of devotion to the dead chief.

A choir composed of six prisoners sang the late President's favorite hymns; S. Catlono, a native of the Philippines, offered a prayer and E. V. Stilwell and R. A. Vogess, other prisoners, delivered eulogies to the late President.

Tears streamed freely from the eyes of those allowed to take part, many of them hardened criminals, as the choir sang the old familiar strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," others joining in the refrains with hoarse and broken voices.

ONE OF LARGEST

The Swiftstar, a craft with a deadweight capacity of 15,000 tons, was one of the largest tank steamers plying out of Los Angeles Harbor and operated under the house flag of the Mallory Line She went through the Panama Canal on July 13 last and sent no radio messages, nor was she sighted or spoken after that date.

Fears are also held at the local port for the safety of the tank steamer Cape Ann, which sailed from Los Angeles Harbor July 14 last for Bayonne (N.J.,) and which up until a late hour yesterday had not yet been reported at Panama. She will this morning be fourteen days overdue at the Canal.

The Cape Ann is a craft almost identical in construction and design to the Swiftstar and was operated in the coastwise trade of the Pure Oil Company of Philadelphia.

ARREST TRIO ACCUSED OF FRAUD IN OIL

Black, Chapin and Maulding Held on Indictments by Federal Grand Jury

On the strength of Federal Grand jury indictments resulting from investigation into the activities of local oil promoters, Glenn W. Black, president of the Consolidated Investment Corporation of Fresno, and two other oil men, John M. Maulding and D. B. Chapin, were arrested yesterday on the charge of using mails to defraud. Black was taken into custody at Fresno, where he is held under $10,000 bond, and Maulding and Chapin were apprehended in San Antonio, Tex.

The men in custody, in addition to H. W. Howland, George H. Kipling and Jack Carillo, against whom indictments were also returned, are charged with making fraudulent statements through the mails in regard to a vast tract of land said to have been owned by Chapin. It is asserted that they told prospective purchasers that Chapin owned 1,333,750 acres of land in Zapata and Webb counties, Texas, a part of which is known as the Borrego grant. It was charged further that the accused represented the land to be rich and fertile, with many indications of oil and that the land was a better oil prospect than any producing land in the Lone Star State.

These statements, it was charged, were fraudulent, and made for the purpose of obtaining money from investors.

LONG BEACH WAR STARTS

real earnest to enlighten the public as to the merits and demerits of the scheme. Paid advertisements began to appear in the daily papers. They bore the signature of the "Community Development Committee" and set out to show that the claims of the "Citizens' Gas Committee," while sincere enough, were based on theory and that the city could not operate a gas plant at a profit.

Public debates before various clubs, with leaders of both factions setting forth claims for and against the proposition became the chief feature at the meetings of these clubs.

WHAT ANTIS SAY

Prominent opponents of the plant are Louis N. Whealton prominent attorney and former mayor; M. O. C. Hull, manufacturer and head of the American Legion here; W. L. Mulford and John A. Rodgers.

Mr. Whealton is positive that a municipal gas plant will be a failure in Long Beach. He cites scores of cities in the United States which have tried the plan, and which, he declares, have gone back to the old order of things, wiser and poorer. In a debate last Thursday between Prof. James M. Hyde of Palo Alto and Mr. Whealton, before the Masonic Club, it was contended by the Professor that Palo Alto is a good example of a city that is running a municipal gas plant at a profit. The profit, he said, was $50,000 a year. But the product cost the city 51 cents a thousand whereas it would cost Long Beach only 8 cents a thousand, thereby making this city's profit several times greater than that of Palo Alto.

Mr. Whealton, taking the negative of the debate, would not admit Palo Alto as a fair example of municipal ownership and declared that there are considerably fewer cities managing their own public utilities now than three years ago. Although Long Beach operates its own water plant, he does not consider that as a shining example of the value of the plan, he said.

The Southern Counties Gas Company, while heated arguments were at their height, refrained for weeks from getting into the debate and it was not until the other day that large display advertisements bearing the company's signature began to appear in local newspapers.

The company and other opponents to the plan, in an effort to combat the data being put forth by municipal gas plant adherents, are issuing warnings against the misleading qualities of comparisons. Consumers in Toledo, one of the cities named by the proponents as a place where the apparent gas rate is only 35 cents a thousand, are in addition required to pay a monthly "readiness to serve" charge of 65 cents, making the total cost an even $1 a thousand. The average domestic gas bill in Toledo, anti-municipal ownership factions declare, is higher than the average bill in Long Beach.

Wichita, Kan. is another town pointed out by the antis as one where the rate is low but the "readiness to serve" charge is high. Palo Alto and Huntington Beach, two California towns pointed out as examples of successful municipally-owned gas plants, pay $1.20 and $1.25 per thousand respectively, opponents of the scheme declare.

Other municipally-owned gas plants have lower rates than that prevailing in Long Beach but an investigation of their annual reports show that deficits are being piled up each year. The law of average proves, the antis contend, the one successful method of determining the merits or demerits of the proposed municipal plant. Six out of every seven municipal gas plants in the country have been failures, they cite.

WHAT PROS SAY

It is the contention of the Citizens' Gas Committee that the city is in a position to obtain natural gas in its raw state on Signal Hill without cost. It is claimed that with the municipal plant in operation the city will be able to make a profit of $4000 a day and that, in addition, it will save domestic consumers a like amount daily.

This expected double saving of $8000 is not based, Scott Alexander points out, on the daily sales reports of the Southern Counties Gas Company, but on the fact that with cheaper gas available many of the larger hotels, apartment houses and office buildings now using oil for fuel, will switch over to natural gas, thus increasing the demand.

Mr. Alexander, speaking for the municipal plant, also says that a more important factor will be that the gas will cost the city less than nothing since the city proposes to install a gasoline extracting plant on Signal Hill which will take from the wet gas a quantity of gasoline before the product is turned into the mains. The profits from the extracting process will more than pay for the cost of the gas, Mr. Alexander thinks.

It is also pointed out by proponents of the bond issue that the Southern Counties Gas Companies' contract with the Industrial Fuel Supply Company, from which it receives its product, calls for a wholesale price three times greater than the city would have to pay in the open market for natural gas.

Not all of the proposed $3,000,000 will be required, Mr. Alexander said, to construct the plant and distributing system with a capacity double that of the Southern Counties Company's outfit. The municipal plant will be able to handle 35,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day and this can be increased by the addition of a few more mains, he declares. On the other hand, he points out, the company, if it continues business here, will soon face the necessity of replacing with new pipe its entire distributing system.

'CALL ME HENRY' IS IN TOWN

Henry Lansburgh Likes City and May Return to Live Here, He Asserts

"Call me Henry" is one of the guests at the Clark, who arrived in Los Angeles yesterday for a few days' visit.

He is Henry Lansburgh of Washington, D. C., head of one of the leading department stores and Past Potentate of Almas Temple of the Mystic Shrine of that city.

His grips are marked "Call me Henry, Washington, D. C.;" it is inscribed on his belt buckle and his socks; and his card, which is only an inch and a half long and half an inch wide, bears the legend in addition to his name, as does his stationery.

So everybody calls him Henry, including high government officials. The director of the Navy Band in Washington has composed a march dedicated to Lansburgh, entitled, "Call Me Henry," which was played on numerous occasions during the late President Harding's trip, the band forming a part of the Presidential party.

"I get letters every day addressed 'Call me Henry,' Washington, D. C.,'" said Lansburgh. "Some of them come from distant places—the Pacific Coast, even Europe."

Henry is stopping here on his way to Alaska, where he will spend most of his vacation.

"I was there last year and enjoyed myself so much, I thought I would try it again," he said.

He is much charmed with Los Angeles.

"I was here for the first time three years ago, and this is my fourth visit since then," he said. "I am not sure, but I may decide to move out here after a while." Lansburgh is greatly interested in the benevolent and charitable work being promoted by the Shriners. "The order raised a fund not long ago to build hospitals for crippled children," he said. "Ten hospitals are now under construction in different parts of the country where such patients will receive treatment, one institution being in San Francisco.

"It is the aim of the Shrine organization to spread cheer in the world and to the best of my ability I am trying to follow up that aim. The slogan, 'Call me Henry,' has helped some. It was an expression I used in an informal talk at a Shrine meeting, which was taken up by the brethern and has now become a byword. It gets a smile wherever I go."

RAT WINS OUT OVER CITY CAT

the horror of the stenographers going out to their luncheon.

The politicians hanging about the hall after the Council meeting also were shocked, but for another reason. It is deemed a frightful breach of political finesse to devour one's victims in public. But puss always did it. Her mouser's vainglory was enormous.

The janitor was jubilant. He had found the City Hall cat at last. So many had failed; so many had gotten fat and lazy. The Toms kept irregular hours. The Marias raised families.

The mice and rats had chewed the books and spoiled documents in such quiet recesses, as say, the City Planning Commission rooms, and one morning the desk of the President of the City Council was a sight to behold.

The new City Hall cat did very well until yesterday. Then the City Hall was closed, every office was empty and for the first time puss encountered conditions as they are on Sundays and holidays. About 11 a.m. she was prowling about the newly furnished offices of the Board of Freeholders when the watchman heard a yowl, half of surprise and half of terror. He ran up the stairs in time to see the cat bursting from the board room with a large, black rat at her tail. Puss recouped once, arching her back and raising her tail as a cat does at a dog, but the rat came on confidently, declares the watchman who was peeking over the landing. The cat turned again and fled.

She ran straight for the Council room, and when the watchman looked through the door he saw cat and rat doing a species of steeplechase over the Councilmen's desks.

Puss, running like a whippet, soon was out of the room. The rat did not follow. But the watchman saw the new City Hall cat start down the stairs with her tail straight out, running like a panther.

"She didn't run down the stairs," he reported later to the janitor, "she just sort of slid down, like a log going down a sawmill chute."

The janitor himself just as he was stepping into the side entrance of the Hall, the only door open, met his mouser coming out. She had landed all asprawl at his feet, leaped between his legs and was up the alleyway before he could catch his breath.

It is said that the janitor today will begin negotiations to obtain the services of a large Tom who is now doing piece work for the garbage department.

The janitor is said to have lost all confidence in the cat incumbent.

MISS MINTER IS TO PUSH ACTION

contracts and attended to the details. For her services, Miss Minter says, Mrs. Shelby received 20 per cent of the daughter's earnings. However, she declares that the mother also charged to Mary the living expenses of the entire household, all traveling expenses, clothing for all, automobiles and the income tax in toto.

MOTHER'S CONDITION

Information regarding the mother's condition at the Good Samaritan Hospital is being withheld by the attending nurse.

"But it is reported that Mrs. Shelby is in serious condition. Is this true?" the nurse was asked last night over the telephone.

"That is somewhat exaggerated," she replied and hung up the receiver.

Miss Minter charges that her mother's illness as the result of an operation is largely overdrawn. And she exhibited a letter from the mother to sustain the assertion. Mrs. Shelby in the letter stated she had been advised by her doctor that the operation she was to undergo, was but a slight one and not a major operation as had been reported.

"Last Saturday mother told me on the telephone that she was to have the operation," said Miss Minter. "She expressed no fear of the outcome and did not say a word about my coming to see her. She was operated on by Dr. J. V. Cocks, who has long been our family physician. I telephoned him about it, asked him how she came out of it and all about it. He told me she was all right, was in no danger, but said for me to wait a day or two before calling on her. Then on Wednesday there was printed the story in the afternoon papers that I was missing, that mother had been calling and praying for me to come and that I did not answer.

DOCTOR'S ASSURANCE

"I again telephoned to Dr. Cocks and he again assured me that she was all right, that she had never once asked for me or about me. The doctor said that she was in no danger at all and in a few days could be moved home again. My loving sister, Margaret, however, carefully gave one of the newspapers a copy of the letter mother had written to me. Mother always was careful to make copies of everything she wrote me. What she said to me was another matter—quite different."

Miss Minter said that some time ago her mother advised her that the family records showed a balance of $165,000 as being due her. The same records Miss Minter says, she was told, showed an amount of $170,000 accredited to the mother.

EARNED MILLIONS

"The amounts of my picture contracts are easily ascertainable," she said. "I lived quite simply myself, have never had an excess of clothing or jewelry and never had a chance to be extravagant. Copies of the income tax reports are available. Mother was to get 30 per cent of my earnings and I was to get 70 per cent.

"It seems to me quite a difficult thing to explain how, out of much more than $1,000,000 I have earned in the past three years, I have a credit of only $165,000, while mother with a considerably less income, says she has more than me. An accounting is all that I ask, it is all that I have ever asked and I think I am entitled to it and I purpose to have it. If it is necessary to go into court, I am sorry but that is the way it will have to be.

"When I brought it up before they talked me into a trip to China. That was called off and now the operation and mother's illness is being used as a further excuse. But all the time my mother had an attorney. Only recently I secured one. Then when the two attorneys got to asking each other questions it all became different."

FALL FINDS VALUE IN RED GOVERNMENT

STATES RUSSIA IS IN BETTER CONDITION THAN MANY NEARBY NATIONS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Optimism as to the future in Russia was expressed today by former Senator A. B. Fall, returning on the steamship Berengaria from a trip to Europe which included visits to Russian cities. Mr. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior in the Harding Cabinet, said Russia is in a better financial condition than many of the adjoining countries.

"What amazed me about Russia," said Mr. Fall, "is that the present government is not afraid to experiment. If a thing does not work they say: 'Well, that is perhaps a mistake.' Then they try out something else and always they follow out what they think the people want."

Mr. Fall said he was out of politics for good and would devote all his time to his ranch at Three Rivers, N. M.

Referring to immigration, Mr. Fall said:

"If anything, I hope we shall even build up greater restrictions against undesirables from Europe. There are countries on the other side, particularly Russia, which would send us only her unfit. Selection should by all means be made upon the European side."

ODD FELLOW DIES

Father of State Grand Master to be Buried Today

Abner H. Longley, a charter member of the America Lodge of Odd Fellows and father of Edward R. Longley, State Grand Master of the order, died yesterday at his home, 1119 South Arapahoe street. Mr. Longley had been a resident of Los Angeles for fifty-one years and an active member in the Odd Fellows for half a century. He was 77 years of age. Besides the son Edward, Mr. Longley leaves two daughters, Mrs. Laura B. Bagley and Florence M. Longley. The Odd Fellows rites will be conducted from the Lee Brothers-Dellenbaugh funeral parlors, 1145 South Flower street, at 2:30 p.m. today. Mr. Longley was a native of Louisiana.

Two shoelaces, finger of a glove, half a cigarette, part of a photograph, an old railway ticket, three stamps, a safety pin, pieces of red cloth and half a yard of bandage, composed an old sparrow's nest found in East Cleveland, York, England.

FINE DAIRY HERDS INCREASE

Expansion in Southland Necessitates Appointment of Additional Stock Inspectors

Improvement in the dairy stock and increase in the herds of Southern California are indicated in the report published by Dr. J. P. Iverson, chief of animal industry of the State Department of Agriculture. Fine herds have increased to such extent that it has been necessary to add an inspector to this section of the State.

The addition of an inspector by the State really means the addition of two inspectors, as the Federal Agricultural Department always assigns one inspector to co-operate with the inspector appointed by the State. Dr. W. G. Benner of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry is the man who has been appointed to co-operate with the State officials.

Inspectors have been busy for some time making exhaustive studies and tests of the dairy herds of this section of the State for tuberculosis. As the result of these activities and of the added inspectors a number of fine herds are expected soon to be added to the accredited herds.

In order to be placed in the select accredited herds class it is necessary for the entire herd to pass two successive annual tests, or three successive semiannual tests. These tests are extremely rigid, and when passed the owner is given a certificate. With the Federal bureau co-operating with the State Bureau of Animal Industry, a certificate is granted by both Federal and State departments.

Long Beach Lady Gets Surprise of Her Life

"I don't know when I ever felt better than I do now, and eat, why I eat like a workingman and sleep like a baby," said Mrs. Rose Bronson, 418 West 3rd Street, Long Beach, Calif., in relating her experience with the Tanlac treatment.

"I got in an awful run down condition and was so nervous at times I would just have to lie down for a while. I had attacks when it just seemed that all my strength left me. My appetite had been poor for a long time and I got to where what I did eat hurt me. I couldn't sleep at night, and never felt like a person should.

"Well, Tanlac has given me the surprise of my life. Why, three bottles of the medicine have simply put an end to my troubles, and I just feel fine. I gladly recommend Tanlac to anyone, for it certainly is wonderful."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

THE EYE IS SILENT

Americans will not be surprised if Ismet Pasha's name turns out to be Kismet.

DAY OF SMALL THINGS

After taking more than 21,000 photographs a couple of British scientists have finally been able to snapshot a collision between two atoms. We have them on the street here every day, but the traffic cop simply reports them as a couple of Fords bumping into one another.

SOME COUNTERFEITS

In thirty-four States of the Union legislatures at their latest sessions considered no less than 32,600 measures and finally adopted 8340 of them. When so many bills are being passed it is no wonder that so many of them are counterfeit. In one way or another the American people face the passage of 10,000 bills with every turn of the legislative wheel.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

Senator La Follette took an expert statistician with him on his journey to Europe. It would also need a battery of adding machines if the Senator is going to pry into the finances of Germany and Russia. La Follette expects to return on the Leviathan about the middle of October and will have his deadly statistics ready for the opening of Congress.

MATTER OF ENDURANCE

Marathon performers have tried pounding the typewriter, sawing wood and other endurance efforts of real worth, but thus far the fox-trotters have all the ribbons. When it comes to sustained efforts it appears that people can dance longer than they can do anything else. They can dance for more hours than they can walk. This is something that can be safely blamed on the jazz.

HARD TO PLEASE

If Senator Underwood ever gains the White House it will have to be without the support and approbation of William Jennings Bryan. The former Nebraskan says that if he must vote for a wet candidate he prefers Gov. Smith and if he must have a southerner there is Josephus Daniels. Col. Bryan is now a resident of Florida and might feel himself entitled to the enthusiastic support of the solid South, but he is very emphatic in his objections to Senator Underwood as the favorite son of the South. He holds very high opinions of Josephus Daniels and cannot understand why the rest of the country has not warmed up more heartily toward the former Secretary of the Navy. During the next few months the Democratic party is going to have a hard time in pleasing its star boarder.

DAYS OF LONG AGO

An interesting relic recently shown was the life-insurance policy issued September 20, 1844, to Daniel Webster. It was for $5000, which was considered a large sum in those days, and carried a premium of $293. The policy mentions certain restrictive clauses that seem freakish in these times. If Daniel wanted to visit a large city, Washington included, or journey west of the Mississippi River he had to get permission of the company and pay extra. Webster was returned to the United States Senate the year after the policy was issued and the company magnanimously gave its consent. But Daniel did not go into the wilds west of the Mississippi. He never had much use for that country, anyhow. The idea of the insurance company in imposing the limitations was that smallpox was likely to be epidemic in the large cities, while the Indians were the hazard of the West. Webster was also advised that if he died in a duel, was hanged or killed in a raid upon any city or Indian tribe there would be no money for the widow. Nothing was said about the perils of airplanes or automobiles or possibly Daniel would never have been able to take out a policy.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER

Those who heard or read the last series of public utterances by President Harding could not but note the expansion of his faith and trust in divine guidance. Each succeeding speech indicated a deeper realization of the wisdom and purpose of the Almighty and his own impregnable desire to serve as an "humble Christian soldier." The moral and spiritual extension of his country were included in the cherished passions of his heart. So far as in him lay he dedicated his country to his God and it was with a complete recognition of divine justice that he bore the burdens of his exalted office. This mental and spiritual attitude caused him to be kindly and considerate in the frictions and contacts of political life. When he was called upon to fight he engaged with energy, but without malice. He fought fairly and even in victory would concede the enemy all the honors of war. He was tender and compassionate in most of his relations to his fellow-man. He made many friendships and dowered them with a simple faith that gave them eternal vigor. He was a direct but unassuming exponent of the practical, every-day Christianity upon which humanity and civilization are builded and upon which great peoples rise.

DEAD MEN'S SHOES

While the heads of a whole people were bowed in mourning over the death of the President and words of sympathy rose like the tones of an anthem, the harmony was marred by a single, harsh, discordant note; that of the Hearst publications shouting the qualifications of Senator Hiram Johnson to fill the dead man's shoes.

There are others in the country ambitious to serve the people as their President, and their friends are many; but Hearst alone rushed out on the street before the warmth of life was out of the dead President's body shouting "Hiram Johnson's next!"

Less than a month before the President's death Arthur Brisbane said in all the Hearst morning papers, "Harding cannot possibly receive the Republican nomination next year." But the day after the President's demise this same Brisbane wrote for the same papers: "Had Harding lived, there is no doubt or question as to his renomination. Now all is changed;" and he proceeded to say that the one outstanding candidate to succeed him was Hiram Johnson.

The next day he assured the readers of the Hearst publications that "In the Republican party the outstanding candidate, and by many hundred per cent the strongest candidate, is Hiram Johnson."

So eager were Hearst and his lieutenants to get Johnson's name connected in the public ear with the death of the President that no leading article relating to the nation's bereavement was permitted to appear without containing somewhere the statement that Johnson was sure of the Republican nomination next summer.

The death of the most beloved man in the nation meant to Hearst and Johnson an opportunity, not to be overlooked, to get before the Hearst readers that Johnson propaganda.

In their haste they said some curious and contradictory things, things that in themselves would serve to make Johnson's nomination impossible. The day after the President's death there was a solemn discussion of the probable issues in the coming Republican campaign. They tried to show why Coolidge could not possibly get the nomination. One paragraph would be amusing if it did not awaken disgust:

> Mr. Coolidge is not Lincolnian. But no man like Lincoln could be nominated for the Presidency today by the Republican party any more than Senator La Follette could be nominated by the Republican party. No man like Lincoln has been or could have been nominated by the Republican party since the Civil War. All wars tend to corrupt the political and social life of a nation.

And, in the same issue, Brisbane wrote that "The outstanding candidate, and by many hundred per cent the strongest candidate, is Hiram Johnson." Which would lead one to infer that we are living in a corrupt political and social era, in which a man like Lincoln could not be nominated; but Hiram Johnson is just the type for this corrupt era, as little like Lincoln as possible, as like his era as two peas, and sure to be nominated.

It is possible that Hearst and Johnson believe that the country would have no use for one of Lincoln's sterling honesty and sincerity; and that a candidate like Johnson, whose expressed views on public questions shift like a weathercock in the changing winds of politics, will be the choice of the Republican party.

But The Times believes that the general expressions of love for our dead President prove pretty conclusively that the people were thoroughly in accord with his policies, and that no candidate who maligned and misrepresented the President while living, and opposed his policies, will receive more than the votes of a few radicals in the Republican convention next year.

Who the Republican nominee will be is a question for the future to decide. The grief over the death of the great Republican leader is still too poignant to permit consideration of a partisan political question which is not pressing at this time. But the temper of the American people is such that it is almost beyond the range of possibility that they will consider nominating the man who was clamoring for the dead President's shoes before they were yet removed from his feet.

THE BETTERING WORLD

The great publishing house of Harper & Bros. recently conducted a prize competition for novelties. The prize, together with the honor and assured success of the winning book, attracted a great many manuscripts. And the judges have been struck by the fact that the plot based on revenge was entirely lacking.

Fifty years ago, when the old-time religion, as compared to the latest-time religion, was flourishing, and "The Count of Monte Cristo" was the world model for romantic fictionists, it couldn't have been so. Revenge then was considered a rather fine and noble thing. The best of church members liked to read about revenge and often found pleasure in thinking that the Lord was going to visit a lot of vengeance, eventually, on all the sinners who didn't happen to belong to their sects. Since revenge is the most un-Christian of attributes, were those zealous—and jealous—churchmen really as Christianized as the average man in the street today?

The world today recognizes the beauty of sacrifice, of unselfishness, of magnanimity, of forgiveness, of faith, hope and charity as never before. We have recently seen men going to war and giving their lives for higher ideals than men ever went to war for before, and we cannot go to either the little church around the corner or the little picture show around the corner without seeing proof that the things the people generally admire are the fine, true, brave, Christian acts of life.

MUSSOLINI AT FORTY

A bird's-eye view of what Signor Mussolini has accomplished in Italy, since nearly a year ago he seized the reins of power, points an instructive moral for the rest of Europe. It confirms the old contention there is no situation so desperate but the right man can remedy it.

Affairs in Italy, following the end of the war, were drifting from bad to worse. No government in Rome was strong enough to hold together the cliques and sects and factions that were making ducks and drakes of the kingdom of Victor Emmanuel.

Communism in the early months of 1922 was gaining ground in the industrial centers. In many places workmen had seized the factories and were running them in the manner of the soviets. Italian trade and commerce were going to the dogs. Apparently the fate of Italy was more desperate than that of Germany today.

Then along came Mussolini. He was a young man—he has just celebrated his fortieth birthday. He did what other statesmen in other European countries have failed to do. He organized the bourgeoisie. By methods open to criticism, he sailed or rather steamed into power. But if the end ever justifies the means it did so in the dictatorship of this indomitable Italian.

In a few months he has accomplished more for Italy than long years of conferences and the chatter of scores of near-statesmen have done for the rest of Europe.

He has rejuvenated Italy. He has stamped out Bolshevism. He has created an efficient administration and formed a government whose elements work in unison. For the first time since the war Italy has a budget that nearly balances and business is confident and spurting upward.

He has returned the railroads to their private owners on a sound business basis. His policies satisfy bankers and industrialists alike; whatever their troubles, high and low remark cheerfully, "Mussolini will fix it."

Not a bad record for a man just out of his thirties and scarcely a year in office. If he can keep up the pace, if he doesn't break down or blow up Mussolini may be the strong man of Europe that prophecy saw emerging from the ruins of the World War. On the other hand, he may become a great danger.

REWRITE VICTOR HUGO

In connection with the production in Hollywood of a film version of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" an energetic scenario writer is rewriting the book for publication at the same time that the photodrama is released. It is to be beautifully illustrated with still photographs and should prove highly popular for modern consumption, according to the proud author.

It seems poor old Victor Hugo imagined that he did himself rather proud when he wrote this immortal book and appended his name thereunto, but it remains for a modern scribe to do it all over again and improve on the spots where the Frenchman was a trifle weak or perhaps long-winded. He likewise insists that this will soon be quite an established custom and that whoever makes the screen version of a novel or drama will promptly rewrite it and publish it in his own inimitable style, which is always such an improvement on that of the original author.

If this custom is really followed up one can imagine the heartburnings and tears in the Elysian fields, when some of the dead immortals get radios from our planet regarding the latest writings here. "Romeo and Juliet," the famous tragedy by Jim Jones, from an idea suggested by Will Shakespeare, will cause the Bard of Avon some bitter moments.

Pathetic plaints have gone up before anent the custom of changing the name of a noted book, but if the local scribe of the film plant is to try his 'prentice hand on rewriting and republishing the work one can envision trouble in the near future.

The dead geniuses have no comeback, but some of the living ones may be moved to desperation. Yet a person cannot refrain from admiring the literary light who feels it his duty to improve on the old classics. It must be a comfortable feeling to have such a fine opinion of oneself.

AMONG THE GREAT

Mussolini received more than 30,000 messages of congratulation on the occasion of his fortieth birthday. The greetings came from all over the world. Yet only a few months back a raft of folks thought Mussolini was a new drink. Now he walks with kings and sometimes forgets to take off his hat.

OUR UNKNOWN ISLANDS

BY RANSOME SUTTON

Heretofore the Aleutian Islands have never been accurately charted. Charts have been made, but they cannot be relied upon, probably because the needle goes crazy up there. It will point in one direction and, if the ship moves a half-league, the needle points in a very different direction. The naval vessel Ortolan (formerly Mine Sweeper 45,) now engaged in sounding and exploring the waters surrounding the islands, anchored at a spot where an island appeared on the old charts, but the island was fifty miles away.

J. E. O'Neil, chief engineer of the Ortolan and something of a naturalist, gave me the first-hand information.

There are more than 200 of the islands—remnants of the ancient land bridge—over which the ancestors of most of our mammals and, as many anthropologists believe, the Indians found their way out of Asia into North America. The islands vary in size from a mere peak to regular islands almost as large as Porto Rico. Like a gigantic antenna, they "feel" out toward Japan and accordingly possess great strategic significance. The island at the tip of the antenna, called Abui, is about sixty miles long and forty miles wide. For the last two months the Ortolan has been exploring round Abui.

The inhabitants are Aleuts—a short, heavy-set, wide-between-the-eyes people, more Mongolian than American, in the upper savage stage of culture. They wear skins for clothing, subsist on fish and fat, are stupid and lazy in some respects, yet surprisingly clever, industrious and adventurous in savage undertakings. As workmen, for example, in the fish canneries they are not much good, but they build seaworthy kayaks out of strips of wood and skins, in which they pass freely between the islands and run down seals and whales in the open sea.

Unlike Eskimos, the Aleuts are mongrels, showing a mixture of many strains, including a strong admixture of white blood. The white blood is explained by the fact that, before the United States acquired Alaska, a large number of Russians (all men) were quartered upon the islands. The Aleuts were born and buried according to the rites of the Great Church. No other church has established missions among them.

The summer climate is comparable to that of San Francisco. In winter the thermometer ranges around 22 degrees above zero. Bering Sea drift ice rarely if ever reaching any of the islands. The snow line is 1700 feet above sea level. Two days out of three it rains on the average, are foggy, and the rainfall is heavy throughout the year.

Forests do not exist, but the islands are covered with tall grass and the highlands, up to the snow line, with knee-high moss, affording excellent pasturage. Experiments in sheep-raising are now being made. The sheep thrive amazingly on the grasses and moss without winter feeding, and not one difficulty has thus far been encountered—during the winter months the long wool freezes to the rocks, upon which the sheep rub and holds them as easy prey to carnivorous birds. The birds, it is said, pick their eyes out. The trouble is being overcome, just as it was overcome in Kansas years ago, by corralling the sheep at night, during the winter, in sheds, a humane proposition generally overlooked by pioneers everywhere.

On all the larger islands the clear-as-crystal streams come down from goblet-like lakes in land-locked harbors, affording a veritable paradise for Alaska red salmon, reputed to be the aristocrat of all food fishes. As many canneries as the government will permit have already been established and the output is limited only by governmental regulations, not by any dearth of fishes.

President Harding is said to have been greatly surprised to find the entire chain of American islands so habitable, yet practically unknown to our own people.

In the next article will be told the story of the humpbacked whale—its feeding and breeding habits.

COLORS CAUSE FAMILY ROWS

BY SUZANNE PEROFF

Almost everyone has a pet theory as to the causes of divorce, but it remained for Miss Agnes McKenna, national authority on color combinations in interior decoration, to evolve a distinctly new one.

According to her opinion, "one-half of the divorces in the United States are caused by inharmonious color combinations in the dining-room." It is there, she adds, that the choicest verbal battles take place, especially at breakfast time.

It was formerly believed that some people just naturally woke up with a grouch that wouldn't work off until the system had been stoked thoroughly with the morning viands, but the decorators know that it is the color scheme of the dining-room assaulting the outraged optic nerve that causes them to be so peevish.

Have you an irritable person in the family? Then decorate the dining-room in gay hues, although avoiding those too pronounced. Violent reds and purples will make a cranky husband much worse, whereas he will be soothed into amiability by a pleasing combination of harmonious pastel shades.

The relative ready to fight at the drop of a hat should be barred from wearing dark colors or remaining in a dark room.

Sunshine and baby blue will develop sweetness and light in the nature of the beholder, but the too-peppy individual should be calmed down by somber habiliments and hangings in his abode.

The most errant spouse that ever flipped a flirtatious eye across the table would be transformed into a reserved dignitary across a dark-oak board in a room hung with sober drapes.

Especially should the wife see to it that husband of frivolous tendencies should eschew gay neckties and garb himself in sober habiliments.

When people make a serious study of color and the manner in which others react to certain shades, then half the misery in the home will be relieved, according to Miss McKenna. Certain people vibrate to certain colors and become highly antagonistic at the sight of other ones.

Instead of following the old-time injunction to "feed the brute" the modern way is to discover just what shades of the rainbow he adores the most and have him always surrounded with these. If he adores blues and pinks and the home abounds with these hues, then, the decorator declares, all the vamps in the world could not lure him away from it. But just put such an individual in a dining-room where red or green predominates and watch the feathers fly when he walks in of a morning nursing his favorite grouch.

DR. HIBBEN ON WORLD CRISIS

It is a mysterious thing that there should be a widespread fear throughout our country concerning the United States being a member of the International Court of Justice.

There was no spirit of fear hovering over our people in 1917. It did not hesitate to pledge our sessions, our sons and our lives at that time to secure the peace of the world. Our work, then so well begun, has not been finished. The great objective which we made ready see before us has not yet been attained, but now, before a great opportunity as well as a responsibility, we falter; we hesitate; the distress of nations, and is filled with perplexity our hearts fail us for fear. We view hesitantly the consequences with alarm, we are content to unite with the nations of the earth to set up and maintain a standard of international justice.

It is a fear unworthy of our people. We are quite ready to express ourselves volubly concerning our love of the peace of the world, we preach about it, we pray for it, and yet we must recognize that peace can come and abide only through the maintenance of a law of justice recognized and revered by all the nations of the earth.—[Address of President Hibben, Princeton.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

The Rewards of Service

A short time ago I sat in the living-room of one of the country's wealthiest men and listened as he told the story of his early struggles and of the success that crowned his business career. The whole story was full of thrills and romance, and it was told in a way that did not make it sound boastful. The man who told the story—it was in a private conversation in his own home and, therefore, does not permit of the use of names—was as interested in it as were his hearers, and it sounded just as romantic to him as it did to the rest of us.

As he came to the end of the story and told us of his retirement from active business life, of how he had divided some twenty-odd millions of dollars among his children, of how he had given to this cause and to that, he said:

"It may seem strange to you, as it does to me, that all of this money has come to me as a by-product. There was never a moment in my life when I ever entered into any business or transaction merely for the sake of making a dollar. That is the last thing I have ever thought of. Every proposition I have gone into has been entered with a spirit of service or adventure—never with the idea of making money. I have never wanted a dollar for itself alone.

"There may be men in this country who have become millionaires simply because they went into the business of making money, but these men, I believe, are few and far between. I think investigation will show that the men who have been most successful in building up fortunes have been the men who went into the game solely from the standpoint of being of service to others. To them money means only the smallest result of their labors. If, in going through this process, money has come to them in large amounts it has been but one of the by-products. The real reward has been that satisfaction that comes to a man who feels that he has been of service to his fellowmen."

HOW IT STARTED

BY JEAN NEWTON

"On Tenter Hooks"

The use of this phrase synonymously with "on pins and needles" to express a state of suspense or mental torture or distress had its origin in the textile trade.

Unpleasant as is the inference of the words "pins and needles" to one who is a stickler for words the phrase "on tenter hooks" implies still greater agitation.

For tenter hooks are the hooks of the "tenter bars" which stretch the cloth in the manufacture of textiles. The cloth is hooked to the bars on which it is stretched and pulled in all directions to even up the weave.

Hence to be torn by the conflicting pressure of various fears or emotions is to be "on tenter hooks."

NO MORE COCKSURENESS

Anyway, time goes on, no matter what else may stop or pause. It is four and a half years since the war ended. And though we may study history and know the past, no mortal knows what the next few years will bring forth. In the "good old days" before the war people used to predict with confidence what would happen in the future, but the war has knocked out all such cocksureness. Civilization is menaced on many sides and is also being honeycombed from below. It is going to survive, but it will probably still have to pass through a terrific ordeal. No soft, safe, serene life is in store for the generations that are now coming on the scene. They will have new and even harder problems to solve and they will have to find their own ways to solve them. Many of the old rules which were looked on as axioms are now obsolete—and sometimes we even doubt whether two and two make four.—[Pathfinder.

PEN POINTS

The big ones are getting away over at Catalina, as usual, this summer.

Why bumpers to keep dancers apart? Armor plate would serve better.

The new air traffic rules, we presume, will be according to the ozoning system.

It looks as if Chancellor Cuno had qualified as a member of the In-Bad Club.

We are afraid the country will have to get along without an extra session of Congress.

It would be of interest to know what Sam Gompers thinks of Calvin Coolidge as President.

One trouble about eating blackberry pie is that unless one has a toothpick he is disqualified from playing dental golf.

If it were left to the neighbors mighty few boys would amount to anything in this world. They all have their opinion of his general worthlessness.

Another indication of the waning of summer is the fact that so many of our friends insist upon telling us all about their vacation. They don't give us a chance to tell about ours.

Possibly the farmers of the Middle West would get more for their wheat if they wrapped it in fancy paper as the growers of oranges and apples do. But this is merely a suggestion.

In view of the eagerness of Europeans of all creeds and blood to find American homes it is interesting to conjecture what the immigration situation would be today if there was no restricted quota system. There certainly would be no clamor about a shortage of labor, but there might be other sorts of clamor.

THIS IS THE DAY

Robert Green Ingersoll, lawyer, orator and lecturer, was born at Dresden, N. Y., in the year 1833 and died in New York in the year 1899. While a force in national politics, he is best known as an agnostic lecturer and writer. His first lecture, "Some Mistakes of Moses," aroused a storm of criticism throughout the country. As a writer of impassioned prose he ranks high.

Have you a penny which you could put aside each day and not miss it? The question sounds ridiculous and there is not a woman but would answer "Of course I have. "Well then let's use them for a very good purpose to rent a safe deposit box in the Bank of Italy. With the robberies which are taking place with the irreparable losses of valuable documents which sometimes—most often if the truth were told—cannot be replaced or duplicated when needed. A box in a reliable bank is a big necessity and worthy of serious consideration and prompt action. The new Bank of Italy at Seventh and Olive is so very centrally and conveniently located, too. Go in and talk to Mr. Lewis. He is in charge of the storage vaults—large and small. Do it now! Good intentions are splendid assets but without action are of little avail—You will never regret the precaution.

True it is that women have their hands just about full when they keep house and have, perhaps, a good-sized family to guide along the highway of life until each has reached an age where they no longer look to mother when they are hungry or ill or in need of counsel. Wise is the woman and parent who takes her job seriously enough to be progressive in her ideas. It is she who will find interest in Radio-X—and the interest will bring valuable results, for "Radio-X" will mean a great deal to a lot of people—in one way or another—maybe one of your dear ones needs of these remedies which are so helpful. Find out which one or ones you are most desirous of having. The Radium Remedies Co. are located at 324 W. 7th. Don't you think you might step in today and hear all the wonderful things Radio-X has done?

Can't you remember wishing for some bread that was different—because you had grown to believe that all makes of bread tasted alike? What will you think when you are told this longing for a change will never be felt when you eat Honey Bread? It's hard to explain the reason for this unless it can be done by saying with all sincerity that Honey Bread with real honey in it—finest flour and other ingredients—is mixed and baked in some magical way so that everyone who tastes it, calls repeatedly for "the bread, that made mother stop baking."

What do you demand of your bread? When you ask yourself that question the answer should be absence from bacterial or germ-inating qualities or in other words, the melting and purity which infuse the water from which it is made and its freedom from all impurities which clog the drain pipe and leave your box filled with sediment.

"Frozen Steam" is everything a refrigerant should be—does everything a refrigerant should do—It's absolutely remarkable and no satisfactory in every way. "Frozen Steam" is manufactured exclusively by the Merchants' Ice and Cold Storage Company. You may phone them at Main 8943 and leave word for a driver to call.

Loss and insertion. Do not throw away short lengths of lace and insertions of hose or embroidery. They come in handy when a little enlarging is needed in clothing or underwear. They can also be used to reinforce places that show signs of wear.

The debutante of today is the housewife of tomorrow and it is but right that as early as possible, all knowledge regarding housekeeping, cooking nourishing foods, should be gained. Very soon would introduce into her home La A. Dessert Company's cottage cheese for many's the time it has been a life-saver to me. An hour-time dish all thoroughly delicious. And its uses are legion. You can use it for salads, to serve with pineapple, for sandwich fillings. Make pies out of it or serve it with good old cream, salt and pepper, bread and butter. Then you have something the whole family delights in—be it pot-pie, bourgeoisie and Bon Ton—may all enjoy and relish.

When children have outgrown their high chairs and yet are so small that their feet do not touch the floor, footstools should be provided for them. They will make children sit properly and prevent a wooden soap box covered with inexpensive material can be used with satisfaction.

Sugar is the Hello housewife who shows the manifold uses to which she may put Domino Sugar. Pouring sugar in granule form, like cleaning won't take her entire day, for she just calls her old friend, White King, to tell the dead to done! Use the light woodwork that is the pride of your heart and the joy of your existence, and see how easily it makes it. Get some from your grocer.

What do you demand of your grocer? Have you ask yourself that question? The dilemma of today is the question of tomorrow and it is well that as early as possible, information regarding household problems, cooking, nourishing foods, etc., be gained. Very soon would come into her home L. A. Gas Company's cottage cooking school. It's the time it has proved to me. An empty dish all thoroughly washed and the uses are legion. You will find it a help indeed, to serve Cream Cheese for sandwich fillings. Make this out of it with some good old cream, chopped nuts, bread and butter. Then you have something the children will thoroughly enjoy and relish.

Some children have outgrown their clothes and yet are so small that shoes just do not touch the floor. Shoes should be provided for them. They will make for stability and prevent falling to the rungs of the chair. Shoes should be covered with some material can be had for a few cents.

Salt is the little housewife has the manifold uses to which she may put White King Soap in granule form. Sometimes it won't take her long to find out, for she just calls her friend White King. She doesn't have to do much woodwork that is done by hand and she can see the difference in making White King Soap.Get

You know we all thought when we were given electrical washing machines that no greater improvement could be made in the old back-breaking, hand-roughening and reddening of our hands, entirely overlooking the wringing, rinsing, bluing and drying of the clothes after they had been washed. But now behold the wonder machine of the ages! A Laundryette! Why it does everything including washing, rinsing, bluing and drying and leaves your clothes free of wrinkles and ready to iron immediately. My goodness! we are overlooking a most important necessity for our homes by not investigating a Laun-dry-ette immediately. Ivan L. De Jongh is the distributor here. 1513 West Seventh is the address.

It's just a wicked shame to have a beautiful dining-room table covered with a cloth the whole time because some hot dish or an overturned glass of liquid of one sort or another left a tell-tale mark—white spots or rings which seemingly have spoiled it forever—so you thought, but luckily that idea is all wrong. Your table may be made better than new. Your dresser or bureau can lose its shabby look—the rungs and legs of every piece of furniture may be rid of scratches and blemishes with "Water Spar"—Why after this wonderful water-proof transparent or colored varnish is applied boiling water may be poured on the article finished with it and you can't harm it. There now, of course you want to know more about it, so call up 15923, stop in or write the Patton-Pitcairn Division, 928 South Main street and get Water-Spar from them or ask for the name of the dealer in your neighborhood who sells it.

"The oil which seems to have captured the sunshine of southern hillsides"—is the way Olive Grey once described Castruccio Brothers (Red Cross) Olive Oil which is imported from Italy and is of such absolutely unrivaled quality that no household should be without it.

The reason for its delightful taste and superiority is due to the fact that only the very finest, selected, sound ripe olives—sweet and fresh from trees matured by centuries of growth are used.

You will adore Castruccio Brothers Virgin Olive Oil. Every one does who tastes it once. Get a can today. Any good grocer will send you any amount you desire.

Wonder how many of you all know about the luscious new food that is being prepared right here in our own Los Angeles? Something new and entirely different called Tater Flakes—wonderful new potatoes sliced paper-thin and fried in Crisco—and all by a wonderful machine so that no human hands touch them until you yourself open the wax bag.

You don't know what good potato chips are until you taste "Tater Flakes!" Order them from your grocer, or step in at the shop at 511 W. 6th St.

Salt versus grease. To avoid the unpleasant smoke that sometimes arises when cooking hot cakes some women tie some salt in a bag and rub the griddle with this instead of greasing it.

You've no idea what luscious dessert can be made out of thick cream and fresh fruit until you've tasted Hughes. Maybe you're one of the many who have said, "Oh, well, ice cream is ice cream, that's all." But no, that is a mistaken idea. When all the ingredients are chosen and combined so carefully, and the whole is frozen in just such a particular manner as is customary with Hughes—then you have something very superior in the way of a frozen dainty. Be guided by the yellow and white sign (of excellence.)

No effort should be spared to make the tray of sick persons more dainty. Remember, it is usually a person devoid of appetite to whom it goes, and your job is to make the tray so attractive that the person feels he must eat. The tray cloth and napkin must be spotless, the silver and glassware shining. Never crowd the tray with many foods. The butter must be cold, the bread thin and daintily cut, the soup in a small covered pitcher, so that it is hot when poured into the dish.

Before buying any new furniture for that room you wish to "do over," give a thought to this suggestion—Why not make the old furniture look like new by applying a coat or two of Frederick O'Brien's Wedgewood Enamel? Often by changing the color and adding new cretonne you can make some seemingly impossible old piece of furniture into something more attractive than you could buy in the shops. Be sure you get Frederick O'Brien's Wedgewood Enamel, though, for it is easy to apply and sure in its results.

The favorite dish—regardless of what it may be—the beverage—coffee, tea, milk or chocolate—you desire most, the chop or steak or roast which you crave—all these are found in all their perfection at Herbert's Ladies' Cafe, which is happily located so near the theaters and shops on Hill street between Seventh and Eighth. What more could your heart desire when fatigued and hot mayhap, from a strenuous day down town you drop in at Herbert's to cool off in a delightfully decorated big room and find utmost satisfaction in the splendid food offered you. Why as the days go by Herbert's is growing more and more the trysting-place of women who appreciate the good things of life.

You will be enthralled by the news I have for you today. Before moving into the new apartment or home, call the Phillips Brothers, cleaners, for work done by them is of the best. "The cleanest cleaners on earth"—is a slogan of theirs which you will find they live up to in every way—and, by the way, if your hardwood floors are scratched and dingy the Phillips Brothers again come to the rescue! Especial pride is taken by them in refinishing of this kind. Better jot down their address and phone number this minute 'cause you are going to need them mighty soon. 316 Commercial street. Main 4787.

Now let's see if all is in readiness for the camping trip? Blankets enough? Better make sure, and if there is the least doubt, stop at Simank Bros., 725-27 W. 9th, 320-767, where there is parking aplenty—and see the beautiful all-wool Kenwood blankets, so soft and cosy, and with the added virtue of a guarantee not to shrink and also to wear a lifetime. As Simank Bros. sell them for $10.50 and $12, you will appreciate the value of this news.

Discolored and blackened aluminum pots and pans will brighten wonderfully if rubbed with a cloth dipped in lemon juice.

Foods full of vitamines are what every mother is looking for nowadays, because she knows it means so much to her growing children. But there is no need to look far, for these vitamines, as the commonest foods contain the most—for instance, cottage cheese. The Los Angeles Creamery brand contains as many vitamines as most any other food one could find on the market. There are so many tasty ways of serving cottage cheese that it can be used for almost any meal of the day, really. The Los Angeles Creamery takes pride in making its cottage cheese especially good and they will deliver it in neat little waxed cartons at your door with the milk.

One chef says that he will insure the omelet to be light that is made with one-quarter teaspoonful of baking powder to every three eggs.

There's no beverage quite like coffee—and there's no coffee quite like Clee Koe, as you'll discover after you've used it a few times. Wonder why it is that everyone is such a "rooter" for it? Well, just try a pound and you'll wonder no longer. No heavy, dyspeptic feeling after drinking Clee Koe; just a mild stimulation which, methinks, is very pleasant indeed. Why don't you call the Clee Koe Coffee Co., Vermont 4851, and ask them to send you a pound?

If the housewife wants to add a little to the joy of home-made bread she makes more dough than for the bread alone and puts it in the refrigerator for rolls for the next day. Rub a little lard over the dough and it will not harden.

Make your home cooler and more attractive-looking by the addition of awnings made by the Progressive Tent and Awning Co. You will be delighted not only with the beautiful color scheme but also with the splendid quality of the material, the expert workmanship, and the reasonable price. It's a simple matter to step in at their shop, 134 S. Los Angeles St., and confer with them about it, or, if you prefer, phone them, Pico 5059, and they'll send up a man to give you an estimate.

How many times have you wished that there was some way in which you could lighten the cares of the household? Well, there is. Why not give yourself a vacation from the drudgery of the laundry work for awhile. Call up the Crown Laundry and have them call for your clothes this very week. There are many reasons for recommending this particular laundry—their reliability, the care they take with your precious linens, their economical week-end rates. See if you don't agree.

Encourage the youngsters to drink more milk these warm days when solid food doesn't appeal to them. But be sure it is L. A. Milk, for there's such a difference, you know, even in the flavor, and they are sure to prefer it after one trial. From regularly inspected herds it is procured, and great care is used in sterilizing and bottling—you simply couldn't ask for anything safer.

The deliveries made by L. A. wagons are at hours which will be found convenient, another service which this concern is glad to give its customers.

If you've never shopped at Young's Market you have a pleasant surprise in store for you. You'll be certain to remark that you never saw such attractive looking food before in all your life. And better than all this, you'll find that everything you buy there is of the very highest grade of excellence, and your wants will be filled by clerks trained to courtesy and efficiency.

MATERIALS IN STREETS UNDER FIRE

City Engineer Makes Plea for Clerk to Handle Work on Sewer Connections

The City Engineer, through the Board of Public Works, will ask the City Council today for remedy of the public inconvenience in having building materials piled over sidewalks and into the streets.

"The department," writes the City Engineer, "is running behind on the inspection of house-connection sewers and on the inspection of deposits of building material in streets. It frequently occurs that the public suffers serious inconveniences from building material being piled far into the streets in violation of law due to insufficient facilities for maintaining proper inspection and following cases up to arrest and prosecution. I find that if we can employ one clerk at $105 to answer telephones and do the necessary clerical work in connection with house-connection sewers, which are being received at the rate of fifty a day, we can rearrange our inspectors so that this work can be handled efficiently."

The Board of Public Works has approved the request for this clerk.

MANY PLAN TO ATTEND DAIRY MEET

Delegates Will Seek 1925 Convention of Association for Los Angeles

Southern California is planning to have a large representation at the World's Dairy Congress in Washington, D. C., October 2 to 4.

At the conclusion of the sessions of the congress the delegates will proceed to Syracuse, N. Y., where a combined meeting of the world's congress and the National Dairy Exposition will be held.

This latter convention is an annual affair and, according to Dr. George P. Clements, manager of the agricultural department of the Chamber of Commerce, an effort will be made to induce the association to hold its convention and exposition in Los Angeles in 1925 or the year following.

Approximately 100 California dairymen have already signified their intention of attending the World's Dairy Congress and the National Dairy Exposition. An effort will be made by Dr. Clement to increase this number to not less than 125, in which event a special train will be engaged for the trip across the continent and return.

It is declared that the Southern California dairy industry has grown to national importance. One of the arguments for holding a dairy exposition in Los Angeles will be that this city now has the largest cow-testing association in the United States, with a membership of 6500.

SHIP LOADS UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

City of Los Angeles Will Sail for Islands Today as Southland's Own

The liner City of Los Angeles, sailing for the first time as a Los Angeles-owned steamship, is scheduled to leave today at noon for Honolulu on her thirteenth voyage in the Los Angeles-Honolulu service. The vessel will carry more than 175 passengers and a large cargo of general merchants, produce and citrus fruits.

Until last Thursday when negotiations for the purchase of the liner by the Los Angeles Steamship Company from the United States Shipping Board were completed in this city by officials and directors of both parties, the giant liner had been successfully operated by the local steamship company as agents since the inauguration of the island service last September.

Included among the prominent passengers scheduled to sail are Frank Meline, Los Angeles realtor, and Mrs. Meline; John W. Maltman, deputy United States Attorney of this district, and Mrs. Maltman; Abraham J. Josepha of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, and Princess Maria Zwenigorod of Petrograd, Russia, who will visit her brother Baron Ferfen, a Honolulu business man.

The appointment of Howard Truslow to succeed H. B. Hatch, resigned, as district passenger agent at San Francisco was announced on the return of Ralph J. Chandler, general manager of the steamship company, from the East this week.

"WAYFARER" TRYOUTS

Tall Man With Deep Voice Sought For Role of Prolocutor

A tall man with a deep, rich voice is wanted for the part of prolocutor for "The Wayfarer" production, it was announced today at Wayfarer headquarters, 410 West Ninth street. The prolocutor describes the various episodes of the play prior to each scene.

Tryouts for the role of Wayfarer, the woman Understanding, the Angel and various smaller speaking parts will be conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Coliseum. Those who wish to sing the solos in the score will also be heard by the judges and selected at the same time. Non-professionals as well as professionals are invited to participate.

TO MAKE ROADS SAFE

Work of eliminating dangerous curves in the canyon roads near the city is to start at once, according to Supervisor Henry W. Wright. Deputies from the County Surveyor's office will determine the lines the roads shall follow. The first work of this kind will be done in Big Tujunga Canyon, which is one of the most popular picnic locations.

Cudahy's Puritan

Makes Better Cooking

Let the family discover the advantages of Puritan Lard in the finer delicacy of your pastry, in more crispy potato chips, in golden brown, wholesome fried foods—in any food where lard is used. They will note the difference, for Puritan is

100 per cent pure leaf

Puritan mixes more readily with other ingredients because it has the necessary grainy texture, due to open kettle rendering and slow chilling in the package. The moisture has been removed and it is always uniform in creamy consistency. It's selected leaf—the best.

MISSING GIRL FOUND

Denies Identity at First Stating She is Tourist Film Star

Louise M. Collins, 14 years of age, who disappeared from her home, 7430 Moneta avenue, Tuesday with $300 of her mother's money, was found yesterday at the Stowell Hotel, by Policewomen Lulu Ditter and Lillian Toomey. The girl denied her identity at first and asserted that she was a film star on a tour of the country. Later she admitted that she was the missing girl and that she had spent $100 of the money on clothes. Mrs. Mabel Gaffney, the girl's mother, forgave the girl and took her home.

MISSIONARY COUPLE TO LEAVE FOR TIBET

FOWLER, Aug. 10.—After graduating from the Bitler College of Missions, Mr. and Mrs. Leland H. Emerson are in Fowler for a brief stay with Mrs. Emerson's mother, Mrs. H. A. Harris, prior to leaving next month with eleven other missionaries for Tibet. The party is being sent by the mission board of the Christian Church. Both Mr. and Mrs. Emerson are graduates of the University of California. They went east two years ago to prepare for their missionary work.

SCOFF AUTO CLUB GAS SALE

Southern California Officials Call Minneapolis Plan Impracticable and Unfair

The eyes of 74,000 members of the Automobile Club of Southern California switched suddenly today to Minneapolis, Minn., following receipt of dispatches from that city that the Minneapolis Automobile Club is considering establishing gasoline filling stations which would sell motor fuel to its members at greatly reduced prices, but officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California said such a plan would never be sponsored here by them.

With a membership of 3500, officials of the Minneapolis club are quoted in the dispatches as declearing they could save $100,000 for their members in one year. Gasoline would be sold at 6 cents a gallon under present prices, and it was estimated that each member of the Minneapolis club would use on the average 600 gallons a year.

PLAN SOLIDLY BACKED

Every member of the Minneapolis club is reported to have indorsed the plan, according to O. Roy Hill, secretary of the club, and the proposition is to be presented to the trustees of the club next Monday. If established, according to the dispatches from Minneapolis, the privileges of the club's filling station also may be extended to members of the American Automobile Association, which has a membership of 250,000.

However, when advised of the plan, officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California ridiculed it and even grew indignant as they considered its possible results.

"The policy of the Automobile Club of Southern California has been never to interfere in the legitimate business of others," declared Sidney H. Ellis, Jr., assistant secretary. "All that we ask of our authorized garages, hotels and stations is that they give service at a reasonable figure. We have never contemplated such a plan as proposed by the Minneapolis Automobile Club and do not consider it feasible."

MONOPOLY SEEN

"Why, it would put us all out of business," wailed an independent automobile service station owner. "Everybody would join the Automobile Club and get gas 5 cents cheaper. They'd have a monopoly. Think of the independent service station men that would fail, and a couple of hundred Standard Oil stations, not to mention other large concerns that would be silent as graves. Anyway, they can't do it. There's only a 5-cent margin to the retailer now."

However, Minneapolis is going to try it out Monday.

DENIES SHE ESTRANGED YOUNG PAIR

Mother-in-Law Answers Allegations Set Forth in Heart-Balm Action

Denying that she had caused an estrangement between the young couple and denying that she had told her son to turn the hose on his wife, Mrs. Nellie Wormley filed answer to the $25,000 heart balm suit brought against her by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ethel M. Wormley.

The young wife in her suit, filed some time ago, declared that a month after her marriage to David Wormley, his mother started a campaign with the idea of taking him away from her. In her answer the mother denies practically all the assertions.

Her husband was very kind and considerate until they came to California and went to live at the home of her mother-in-law, the wife declared. Then Wormley became restless, dissatisfied and passed much of his time with his mother, neglecting her, the wife said in her complaint.

In March of this year she went away on a brief visit with the consent of her husband and when she returned she was told by her husband that it was no longer her home and that she was not welcome, the wife asserted.

It was then while she was pleading to be allowed to stay that her husband turned the hose on her and drenched her, Mrs. Ethel Wormley stated.

Helps for Epicures and All Who Appreciate Good Cooking

[Note—This department is conducted for the benefit of readers of The Times in the hope that the information herein contained will help in effecting economy in the home. Advertising considerations have no weight in determining the choice of this matter and no free publicity is given any product because it happens to be the subject of paid advertising. In other words, The Times declines to join the rapidly increasing procession of newspapers who prostitute their news columns for monetary gain by giving a portion of free space in return for advertising. The Times considers that the public is entitled to absolute integrity in the news and other reading matter appearing in its columns and will hastily fall condemned in this policy.

Requests for recipes and information pertaining to the proper preparation and serving of foods will be answered in this column every Saturday. Address all requests to Chef A. L. Wyman, Laboratory Kitchen, 4th Avenue avenue, Glendale.—Ed.]

BY CHEF A. L. WYMAN, M.C.A.

When asked by one of our readers for a list of the best breakfast foods, we surprised her by telling her that we have for the last twenty years used only one kind, toast, good toast; not bread that has been given a quick heat on both sides that charred the surface and left the inside of the bread warm and soft, but toast that was carefully heated over or under a steady heat until the surface is a nice golden brown and the inside crisp and has a fine nut-like flavor. Toast of this kind, with good butter and home-made jam, is the finest and healthiest breakfast food that we know of. Toasted bread covered with creamed ham, dried beef, or buttered and covered with creamed hard-boiled eggs or poached eggs makes a breakfast that will please the whole family.

MILK

How many of our readers ever think of milk as a food that is produced by scientific methods? To many housewives milk is just milk and a cow is a cow. This is not true any longer, as according to the California Dairy Council, milk is good milk when it contains a high percentage of butter fat and a good cow is a good butter-fat producer. Dairymen have found by repeated tests that scrub cows do not earn the cost of their feed, and tests over a considerable period have demonstrated that good cows produce a larger amount of butter fat. The dairyman who has good stock in his dairy is furnishing the dealer with our greatest food, milk, and his efforts should be appreciated by all mothers and cooks.

ANCHOVY PASTE

N. H. H., Port San Luis, requests directions for making anchovy paste.

Scrape clean one dozen anchovies, remove the bones. Place the flesh in a mortar and pound to a smooth paste, rub through a sieve, and blend with the paste four tablespoons of melted butter, not hot. The less butter used the stronger will be the flavor of the anchovies. Pack in jars and store in a cold place.

SALAD DRESSING

C. A. F., Fresno, has a cocktail shaker and wants to use it for mixing salad dressings, asks that we give recipes for dressings that can be made in it, such as Thousand Island, vinaigrette, French and piquant dressings.

A cocktail shaker or a glass fruit jar are fine for making salad dressing. For the Thousand Island dressing, place in a shaker or glass jar two tablespoons of finely chopped pimento, two tablespoons of finely chopped sweet green pepper, half of a hard-boiled egg finely chopped, one teaspoon of finely chopped parsely, two teaspoons of finely chopped mild onion, one teaspoon of salt, half a teaspoon of mustard, one teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, four tablespoons of orange juice, five tablespoons of lemon juice and three-quarters of a cup of olive oil. Cover the shaker or glass tight and shake hard for four or five minutes.

VINAIGRETTE DRESSING

Place in a shaker or glass jar one-half of a clove of garlic, finely chopped, two teaspoons of finely chopped parsley, one teaspoon of finely chopped chives, half a teaspoon of salt, half a teaspoon of sugar, half a teaspoon of paprika, five tablespoons of vinegar and one cup of olive oil. Cover the shaker or glass jar tight and shake well for four or five minutes.

FRENCH DRESSING

Place in a cold shaker or glass jar one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of sugar, one teaspoon of mustard, half a teaspoon of paprika, five tablespoons of lemon juice or vinegar, three-quarters of a cup of olive oil, and a piece of ice the size of a walnut. Cover tight and shake well for four minutes.

PIQUANT DRESSING

Place in a cold shaker or glass jar half of a clove of garlic, finely chopped, two teaspoons of finely chopped green pepper, one tablespoon of finely chopped pimento; four teaspoons of finely chopped peeled tender celery, one tablespoon of finely chopped ripe olives, one tablespoon of finely chopped green olives; two-thirds of a teaspoon of salt, three-quarters of a cup of ketchup, three tablespoons of lemon juice, one-third of a teaspoon of paprika, and a small piece of ice. Cover tight and shake well.

BRAN MUFFINS

C. P. A., city, tasted some bran muffins that were made with raisins and nuts, and asks that we give the making of them.

Sift two cups of sifted flour with three tablespoons of sugar, two teaspoon salt and eight level teaspoons of baking powder. Place in a bowl and stir in four cups of clean bran, two tablespoons of molasses, half a cup of broken walnut meats, half a cup of seedless raisins, four tablespoons of melted butter, and two and a half cups of milk. Beat to a smooth batter, place in buttered muffin pans and bake thirty minutes in a hot oven. This will make about two dozen muffins.

STRAWBERRY TARTS

R. C., city, says that she has saved our recipes for three years and wants to know if we will give her a recipe for strawberry tarts to add to her collection.

Make a cookie dough of two cups of sifted flour sifted with half a cup of sugar and a quarter of a teaspoon of baking powder. Work into these two level tablespoons of butter and two slightly beaten eggs. Work smooth, roll out and with it line oval or round tart pans. Fill with dry beans and bake in a moderate oven. Turn out the beans, cool, half fill with a good egg custard, cover the custard with nice whole strawberries, and brush them with melted red currant jell. Sprinkle over the jelly finely chopped, toasted almonds.

CHICKEN SALAD

D. L. M., Long Beach, asks that we give a recipe for a chicken salad that will serve twenty-five. Wants to serve as the main dish for a luncheon.

Rub a large bowl with three cloves of garlic, press out all of the juice, remove the pressed garlic and mix in the bowl two quarts of diced cooked chicken, free of all skin and bones, two cups of peeled and diced cucumbers, three cups of peeled and diced celery, half a cup of chopped green peppers, two-thirds of a cup of chopped pimentos, two-thirds of a cup of chopped olives, one level tablespoon of paprika, two level tablespoons of salt, and two cups of lemon French dressing. Mix well, drain and mound on lettuce-covered plates. Pour mayonnaise over the top and garnish with finely-chopped celery and ripe olives.

CHEESE BISCUITS

E. M. M., city, requests a recipe for cheese biscuits to serve with salad.

Sift two cups of sifted flour with four level teaspoons of baking powder, and half a teaspoon of salt. Place in a bowl and rub into these three tablespoons of butter; when like coarse meal add one cup of grated cheese and mix to a soft dough with three-quarters of a cup of milk. Turn onto a floured board, pat out to half an inch in thickness, cut with a small round cutter, place half an inch apart on a buttered pan and bake in a moderate oven ten minutes.

RAVIOLIS

B. McB., city, has been helped in many ways by the recipes from this department and requests that we give her directions for preparing raviolis and tell her how to make the glazings used by the bakers on pies and French pastry.

For the raviolis make a paste with three cups of sifted flour, a quarter of a teaspoon of salt, two tablespoons of butter, one egg yolk, and just enough water or milk to bind. Let stand twenty minutes. Roll out very thin on a colt board. Mark half of the paste in two-inch squares, with a brush moisten the edges of the squares with beaten egg and milk. In the center of each square place a teaspoon of a mixture made with one finely minced clove of garlic, one finely minced shallot, two-thirds of a cup of chopped blanched spinach, half a cup of chopped cooked calves' brains, one teaspoon of finely minced parsley and two-thirds of a cup of good sausage meat. Add one cup of bread crumbs soaked in milk after all of the milk has been pressed out, a teaspoon of salt, and a seasoning of black pepper and grated nutmeg. Cover with the other half of paste, with the thumb press the paste firmly together where it is marked. Cut the squares apart with a sharp knife, drop them in boiling salted water, enough to cover, and simmer for fifteen minutes. Cover the bottom of a hot earthenware dish with a layer of the raviolis, sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, add a layer of rich brown sauce, repeat, and have the top layer of sauce and cheese. Brown lightly in a moderate oven.

GLACINGS

The best glacing for pastries is made by mixing equal parts of melted currant, apple, or quince jelly with hot sugar syrup. This is applied with a brush.

A glacing to be used on cakes or other baked goods after baking is made by dissolving half an ounce of gum arabic in two quarts of boiling water and adding three cups of sugar. Mix well, place in a saucepan, let boil up once. Use hot and apply with a brush.

NORWEGIAN FRUIT PIE

H. S., city, wants directions for making Norwegian fruit pies as made in the old country.

Butter a deep earthenware baking dish and sprinkle thickly with a mixture of half cake and bread crumbs. Fill the dish with alternate layers of fresh fruit and cake and bread crumbs. Sprinkle each layer of fruit with sugar and ground cinnamon, and little bits of butter. When the dish is filled pour over a thin sugar syrup flavored with lemon rind and add a layer of bread crumbs sprinkled with melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven one hour. Serve hot with whipped cream.

CHICKEN NUT SANDWICHES

E. L. A., Pasadena, would like the recipe for the mixture used for chicken nut sandwiches. Wants enough to make about forty sandwiches.

Place through meat chopper two cups of cold cooked chicken, free of skin and bones, place in a bowl and mix with it one cup of chopped nut meats, three tablespoons of finely chopped celery, two tablespoons of chopped pimento, one tablespoon of chipped capers, half a teaspoon of salt, and one-third of a cup of lemon mayonnaise. Mix well, spread on thin slices of buttered bread, cover with a slice of buttered bread, press together, trim and cut in desired shapes.

WATERMELON RIND PICKLES

A. A. L., city, wants to make some watermelon pickles and asks that we tell her how to prepare them.

Remove all the red part from the watermelon rind, peel, cut into oven-sized pieces, and pack in a stone jar. Pour over enough boiling vinegar to cover and let stand overnight. Drain off the vinegar, bring to a boil, cool and heat again. Weigh the rind and to every five pounds add three pounds of sugar, a spice bag containing twelve whole cloves, a stick of cinnamon, and twelve whole allspice. Place in a preserving kettle, bring to a boil, and simmer until the rind is tender. Skim out the rind, place in hot jars, reduce the syrup one-half, pour over the rind, seal, and store in a cool dark place.

DEVILED CUCUMBERS

H. T., city, requests that we tell how to prepare deviled cucumbers.

Peel, quarter, and remove the seeds from half a dozen medium-sized cucumbers. Cut into pieces one inch long, drop into boiling salted water and boil five minutes. Drain and put a layer in the bottom of a buttered baking dish, add a layer of bread crumbs, a seasoning of salt and pepper, a teaspoon of sugar, a dash of curry powder, and two teaspoons of finely-chopped walnut meats. Continue this method until all the cucumbers are used. Pour over a cup of medium thick tomato sauce, sprinkle with grated cheese, and bake a nice brown in a medium oven.

ANSWERS TO FOOD QUESTIONS

Answers to readers' questions regarding diet will be given by Winifred Stuart Gibbs, food specialist, writer and lecturer on nutrition. Questions should be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope as only those of general interest will be answered in this column; others will be answered through the mail.—Address: Winifred Stuart Gibbs, 37 West 39th street, New York City.

We are living out in the country, so it is not easy to get to a doctor. My baby is six months old and perfectly well except that he is constipated. We have our own cows, so I give the baby fresh raw milk. Is it too soon to begin giving him orange juice?—Mrs. J. A. F.

The fact that you are fortunate enough to be able to give the baby fresh raw milk means that orange juice is not required for the purpose of preventing scurvy, but, on the other hand, the constipated condition will be benefited by orange juice. One tablespoonful a day is probably all that your child requires.

Is it bad to give my 5-year-old daughter just a taste of some of the dishes we have on the table? She has her own diet list, but I thought if it would not do any harm I should like to give her tiny bits of other things, so as to make her happy.—Mrs. F. S. H.

Indeed it is dangerous to give "just a taste" of foods suitable only for grown-ups to a 5-year-old child. This bad habit which many mothers have is responsible for several deplorable conditions. In the first place, and this is the most serious, a child's digestive system is so constituted that even a "taste" of any food that is inherently detrimental is apt to set up irritations, small though they may be, that may lead to serious disorders.

Then these tiny tastes of foods otherwise forbidden keep the child thinking about these foods and make him discontented with his own dietary. Finally, the mother or whoever is responsible for feeding the child loses a powerful ally in her educational program if she neglects to fire the child with a pride in his "own" foods. Properly presented a dietary program may be made to appeal to the child's individual pride in keeping to his very own food list.

My doctor says I must have lots of salts in my food? Will you please explain this?—T. A. L.

The human body is made up of fifteen elements, and of these there are a number that are always present in the average mixed diet. Sodium, magnesium and potassium are among these. Perhaps the most important salts that should be checked up in the diet are calcium, or lime, phosphorous and iron. See to it that your diet contains milk, leafy vegetables, prunes, oranges, cabbage, carrots, spinach and unrefined grains.

How often should my baby be weighed?—Mrs. D. W. H.

For the first few weeks of life the baby should be weighed every day. After two weeks of age it is sufficient to weigh once a week. The gain will vary from day to day, just as adults vary. Some days the baby's gain may be two ounces, another day one, another day perhaps no gain at all will be noticed. Do not worry about slight fluctuations, but change the food under physician's eye, if the loss is appreciable.

"MOONSTONE PEAS"

FRESH FROM WISCONSIN

These peas are grown in the northern part of Wisconsin where the conditions of soil and climate are best for producing the most perfect and most delicately delicious green peas.

From the selection of soils, seeds and varieties, timing of the plantings, cultivating and harvesting, growing farm has for its purpose the bringing to the immaculately clean canneries, the very choicest of green peas. Then they are shelled, washed and canned within ninety little minutes from the time the vine is cut, thus sealing them for you with all their dainty and charming freshness and sweetness.

"Morning Bloom," Petit Pois
"Moonstone," Extra Sifted, No. 2 Sieve
"Moonstone," Small, No. 3 Sieve
"Beaver Dam" Size, No. 4 Sieve
"School Days" Size, No. 5 Sieve

Available at all Certified Grocers, by whom they are unqualifiedly endorsed and recommended.

Directions:

Open can. Pour off the liquor. Empty the peas into a colander or strainer of suitable size and shape. Immerse the strainer or colander with the peas in it into scalding water for about five minutes. Pour peas into a hot serving dish. Cover with hot (not boiled) whole milk. Season to taste with a lump of butter, pepper and salt.

The result will be a close approximation to those delicious and unsurpassed green peas grown in the northern part of Wisconsin.

PROPRIETORSHIP vs "MANAGERSHIP"

All down the centuries there has been manifested in all human affairs—political, social and economical—an innate aversion to "absenteeism" of every sort.

Always have we desired our laborers and servers to be of ourselves, interested in the things of our interest, knowing our problems as we know them, and co-operating with us in their solution, sustaining with us as laborers and neighbors our civic, social and welfare activities.

YOUR CERTIFIED GROCER has such servers. He is in proprietorship—not in the mere "managership" of exploitive absenteeism. His interests are your interests, he is one of you, serving you well and efficiently in your most essential needs, and he is responsive in all of your activities and progress.

It is really appropriate and worthwhile to check up our sources of supplies from time to time in the light of these facts, and to arrange our buying to a reciprocative and constructive standard.

Half Million Cars Expected on Southland Roads

Unusual Courtesy Suggested as Accident Curb

Today and tomorrow automobile travel on the highways of Southern California will reach its summer height. More than half a million cars will be on the roads in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles on Sunday.

According to officials of the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California, the first Sunday preceding the middle of August has annually topped the travel season for this section of America.

Roads to the beaches and mountains will be packed beginning this afternoon and extending up until six o'clock tomorrow evening. Great care should be exercised in driving in order to avoid accidents and particular caution should be taken in accessing all railroad lines at grade crossings.

Certain roads are closed for travel due to construction work, but according to the Auto Club, the majority of the highways are open and have never been in better condition.

The popular road through Turnbull Canyon connecting Whittier with the Valley Boulevard is still closed for construction.

On the heavily travelled Ventura Boulevard the Montalvo bridge has not been replaced and it will therefore be necessary for the next few months to give motorists a choice of using the Santa Susana road or to go by way of Camarillo and Saticoy.

There is a detour that will last some little time on the San Francisco inland road between Goshen and Tulare. The detour begins at the junction of the Visalia and Main State Highway and is two and a half miles long. However, this detour is reported in good condition and will be well maintained. In order to avoid this detour, motorists may turn at Tulare and go by way of Visalia to Goshen Junction.

Automobile travel to Phoenix, Ariz., is now evenly divided between the Blythe and Yuma routes. The Yuma road to Phoenix has undergone considerable improvement work and offers better road conditions now than ever before. Those touring that way may reach El Centro either by way of San Diego or by Indio, and motorists should stop at El Centro at the Auto Club offices to learn conditions over the famous plank road.

The main road between Long Beach and Huntington Beach is still under construction. Motorists planning a Sunday tour in that section will find the best road now by way of Seal Beach, Sunset Beach, Los Patos, then through Winterberg to the main Huntington Beach road, and thence south to Huntington Beach—this road is paved as far as Los Patos and then dirt road between there and the regular Huntington Beach Highway, but in excellent shape.

Forest fires in Santa Barbara county have not interfered with travel on any of the main roads.

San Gabriel Canyon road, which was closed last week on account of a landslide south of Berry Flats, is again passable for a distance of eight miles from Azusa. The road leading through Lytle Creek Canyon is in good shape and was not affected by the forest fire in that district.

Abnormal courtesy on the highways today and tomorrow is suggested by Auto Club officials as a means for curbing auto accidents. "Do not do unto motorists anything you will not want them to do unto you" is the way this warning is phrased. While excessive speed is accountable for many accidents, it is not the worst factor in the number of smash-ups that are reported each week-end, say club officials, but it is rather small carelessnesses in failing to give hand signals, or in trying to take the right of way, which make the most trouble.

Whereupon He Buys Share in Driver's Taxi

He meant what he said and he said what he meant but he didn't say all he meant and so—

But let W. H. Wagner, a driver for the Day and Night Taxi Company, tell the story:

"He was all right, but like a lot of us, he suffered from the sin of indefiniteness," said Mr. Wagner. "He reminded me of the fellow who jumped into a taxi and when asked what street he wanted, asked: 'What streets have you got?'

"Evidently he was a newcomer. He ordered a taxi and when I inquired: 'Where to?' he answered: 'San Pedro—I'm goin' down there to look at some houses.'

"When we got to Ninety-first street he turned to me and said: 'This must be a whale of a big town; how far is it down there?'

"'Why man, we're not started yet,' I told him. 'You said San Pedro, didn't you?'

"'Yes,' he answered, 'I said San Pedro—San Pedro street.'

"'Oh!' I said. 'Sure! Certainly! Of course we have that street. Would you mind tellin' me what number you're lookin' for?'"

DISCUSS NEW BANK

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE)

SOUTH GATE, Aug. 10.—A number of representative citizens met at the office of Foster & Ortley, new realtor dealers, for the purpose of discussing the organization of a bank in this city, and L. M. Maynard of the National City Bank of Los Angeles, was present and gave a number of suggestions. It was finally decided that the arrangements be made for closing a deal which is pending to purchase a lot for the bank building. It was thought best by Mr. Maynard, that the bank be organized, and opened as soon as possible in a building in this city; and that the building for banking purposes be erected by the formation of a separate company, later. The matter will again be taken up soon by those interested.

TWENTY-ONE TIE FOR PRIZE

Exhibitors of Log at Exposition May Have Winners Draw Lots for Ten-acre Unit Interest

Twenty-one persons of the 20,000 who attempted to guess the weight of a log from the property of the Isthmus Development Company in Mexico shown at the Monroe Centennial Exposition are tied for the prize which the company offered. The log weighed 216 pounds and two ounces. Nineteen of the twenty-one guessed 216 pounds and two guessed 216 pounds and four ounces.

Since the exposition closed the development firm's officials have been trying to determine some means in which the prize offered can be given to one of the twenty-one who are tied for the honor.

It has been suggested that all of the twenty-one be called into the company's office and the matter be settled by change. The prize consists, according to the statement of the contest, of "one ten-acre unit interest in our 237,000-acre tract of hardwood timber land, located on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, State of Oaxaca, Mexico."

The following is a list of the twenty-one: J. F. Dobson, 411 N. Citrus avenue, Covina; Godelieve Joye, 1141 Glendale Boulevard, Los Angeles; G. F. Winkler, 425 Regent street, Inglewood; Victor Trieget, 1528 N. Hoover street, Los Angeles; Mrs. Cora Angeles Ranch, 2711 Washington Boulevard, Los Angeles; P. J. Walsh, 5426 Denker street, Los Angeles; S. G. Edmund, 535 East Sixteenth street, Los Angeles; Charles Costello, 259 West Forty-fifth street Los Angeles; P. K. Stephens, 917 North Louise street, Glendale; Marian Valencia, P.O. Box 261, Chino; R. J. Carter, 317 North First street, Alhambra; Richard Edwards, 5569 Moneta avenue, Los Angeles; E. S. Nacy, 2717 Hazel street, Los Angeles; Bud Blossom, 5518 South Ven Ness avenue, Los Angeles; George W. Slater, Box 238, Hawthorne; Cecil C. Howard, Willowbrook; Mrs. T. J. Wilson, 8311 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles; James Scott, 2627, Raymond avenue, Los Angeles; Alex Schnick, South Burlington street, Los Angeles; Chase Gibbs, Normandie avenue, Los Angeles; J. A. Kelsey, 210 West Fifth-sixth street, Los Angeles.

MERCY CALL NEARLY FATAL

Autoist Rushing Unhurt but Thought Dying Infant to Hospital, Strikes Boy Who May Not Live

George Morgan, 15 years of age, is lying at the point of death in the Receiving Hospital today, the victim of an accident directly traceable to a mother's fear over the safety of her baby.

The boy was struck down at Glendale Boulevard and Temple street by an automobile driven by R. F. Taylor of 362 Patton street. Taylor had responded to the pleas of Mrs. M. Houseman of 2349 North Alvarado street and was hurrying the woman, her baby and a friend to the Receiving Hospital in the belief that the baby was seriously hurt.

Mrs. Houseman had been giving the infant a bath, but left the child for a few seconds. The infant tumbled out of the tub and the mother, believing that he was seriously injured, hurried over to a friend, Miss Wanda Logan, for assistance. The two women decided that the baby must be taken to a hospital at once, as he was apparently stunned.

They hurried out into the street and stopped the first motorist. This happened to be Taylor. They pleaded with him to take them and the infant to the Receiving Hospital and he agreed.

In the car Mrs. Houseman urged Taylor to drive rapidly, the mother fearing that her baby would die. Taylor was traveling at a good rate when the boy darted in front of the machine. He was flung to the ground.

Taylor leaped out, placed the injured boy in his car with the two women and resumed his trip.

At the hospital it was stated by physicians that young Morgan would probably die. He is suffering from a basal skull fracture.

The baby was also thoroughly examined, but found to be uninjured.

Cross Action in Suit Charges Funds Juggled

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—J. O. Harris, copartner in the Peppers Fruit Company, yesterday filed an answer and cross-complaint to a suit for $2797.62, asserted to be due the company, in which he asserts that accounts of the concern have been juggled.

There is due him $15,000, Harris declares, out of profits from 1921 and 1922 business, while T. H. Peppers has asserted that the firm lost money during that period. Harris asks that the court dissolve the partnership, make a true accounting and then render him such relief as is deemed just.

JOURNALIST OF 1667

Went to Work Armed With Sword and Pistol Because of Footpads

J. G. Muddiman has written the life of his ancestor, Henry Muddiman, who founded the London Gazette in 1665, under the title of "The King's Journalist, 1659-1689." The book throws fascinating sidelights upon a period of English history which has never yet been fully explored, and upon the real beginnings of English journalism.

Muddiman's "New Letters," from 1667 to 1689, the manuscripts of which have been at Longleat, Wilshire, since 1704, have been carefully examined. Mr. Muddiman compares the life of a journalist of those far-off days with that of the present.

"A remarkable contrast," he writes, "to a modern editor journeying to his daily work was presented by the bewigged seventeenth century news writer, mounted on horseback and traveling to Whitehall or the 'Seven Stars' in the Strand, armed with a sword and a brace of pistols in his holster, 'because of the footpads at Knightsbridge.'"—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OLIVE GROWERS WILL CHOOSE BRAND NAME

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—Marketing plans of the California Olive Growers, Inc., have progressed to the point where a trade name for the olives is a necessity, and selection of a standard brand name will be one of the principal questions to be taken up at the directors' meeting here on September 4, it is announced. An exceptionally good pack is anticipated this year, according to association officials. The crop in Central and Northern California is heavy, but is light in Southern California, they said. The harvest will begin here about October 15. The San Joaquin Valley olives are of exceptionally fine quality this year.

Why He Didn't Want It Told

DEVELOPING OF STREETS AUTHORIZED

Projects in Various Parts of City Given Impetus With Plans Approved

Much street development in various parts of the city soon will be under way. The City Council this week instructed the City Engineer to prepare ordinances for the improvement of the following streets: Concord street from Folsom street to Brooklyn avenue; Alma street and Twenty-sixth-street sewer district; Fiftieth street from Sixth avenue to 160 feet westerly; Denby avenue from Blake avenue north 650 feet; streets in the Avenue 52, Avenue 51 and Hub-street district; Gaffey and other streets in the Gaffey-street and Elberona-avenue improvement district.

The Council also approved the assessment district maps for the improvement of the Gaffey street and Twenty-second-avenue district; Twelfth street, Sentous to Alvarado; Menlo avenue, Sixty-fifth to Sixty-ninth streets; Milwaukee avenue, Springvale Drive to Fayette, and for the construction of the Clarence-street and the Udell-Court and Atlantic-street storm sewers.

Man Arrested for Not Paying Attorney's Fees

Marcus H. Hardy, 62 years of age, paid his wife alimony but failed to pay the attorney's fee and as a result found himself in the County Jail yesterday.

Hardy was arrested on a bench warrant issued Thursday by Judge King of the Superior Court. He is charged with contempt of court in failing to appear and explain why he has not paid the attorney's fee. The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Mason.

Condemnation of Land Waits on Law Change

The Public Welfare Committee of the City Council will begin at once a revision of the ordinance for the condemnation of certain land in the Arroyo Seco between Avenue 58 and Pearl street.

The ordinance was passed by the Council, but at its request vetoed by the Mayor and sent back for some changes. It is probable that the matter will reach a conclusion next week.

NEWSPAPER TO OBTAIN BEARS FOR FRESNO ZOO

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—The Fresno City Commission yesterday accepted an offer of a local newspaper to obtain two 4-year-old brown bears for the Roeding Park Zoo, but with the understanding that the newspaper raise funds by popular subscription for providing them with a cage. The animals are to be obtained from the city of Pisarville, where they are being given away because they are said to be "eating the city out of house and home." Fresno now has one bear at the park.

BOY ATTACK CHARGED

Man Held Without Bail After Physicians Nurse Lad

Joseph Galbraith, 7 years of age, was so severely injured yesterday when, it is asserted, he was attacked by Al Smith, 30, as to require aid of Emergency Hospital physicians. The boy was attacked by Smith in a rooming-house at 314½ East Fourth street, in which both lived, according to the report of Detectives Adams and White. Smith was arrested and charged with mayhem and violation of section 288 of the Penal Code. He is held without bail.

Forcing pineapple plants to grow through strips of brown paper that cover the soil around the plant completely, thereby killing the weeds, has increased the yield in the Hawaiian Islands 50 per cent.

AT LAST CONCERT OF SCHOOL SERIES

Indian Chief

The final concert of the school series will take place at the Hollywood Bowl today at 4 p.m. A program that will emphasize American music, using both negro and Indian themes, will be offered by the orchestra, under the leadership of Emil Oberhoffer. "Animal Carnival" by Saint-Saens will also be a feature of the program.

In addition to the concerts, the Arapahoe Indians appearing in "The Covered Wagon" prologue, will be present and do their native songs and dances.

Following is the program:

"Procession of the Mountain Chief" ..... Ippolitow-Ivanow
Large from the "New World Symphony" ..... Dvorak
Two Indian Dances ..... Ahlton
"Carnival of Animals" ..... Saint-Saens

REFUSES TO SUPPORT HIS WIFE'S KIN

Financial Troubles Wreck Home; Married Two Months; Gets Divorce

Quarrels over financial questions, and especially about supporting her mother, finally resulted in the separation, Leland Harry Dyer, told Judge Clock who granted him a divorce from Azela Dyer.

During their married life that lasted only two months, his wife left him a number of times, Dyer told the court, and each time after much persuasion he was able to get her to come home again for a few days and then she would leave.

Every time she left she would take all their money and give it to her mother with whom she lived, the husband declared. As he was earning only a small salary at that time he was unable to support her mother too, and his wife refused to live apart from her mother, Dyer testified.

Other witnesses testified that the arguments over the wife's mother made serene married life impossible for the couple.

Press Agent Is Wrought Up by Sea Mystery

Here's another mystery of the sea.

Bill Desmond, Eileen Sedgwick, a serial company from Universal City, and a schooner have all disappeared together in the vast wastes of the Pacific Ocean, and the press agent at Universal is all excited about it.

According to the Universal City management, Mr. Desmond, Miss Sedgwick, their supporting company and the schooner all left together several days ago to film some scenes near Santa Cruz Island. They were due back about Thursday. Last night they hadn't showed up. So the Universal City people sent out a fast boat, equipped with press agents, photographers, special writers, and artists, to effect a rescue.

However, down at Los Angeles Harbor the hardy mariners who saw the rescue mission take to the water declined to get excited about it. They said the schooner had plenty of men, plenty of canvas, a substantial larder, a stout hull, and quiet weather. They also said it hadn't any auxiliary power, and was probably becalmed somewhere; so when the rescuers tore out to sea, throwing foam and excitement in all directions, the mariners ashore merely remarked "Ho hum" and kept perfectly placid.

A few hours after the search started, the launch returned bringing eleven hungry, but otherwise unharmed, members of the expedition. They had a story of some marine mishaps which had resulted in delay in making port.

"Ho hum," said the water front wise men once more, "we told you so."

LAW HITS SMOKERS

Fresno Bars Burning Weed on Closed Street Cars

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—For the first time in history smoking on Fresno street cars is to be curbed, the City Commission having adopted a codified penal ordinance yesterday which prohibits smoking except on the open section of any street car. This ordinance will abolish smoking on three lines, Fresno, Tulare and Blackstone avenues, because of the use of one-man safety and center-entrance cars, which have no open sections.

SCREEN STARS AT MEETING

New Hollywood Club to Promote Closer Relations Between Actors and Actresses

No, Hollywood's latest club—the A. B. C.—has nothing to do with the kindergarten. The A.B.C. was organized Wednesday at the home of George K. Arthur, 2207 Vista del Mar. The initials stand for American-British Cinema Club and the inaugural session was made memorable by the attendance of almost all of the recent important additions to the local British film colony.

George K. Arthur, founder of the organization and the most recent arrival from the British Isles, came to America as a result of the encouraging counsel of Charles Chaplin, whom he met on the recent visit of Chaplin to his old home in England.

WIELDS GAVEL

He wielded the gavel and as the first official act of the organization read a letter and had the same inscribed on the new organization's records from the pen of screen comedians. Mr. Chaplin regretted his inability to be present, but promised to hold open the date of the next meeting for his initiation.

Prominent among those present were: Ruby Miller, London actress who is making her first American picture at the Robertson-Cole studios; Evelyn Brent, at present playing the lead in Metro's "Held to Answer;" Marjorie Marcelle, leading lady in Century comedies; Hayford Hobbs, in the "Rosita" cast with Mary Pickford; Derek Glynne, Gloria de Braith, Capt. Philip Hubbard, Milba K. Lloyd and Viscount Glerawley. Ivor Novello, most recently seen in Griffith's "White Rose," cabled that he would join the club on his return to America for a new Griffith production.

CHAPLIN HONORABLE HOST

Charles Chaplin was chosen as Honorable Host in perpetuity; George K. Arthur was made Eminent Innkeeper; Miss Ruby Miller accepted the office of Keeper of Chronicles and Privy Purse, and Viscount Glerawley, perhaps because of his authoritative rendering of butler types on the screen, was elected to the post of Master of Cellar and Pantry.

Permanent quarters of the club are to be in the Arthur Lodge, a large salon, with shelves of pewter and racks of long-stemmed clay pipes, having been set aside by the owner for the meetings, which are to be week-end affairs and purely social. In outdoor sports the club will make cricket its official game.

Plans were laid for a membership drive so as to include every British-born player in the films in the new organization.

PLAN SHOW OF BEAUTIES ON BEACHES

Fairest Bathing Girls of Bay Cities Will Compete for High Honors

A "Battle of Beauty," with the fairest of Venice, Ocean Park, Santa Monica and other beach communities defying the prettiest "bathing beauties" from other sections of the Southland will feature the program Sunday, the 19th inst., when the Bay Cities Beach Association will put on a bathing girls' parade, the first of twelve events planned for this year, along the strands of the three cities.

The organization, formed of similar bodies representing each of the bay cities, is expected to be permanent and to take over the management of all public parades, carnivals and such affairs held at any of the beach cities.

Membership of the association includes most of the amusement interests at Venice, Santa Monica, Ocean Park and other seashore resorts, and financial plans have progressed to where definite announcement of the twelve events soon can be made, according to those interested.

The bathing girls' parade will be first, following which it is planned to have a seaside event of some kind every other week for the rest of the year. Leading men and women of the film world have been invited to participate and the judges for most of the events will be selected from among them.

A new system of making awards to prize winners has been devised by which it was declared there will be no opportunity for any one community to grab all "blue ribbons." Awards on sectional lines, as well as for different divisions, will be made and the executive committee asserts there will be enough awards made to leave few in the "also ran" class.

Four Are Hurt as Auto Breaks Loose on Hill

Four persons were hurt yesterday when an automobile of the Brunswig Drug Company, without a driver, rolled down California street into a crowd that was watching the moving of the Alhambra Hotel. The car had been parked at the top of the hill and the brake apparently loosened and it rolled down into Broadway.

Antone Yukopilla, 56 years of age, 123½ Weller street, suffered a broken leg, while Jacob Bruhl, 61, of 319 West Second street; Guy C. Boker, 40, of 2533 London street and Alex Hamilton, 61, of Temple Block were bruised and lacerated. Patrolmen Service, Blake and Eppstein took the injured to the Receiving Hospital, where they were attended by Police Surgeon Dodge.

Chamber Here is Given Bid to Dinuba Pageant

An invitation has been sent to the Chamber of Commerce asking its members to attend the Pageant of Progress which Dinuba will conduct next Wednesday. The festival will be in observation of the completion of an electroller system ninety-one blocks in length and 160 blocks of paving.

A feature of the pageant will be a parade through the valley city. The Queen of Electricity is to be one of the outstanding personages. She will be depicted receiving the electric spark from the kite of Benjamin Franklin. Additional entertainment has been planned for the evening. There will be a number of band concerts and street dances with carnival attractions.

Plans are being made for a delegation to go to the northern city to represent Los Angeles.

THIRTEEN CARS SEIZED BY GOVERNMENT SOLD

United States Marshal Sittel yesterday sold thirteen automobiles, seized by the government for violation of liquor and narcotic laws. The aggregate amount received was $1888. The highest price received was for a Ford sedan which sold for $460; the lowest, a Ford touring car, brought $40. The list included five Fords, four Chevrolets and an Overland, an Essex, a Maxwell and a Columbia.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR BLACKWOOD ARRANGED

PLAYWRIGHT TO BE BURIED ON MONDAY; FORMER; WIFE PROSTRATED

Funeral services for John S. Blackwood, playwright and theatrical producer, who died Thursday after a long illness, will be conducted Monday at 10 a.m. from the parlors of Graham & Isbell, 915 West Washington street, according to announcement made yesterday by Dr. R. Nichol Smith, who is in charge of the ceremony. The body will then be cremated at the Los Angeles Crematory.

Negotiations are now under way with the Masonic lodge, of which Blackwood was member, to officiate at the ceremony, but it is possible that the Theatrical Managers' Association will act in this capacity. Blackwood was a member of this organization.

Rumors that Mrs. Blackwood, divorced wife of the producer, who nursed him throughout his illness, is suffering from a collapse in her apartment at 1654 Winfield street, were confirmed yesterday by Dr. Smith.

"I have Mrs. Blackwood in the care of a nurse," the physician said. "She is afflicted with a severe prostration."

PLAN BIG PROGRAM

ROBERTSON-COLE TO MAKE SERIES OF ELEVEN

By Edwin Schallert

A series of feature productions, costing a total of approximately $1,500,000 and featuring Jane Novak and Eddie Hearn as stars, have just been announced by the Robertson-Cole Corporation. The features are to be filmed under the supervision of Chester Bennett, who has Miss Novak and Mr. Hearn under contract, and he executed an agreement with J. I. Schnitzer, vice-president of the F. B. O. releasing corporation, looking to the distribution of the series of pictures, which, according to present plans, will aggregate eleven.

Five of the photoplays will star Miss Novak. These will be made under Mr. Bennett's personal direction. The first will possibly be a costume feature, and Miss Novak has several heroines whom she would like to essay to re-create for the screen. She will start work in the picture September 15.

Mr. Hearn is to film six pictures under the terms of his contract, the first to be started October 1. The type of films he will make will be westerns on the order of those which have made "Hoot" Gibson, the Universal star, popular, it is stated. Mr. Hearn will have his first starring experience under this contract.

Rumors have been in circulation that Robertson-Cole intended to shut down production for a time in anticipation of a fall slump, but the announcement of this agreement definitely sets these reports at rest. The companies starring Miss Novak and Mr. Hearn will be at work, at least, and that more activities will be begun soon, is also indicated.

Andree's Future

The immediate future of Andree Lafayette has been decided. She is to play one of the leading roles in "The Vital Question," to be produced by the Laval Photoplays, Ltd., it was announced yesterday by L. Ernest Ouimet, president of that company.

Miss Lafayette, you know, is the girl who was brought to America to portray the title role in "Trilby." Since the premiere of the film she has been receiving praise on every hand from the critics.

Right after she finished the picture she was uncertain whether she could obtain a job because of the fact that none of her work on the screen was known. She thought of going back to France.

But now that the film seems to assure her of success, it is said that her services have come into sudden demand.

Miss Lafayette will be given a chance to demonstrate her versatility in "The Vital Question." She will play the role of a modern young American business woman.

Production is to start in about four weeks, and the continuity is now in preparation by William M. Conselman.

New Feature Scheduled

"Women's Intuition," an original story by Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin, just purchased by Metro, completes the list of six special features to be filmed by this company this season, according to Milton E. Hoffman, production manager. The Metro list comprises thirty-three screen stories of which these are a part. The five other specials include: "The Man Whom Life Passed By," Victor Schertzinger's story that he himself will produce; "The Eagle's Feather," by Katharine Newlin Burt; "Held to Answer," by Peter Clark MacFarlane; "The Living Past," by William J. Locke, and "Desire," by John J. Clymer and Henry Symons. "Desire," "The Eagle's Feather" and "Held to Answer" are completed.

The selection of these stories and of Viola Dana's starring pictures is the result of months of searching through material by Mr. Hoffman. He has naught to consider for the most part except the stories themselves, for Miss Dana is the only star regularly on the Metro list.

Miss Cowan and Mr. Higgin, the authors of "Woman's Intuition" recently put "Fashion Row" into continuity form for Mae Murray. This will be her next starring picture for Metro. Miss Cowan has sixteen one-act plays to her credit, and wrote the script for "Peter the Great," among others. The feature was made abroad by a foreign corporation and is now showing in this country.

Hart to Begin Soon

Actual production on William S. Hart's "Wild Bill Hickok," the western star's initial feature since his return will begin the 20th inst. The picture will be made at the Lasky studio.

Change Title

The title of the Hall Caine story, "The Master of Man," which is filming under the direction of Victor Seastrom, is to be changed to "The Judge and the Woman." The cast includes Conrad Nagel, Mae Busch, Patsy Ruth Miller, DeWitt Jennings, Aileen Pringle, Hobart Bosworth and others. The reason assigned for the change in title is that pictures carrying a similar name have recently been released, and that therefore there is danger of confusion.

Return to Studio

After being absent from the screen for more than a year, Regina Quinn, formerly with Vitagraph, will be seen again in "His Children's Children," which Saw Wood is directing in the East. She will play the role of Claudio one of the Kayne daughters.

In "Beau Brummel"

Through an arrangement with Paramount, Mary Aster has been engaged to portray the leading feminine role in the John Barrymore picture, "Beau Brummel," for Warner Brothers.

Mr. Barrymore is expected to arrive from New York about September 1, at which time everything will be in readiness to film the Clyde Fitch play.

Harry Beaumont, who recently completed the picturization of Belasco's play, "The Gold Diggers," will direct the Barrymore film. Dorothy Farnum is preparing the screen story.

Monte Blue and Harry Myers have been added to the cast of "Daddies," the David Belasco play, which is shortly to be filmed under the direction of William Seiter.

Old Horsley Studio Again in New Hands

The price paid has not been made public, but it is understood that the consideration was six times greater than Mr. Ford paid William Horsley for the plant about three years ago.

The property is at present being used by Choice Productions, Inc., to produce a series of "special" photoplays, and according to George M. Mitchell, president of Choice, his firm will retain possession of the plant until the lease expires, or about another year.

FAIR GROUNDS FUND REDUCED BY COUNTY

FRESNO, Aug. 10.—Supervisors of Fresno county late yesterday decided that $10,061 is too much to spend for new buildings and repairs at the fair grounds for the district fair which opens September 24, and voted to spend only $2000. The larger sum had been requested by the Chamber of Commerce and the Farm Bureau for improving grounds and erecting buildings.

ENCOUNTER HARDSHIPS IN SIERRAS

Forman and Company Lead Rough Life During Making of "Virginian"

Filming a picture in the primitive cattle country—the one remaining stronghold of the cow puncher that Owen Wister immortalized—has its handicaps, as well as its advantages.

Tom Forman made this discovery when he filmed all of the "exteriors" for his elaborate production of "The Virginian" in a wildly beautiful spot in the High Sierras which is almost untouched by the hand of civilization.

Here are some of the highlights of the production activities that have resulted in this latest pictorial achievement of the B. P. Schulberg studios.

Neither automobile nor locomotive ever has been seen in the great cup in the mountains in which the picture was filmed.

The company spent six weeks in camp, nearly eight miles from telephone or telegraph.

A mountain village was built by Forman, who had absolute dictatorship over 300 inhabitants.

Fifteen hundred mountain trout were required as the piece de resistance for the camp breakfast.

Ninety tons of supplies, including materials, food and equipment, were carried in on the backs of mules.

Black bears raided the camp larder on two occasions.

Owing to lack of maid service, Tom Forman, Kenneth Harlan, Florence Vidor, Russell Simpson, Pat O'Malley, Raymond Hatton and other luminaries of the company made their own beds and kept up their quarters.

FLINT ON SELZNICK BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Coincident with the absorption of the entire product of the American Releasing Corporation by the Selznick Distributing Corporation, comes the announcement from Myron Selznick of the addition of Motley R. Flint to the board of directors of the latter named company. In his capacity as vice-president of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank Mr. Flint has become identified in assisting with the production end of the motion-picture business.

The Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank is interested in three special productions made by the Selznick Distributing Corporation, "Rupert of Hentzau," "The Common Law," and "Modren Matrimony," and Mr. Flint's recent trip East was made partially to close final details for the distribution of these pictures.

SCOTT NOVEL ON VIEW AT KINEMA

Clara Kimball Young in Leroy Scott's novel "Cordelia the Magnificent" opens at the Kinema Theater today.

Miss Young is exceptionally captivating in the part of Cordelia, and the role is said to be one of the most pleasing the star has ever portrayed. Supporting the star are Huntly Gordon, Carol Holloway, Lloyd Whitlock, Jacqueline Gadsdon, Lewis Dayton, Mary Jane Irving, Katherine Murphy and Elinor Hancock.

YOUTHFUL STAR IN IT

Though "Michael O'Halloran," which comes to Grauman's Third-Street Theater Monday is not essentially a children's picture, twenty-five clever youngsters are among those who appear in the production. These are headed by True Boardman, whose work is destined to place him in the first rank of young screen actors.

WATCH MAN AT ORPHEUM MYSTIFIES

A Dozen Clocks Come Out of Hat at Will of Gus Fowler

You cannot know half the mystery that lies in a watch and a clock until you have seen how they behave in the hands of a magician. Gus Fowler is showing at the Orpheum Theater this week what a mystery man can make them do. Also out of what they can be made.

Here is one recipe: Take one spherical butter disk and place it under a cloth; sprinkle a little thaumaturgical dust (obtainable from any chemist,) and watch the cloth. Presently you will see certain writhing movements, and all you have to do is to wait until they cease. Then remove the cloth and presto! you will find a time-piece complete, suitable for your mantlepiece, and indicating (approximately) the correct time.

Or, suppose you inadvertently leave your watch at home and cannot borrow one, which is a common predicament. The remedy is very simple: Just an impulse of necromantic energy. In a few seconds you will experience an itching in the vicinity of the calf of the leg. Place your hand on the part affected, and it will produce—a watch. It is a real watch. Let it fall and there will be a thud. Shake it and it will rattle. Compare it with the Town Hall clock, and you will find it accurate as to the time of day.

But, it is when Mr. Fowler has a hat in his hand that he becomes a positive terror to the watch and clock trade. He will bring forth from an empty chapeau more than a dozen alarm clocks, each with its alarm in action. Mass production is not in it with this process. It is as much as the magician can do to clear the hat of one timepiece before another is wailing to be taken out. What is his secret?

That is possibly why Mr. Fowler was imported by the Orpheum Circuit from the British music halls—to keep us guessing. He does.

"ONLY WAY" COMES BACK TO SYMPHONY

Eugene O'Brien

At the time Lewis J. Selznick was making stars of the Talmadge sisters and Eugene O'Brien was Norma's leading man, George Scarborough's "Her Only Way," was declared by press and public to be about the best picture in which Eugene and Norma had ever appeared.

"Her Only Way" starts at the Symphony tomorrow.

The story is a story of every-day humanity; the events in the lives of those who live now, under the rigid exactions of custom and decent living. In addition to Eugene O'Brien, Miss Talmadge has the support of a splendid cast. The picture was directed by Sidney Franklin, who also directed "The Forbidden City" and "Smilin' Through."

Ten Girls Win in Quest for More Normas

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—In the greenroom of Loew's New York Theater yesterday afternoon there was a beauty contest to pick the ten young ladies most resembling Norma Talmadge. The lucky ten will figure in a motion-picture to be taken tomorrow on the Mall in Central Park.

After the winners were finally selected they were escorted to the roof by Harold Johnson of the Schenk forces and their photographs were taken.

The lucky girls are: Vivian Page, Elizabeth Mayer, Sophie Howard, Irene Ludlow, Thelma Bradley, Olive Hope Bebee, Buriel Hodes, Evelyn Allen, Mimi Mitsu, Lusetta Parker and Lilly Christie. There are eleven names here, so it seems that no chances have been taken and an understudy will be on hand should any of the lovely ones get stage fright.

Both Dog and Distinction Go Together

To be an actress for five years and never have experienced a loss of jewels or valuable property indicates a peculiar distinction.

Although of German extraction, "Blacky" did not speak the language nor even understand it. Hence, when Marjorie's German cook ordered him to remain in the back yard he promptly took a contrary stand. At any rate, whether he left of his own accord or was induced to leave by force, "Blacky" is lost, strayed or stolen.
